Presenting the Follies

Sure, it takes long hours of practice, a few minor squabbles, a way with needle and thread and a tremendous amount of spirit, but the students of the University wouldn't know how to react if there came a time that there was no such thing as Follies.

They are here again, 28 years after the original production. In presenting the twentieth show this year, the North Dakota undergraduate chapter of Sigma Delta Chi is again offering the residents of Grand Forks and the surrounding territory a production which has won national acclaim.

It was in April, 1925, that the first of the long series of annual productions was presented in the old Orpheum theater, now the Dakota theater.

But students never change basically and they still find Follies an opportunity to develop special talents, work off a bit of excess energy and produce a show that properly represents the school in its magnitude and quality. It remains a testing ground for co-operation and ingenuity and each year presents a wide variety of new themes and music.

Follies has grown. When it was hatched in the minds of Roy French, head of UND's journalism department, and undergraduates Armin F. Rhode and Charles Evans, it was the beginning of a tradition—a tradition that has grown and improved over the years. But Follies has had its troubles. The depression year of 1932 caused cancellation of the event and attempts to revive it in 1933 and 1934 failed. Again from 1942 to 1945, during World War II, the show was not produced.

But the show came back, is here again and shows prospects of continuing as long as students display a flair for dancing, a liking for work and a yen for flashy costumes and down-right fun.
