Free Translation:

The goat is looking at her kids and says:
"I am going to the basar. Take care of yourselves. Don't open the door to anybody and stay inside the room."

After some time a wolf saw the goat going out. Then he went to the goat house to eat the kids. The wolf said to the kids; "Open the door because your mother has come back." The kids said: "You don't sound like our mother."
After that the wolf went to the grocer to get some chocolate in order to change his voice. After having eaten the chocolate the wolf went to the kids and asked them to open the door.
The kids said: "Put your feet up to the window so that we can see them." When the kids saw the wolf's black feet they said:
"Our mother's feet are white, therefore we will not open the door." Then he went to the baker in order to get some dough.
After having applied the dough to his feet he went back to the kids. After putting his feet on the window he said: "Open the door your mother has come back." When they heard their mother's voice they became very happy and opened the door.
The moment the door opened the wolf went inside the room.
When they saw the wolf they tried to hide in the room in order to save their life. One by one the wolf ate them all except one. After some time the goat returned from the basar; when she saw the door open she was surprised. When she does not see the kids she starts to call each one by name. When she called the little one which was hiding in the house, he replied: "Mother here am I." The little kid told the whole story to his mother. The goat went searching inside the forest and found the wolf sleeping under a tree.

The goat went near the wolf and felt that the kids were jumping inside his stomach. The goat cut open the wolf's stomach with scissors and all the kids came out. She filled his stomach with stones and then took the kids inside the house. After a while the wolf woke up and he was thirsty. when the wolf went to the well to drink water he fell into the well. when the wolf fell into the well the goat and the kids were very happy.

Two Little Bears

1 One morning the little bears get up. 2 They never saw the Spring before. 3 They didn't have any idea about the warmth of the sun. 4 They didn't want to leave their home. 5 Their heart beat tells them, "Children, this is not the time for you to go far. 6 This world is very big. 7 Perhaps they may follow the voice of their heart beat. 8 They enjoyed themselves very much and ran. 9 They told secrets of the forest in each others ears. 10 They played and they hid themselves and one of them always lost because he couldn't climb on long trees. 11 That day while playing they go. 12 They eat small branches. 13 They also enjoy eating weeds. 14 Delicate tree branches let them climb them. 15 The little birds tell them that the world is very big. 16 Besides that, they were afraid and cried and wanted to go to mother. 17 They ask the sun "please go and find our mother. 18 But when a person is alone, he has no company. 19 After these two got away from home they got lost. 20 They got interested in the weather. 21 The little bears had never seen a calf before. 22 He wonders why the calf is tied. 23 He asks him how he can stand. 24 The little bears say to the calf, "Have you seen our mother?" 25 The calf replies, "I only see my mother." 26 Then the little bears ask the horse and he tells them that they are too little for such a trip. 27 The horse becomes surprised to hear their talk. 28 Then the bears go in search of some home where they can rest. 29 They climb a tree and see a bird's nest with a beautiful bird sitting in it, and they ask the bird, "Where is your mother and who feeds you?" 30 The bird says, "My mother feeds me and makes my nest." 31 Upon hearing this the bears hearts become very deeply wounded because their mother is away from them. 32 Then a raccoon follows them. 33 During this a crow teases them saying, "Where did you go? Why? Why?" After hearing the crow's voice, the two get frightened and fall from the tree. 35 The crow says, "Well done! Well done!" 36 After so much exercise, the two get tired. 37 Because their mother does not happen to be with them at this time, who could give them comfort and love. 38 Then the two go to sleep. 39 They have a dream in which all the happenings of the day come to remembrance-- how they talked to the different birds and the horse and calf. 40 While dreaming they are enjoying themselves. 41 Their very upset mother is searching for them. 42 After smelling her little children, she finds them sleeping. 43 Then they awake and she loves them.

White cat says, "Okay, I'll divide the bread." 18. So he divided it in two. 19. There was a monkey up the tree under which the cats were sitting. 20. He was watching the cats divide the bread. 21. Then the one pan went down and the other one up. 33. From the heavy side the monkey took a little bit of bread and put it in his mouth. 34. While the cats kept looking to be sure of getting their rightful share, 35 the monkey ate a piece of bread from the other pan because it was now the heaviest. 36. In this manner the monkey ate all the bread. 37. The cats just kept looking at his mouth.
