Explanation For Change The U. N. D. Alumni Magazine has changed its make-up. The mast-head and editorial comment in the future will be on page 1. This change has been made to fit in with the general plan of a cheaper magazine. Instead of three columns the magazine will be in two columns for the time being at least. This change has been made necessary because of the indebtedness carried by the magazine. During this past year less than 30 per cent of the members have renewed their membership in the association which carries with it the subscription to the Magazine. For the past five years the editor has been building up the magazine in times of publication and in size but support from the alumni has not been forthcoming. With the end of the last fiscal year, the magazine showed a deficit of over $1200 with $900 due on annual memberships. A statement of the condition of the magazine from the editor and an appeal from President Traynor of the Alumni Association failed to remove the indebtedness. A very few loyal alumni responded.

The Board of Directors of the Alumni Association ruled at a recent meeting that the magazine should be placed on a paying basis. This means cutting down on the size and general make-up of the magazine. It will be necessary in the future to cut off all members who delay in sending in their dues. We regret that this is necessary but the response from the alumni body does not warrant carrying any delinquent member.

This issue of the magazine may draw fire from some of our alumni but it is the best that can be provided with the present support from the alumni. As soon as our indebtedness is cleared off, the alumni may expect a better magazine. A few years ago it was the ambition of the editor to make the magazine a monthly, in this way giving the alumni more recent news and maintaining standards in keeping with the better alumni magazines of the country, but this must be forgotten.

Homecoming This Year

The Homecoming attraction this year is Oregon University. Coach West is bringing this team here at a considerable expense. For the first time in the history of the Institution, a game of national importance is being played at Homecoming. The football world is looking upon North Dakota. The Pacific Coast where football competition is the keenest and where Oregon is rated highly is anxiously awaiting the results of this contest. With Oregon slated to play the strong New York University team the following Saturday, North Dakota will have a national rating after this contest.

The Homecoming program this year should attract a large number of alumni back to Grand Forks. The banquet on Friday night is scheduled with a real live program. The Shrine organization has signified its intention of joining with the University in making Saturday a banner day in the program. Business men are entering floats in the parade. The City of Grand Forks is this year celebrating its 50th anniversary. The theme for the University and City floats will be on pioneer plan. The parade committee plans to have the biggest float in the history of the University of North Dakota.

A Challenge From The West

And A Sioux Team With A 'No Defeat' Record To Shake The Confidence of Coach Spears' Oregon Eleven

(By Joe Mader)

With a Homecoming menu reaching unheard of proportions, the real meat of the menu, the football game, may be hidden by all the trimmings and desserts. To focus the spotlight upon the big dish for the 1931 Sioux Homecoming—consider the North Dakota-Oregon football clash set for October 24.

Coach C. W. Spears

serves and 25 sophomores that would gladden the heart of any coach.

Heading the list of the Pacific coast warriors stopping off in Grand Forks hoping to take a Sioux scalp before going on to greater fields in New York City is Irvin Schulz. Schulz is the 185 pound guard, who after two seasons spent in spreading terror among opposing linesmen, was elected captain of the Oregon eleven this year. He stands six

Oregon University is the greatest, most widely heralded team that has ever played on the home gridiron. Coach Clarence W. Spears, known personally to a great many Sioux fans, is among the top brace of national gridiron experts. On the west coast, such teams as Stanford, Southern California, Washington and St. Mary's respect and fear the Oregon team and coach. On his team Spears has gathered together an allstar aggregation, boasting 11 lettermen, a dozen former re-feet, two inches, and is considered an outstanding candidate for national honors this year. With him in the backfield are such tried veterans as William Parke, the quarterback, who is battling four sophomore candidates for his job, Sam "Red" Rottenberg and Donn Watts, the two experienced lettermen, and Ed. Moeller, the 186 pound fullback who towers 6 feet, 3 inches. For the fullback post, Moeller is being replaced rapidly by Mike Mikulak, star fullback from Minneapolis. Mikulak, a giant Pole, is getting the coach's eye over four other fullback candidates, two of them being lettermen.

