Interdorm Council meets once a week in the Union. Its general aims are to coordinate dormitory activities, provide for communication among dorm residents, and aid officers in scholastic, cultural, social, and recreational programming. The organization is broken down into Scholastic and Cultural, Social, Physical Fitness, and Special Events Committees.

The Council seeks to stimulate intellectually by expanding paper-back book libraries, promoting art displays, ordering magazines and newspapers for the lounges, utilizing students with broad and interesting backgrounds, discussions, films, lecture series, clinics, and seminars. More emphasis on student-faculty interaction is sought, plus greater utilization of campus religious centers, more discussion of contemporary issues in the cafeterias, more visiting speakers and teach-ins.

Some of the Council's better known and most popular activities include exchange dinners and dances, the "3.2" scholastic banquet, and open houses.