To add a picturesque and thrill-laden touch to the Oregon squad, Spears boasts a triple threat man in "Happy" Joe Lillard, a negro halfback, who is said to be the most versatile man on the Pacific coast. Although only a sophomore, Lillard has assured himself of a position on the team, and is an ace at passing, kicking or toting the leather.

On the line, Spears presents an array of six-footers from one end to the other. Three ends, all lettermen, hold down the end posts. Steve Fletcher and Milton Thompson, both 6 feet, 1 inch tall, vie with Orville "Red" Bailey for the outposts. Bill Morgan is the outstanding tackle, while Eric

Coach C. A. West

Forsta, a two letter center, is holding the fort against five candidates for his position.

An indication as to the type of opposition Oregon is likely to present, it is interesting to note that among the 11 teams they meet this year are Idaho, Washington and Southern California before they encounter North Dakota. Then follows a week of rest and then the North Dakota game, followed by New York University, Oregon State, University of California of Los Angeles and St.

Mary's.

Consider the other side of the picture—the North Dakota Sioux. Three times champions in their own conference in as many years—a team that has lost only one game a year in three years running—a team that is known and watched from coast to coast—a team that has thrilled fans from New York and Washington to Los Angeles—a team that boasted one All-American last year and has another in the making in the person of Fred Felber, versatile end—a team coached by C. A. West, keen-minded, resourceful, courageous, able and forceful.

Stir all these ingredients together in the dope bucket, spread out thin on the sod of Memorial stadium, and you have THE football game of the year. Add to it the glamour of colorful parades, blaring bands, cheering thousands, flags and pennants snapping in the breeze, fans and friends, school mates and old classmates all about you—and you have THE—spectacle of the year.

A challenge to the entire tribe of the Sioux, and when the invader arrives for the great battle on October 24, he'll find a united war camp—owners and guardians of a great Sioux tradition—loyalty.

Homecoming Program Will Be More Pretentious Than Ever Before; Pioneers, Shrine To Aid In Festival

The far flung battle cry of the Sioux will ring over Memorial field October 24 to the ears of hundreds of returning University Alumni, to scores of early pioneers, and to more than a thousands students as the Nodaks celebrate their traditional Homecoming with the city of Grand Forks joining in its fiftieth anniversary celebration and Shriners of the Northwest adding their bit to the glamour of the celebration.

Officials of the three celebrations promise that if ever there was a grand and glorious festival in Grand Forks this will be it. The co-operation of every University unit, of every business place, and of all the Nobles of Shrinedom has been promised to make this year's Homecoming, just a little better than any ever staged.

All the traditional events of the affair have been retained on the program and additional attractions are planned. Sports critics are unanimous in their opinion that Oregon is the most formidable foe to face the Sioux in the history of its Homecoming games.

The regular Homecoming convocation pep-rally will be held Thursday evening instead of during the regular convocation hour as in previous years. Nodaks will gather in the armory at 8 P. M. to hear President Thomas F. Kane welcome back the returning alumni. Coach C. A. West and Dr. C. W. Spears, Oregon mentor, will introduce their teams and they with the respective captains will make brief addresses. Prominent alumni of both schools who are present at the gathering will be introduced. Music will be furnished by John

Don McCarthy

Howard's University Band. Pep Captain Don McCarthy is in charge of arrangements for the event and Frank Webb, alumni secretary is assisting with plans for the returning grads. The program will be broadcast over KFJM.

The traditional alumni banquet Friday evening will be the highlight of that day's program. Fred J. Traynor, president of the Alumni Association will preside. John E. Howard is arranging musical entertainment for the affair and among the alumni who will speak are listed, John Hancock, '03, William Boyce, '17 of Syracuse, New York, Attorney A. J. Lynch, '13 of Seattle and J. Bliss, '08 of Valley City. Coach Spears will also be a guest speaker at the alumni banquet. Graduates of Dartmouth, Dr. Spears' alma mater and of Minnesota University where he coached four years, have been invited to join the Nodak alumni at the banquet.

A campus bonfire at 7:30 P. M. will be followed

John Hancock

The pioneer theme will dominate in the gigantic parade which opens festivities Homecoming Day.

Forming at North Third Street at 10:45 A. M. the parade will march down University Avenue to Fourth Street, up Fourth Street to Kittson Avenue, down Third Street to DeMers Avenue, crossing the bridge over to East Grand Forks and returning to continue its procession up Third Street.

More than 35 merchants and business men have announced their plans to enter floats in the parade. This is the first time in the history of Homecoming parades that prizes have been offered for downtown floats. University organizations will have their names on their parade entries. It is expected that the parade will be at least twelve blocks long, according to Lambert Huppeler, student Homecoming chairman.

The parade will be lead by four University cheer leaders garbed in special Homecoming regalia. The floats entered by University organizations will follow preceding the official car. Old settlers will be next in the procession followed by the Shrine bodies, which will include their band, float, patrol, drum and bugle corps in order. The uptown floats by a parade through the city. The Nodak rooting kings Granny Tharp, Hutch Hazlett and Charles Long will lead the Sioux whoops at the camp fire and head the procession of warriors that will wend its way up Second Avenue and Third Street where a downtown rally will be held between the Dacotah and Frederick hotels. Pep King McCarthy will present Coaches West and Spears, Captains Burma and Schulz.

Overcoming the handicap of blindness in the later years of his life and returning to public service is the achievement of Dean Roger W. Cooley, 72-year-old dean of the school of law at the University.

Dean Roger W. Cooley

Dean Cooley's eyesight began to fail last summer and physicians could offer him no hope of recovery. Within a week he was totally blind.

Some years ago he taught Herbert Jeffrey of Grand Forks, a law student who was blind, and he knew that Mr. Jeffrey had studied a system whereby he could both write and read with the use of finger tips. The dean called upon Mr. Jeffrey and asked for lessons on the "point system." After three months of study, Dean Cooley mastered the points and he is now able to read his notes.

With the opening of the University this fall he returned to his position in the law school.

ALUMNI CLUBS

University of North Dakota alumni clubs in the far corners of the states are not forgetting their alma mater, word from secretaries of several of the organizations would indicate.

Attorney Fred S. Duggen, '99, of the Spokane Alumni group writes that the club is interested in learning some of the new Nodak songs and yells. His daughter, he says, has been placed in charge of music for the club and they are anxious to keep pace with the song and yell trends at the University. The club is planning a meeting at an early date.

Alumni of both the University and the North Dakota Agricultural College will assemble in a joint meeting October 31 to receive telegraphic records of the Sioux-Bison game at Memorial field. R. A. Heising, president of the New York club is in charge of arrangements.

Sioux gridsters, their coaches and Frank Webb, alumni secretary were guests of the Aberdeen, S. D., alumni group when the University team played South Dakota University there October 10. Frank Wyttenbach, '29 presided. Talks were given by Art Netcher, '09, Bert Johnson, '16, Ada Flemington, '13 and Mr. Webb. Coach C. A. West presented member of his team and discussed football at the University.

Hilda Birkeland and Theodore Olson were married at Fargo August 28. Mr. Olson is principal of the high school at Donnybrook.

Herbert F. "Jack" Horner, former general counsel of Northwest Grain Association has announced the opening of a law office on October 1, 1931 at 561 New Chamber of Commerce, Minneapolis, Minn., specializing in grain law in the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana and Wisconsin.

Mr. Horner formerly practiced law as a partner in the firm Lovell and Horner, Fargo, N. D.

Kenneth Leiby finished his medical course at the University of Pennsylvania as one of the high men of his class, which aided him in getting into the Pennsylvania General Hospital for a two year internship.

Harlan Nelson of Crookston is co-author with Dr. F. L. Audrieth of the faculty of the department of chemistry of the University of Illinois of an article published in the April issue of the Chemical Review and reprinted in pamphlet form. The article is entitled "Electrodeposition of Metals from Non-Aqueous Solvents."

Harlan Nelson

Frank J. Boozenny is doing graduate work at the University of California. He writes: "The magazine is indeed enjoyable. It gives a vivid picture of the functioning of our Alma Mater." He lives at 2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, California.

U. N. D. Graduates who received degrees from Northwestern University last June are: Ernest LeRoy Grinnell degree of Doctor of Medicine; Earl M. Haugrud, '29 degree of bachelor of medicine; Lester P. Veigel, '28, doctor of medicine; and Roy Robertson, '28, doctor of medicine. Dr. Grinnell has opened an office in the Kelsey block in Grand Forks. He also plans to practice in Thompson and vicinity and will go there twice each week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thompson (Geneva Nelson, whose wedding took place in July are living at Argyle, Minnesota.

'28 Berdella Mellum and Dr. R. Robertson were married August 16 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Margaret Mellum of Petersburg. They will make their home at Mill Valley, Calif.

The Bath Tub Murder

By Mrs. L. R. Dooley, Tulsa Junior League. One of a series of TIME advertisements prepared by Junior Leaguers.

In 1793 revolutionary terrorists controlled France. The Girondins (idealistic moderates) had been defeated. Three men ruled Paris: Danton with his Cordeliers, Robespierre with his Jacobins, and one who was too suspicious, too sincere for party attachment, Jean Paul Marat.

Marat, at this time near death from a painful skin disease contracted in two years of hiding from political enemies in the sewers of Paris, was confined to his home. There, burning with his malady, his political spleen, his consuming energy, he spent his days in a treated bath, compiling his daily pamphlets. He was so engaged on the late afternoon of Saturday, July 13, 1793.

As TIME, had it been published in 1793, would have reported subsequent events:

... Long a sufferer from pruritis (malignant eczema), Jean Paul Marat, 50, Swiss M.D., potent revolutionary pamphleteer, erstwhile pill-mixer in England, ingenious experimenter in physics, correspondent of the late great Ben Franklin, was accustomed to write his daily "Journal de la Republique Francaise," receive visitors, in the bathroom of his Paris apartment. There, soaking in the medicated waters of a shoe-shaped bath, a sheet to pull about his shoulders, a writing-board across his knees, he found surcease from his affliction, prepared with some composure lists for the guillotine. Above him, on the wall, were a map of France and two pistols; above the pistols the written words: "La Mort."

To this apartment, with its strangely-used salle de bain, came last week a fresh-faced country miss. Pleasantly she gave her name: Marie Anne Charlotte Corday D'Armont; her business, news from Caen, where Marat's exiled foes, the Girondins, had fled. (TIME, June 10). She was unwillingly admitted, escorted to the bath by Marat's housekeeper and common-law wife, one Simonne Evrard. Left alone, they talked: the neatly-gloved caller, handsome in ash blond hair, white bonnet; the naked, repellently-ill patriot.

Shortly Simonne Evrard heard a feeble cry: "A moi, ma bonne amie, a moi!" Bursting in, she found Pamphleteer Marat stabbed, dying, the bathwater fouled with blood. Vainly she tried to stop the flow with her hands, screamed shrilly for help which quickly came.

Aloof, poised, Assassiness Corday did not resist arrest.

Questioned, Mlle. Corday, 24, convent-trained, descendant of Dramatist Corneille, admitted the killing, insisted she was no common murderess; surrendered from beneath her fichu her baptismal certificate pinned carefully to an heroic manifesto flaying Marat's terrorism; also a sheath for the fatal ebony-handled dinner knife, purchased the day before for two francs.

On trial July 17th, asked by dread Prosecutor Antoine Fouquier-Tinville if she had practiced the death-blow (the knife penetrated neatly between 1st and 2nd ribs, pierced lung and aorta) Mlle. Corday replied, indignant: "The wretch! He takes me for an assassin!"

Condemned, she refused a priest, spent her last hours posing for Portraitist Hauer, his payment a lock of her shorn hair. Then, in red chemise, she began the jolting journey through rain to the guillotine....

Cultivated Americans, impatient with cheap sensationalism and windy bias, turn increasingly to publications edited in the historical spirit. These publications, fair-dealing, vigorously impartial, devote themselves to the public weal in the sense that they report what they see, serve no masters, fear no groups.
