THE STORY OF THE MONKEY AND THE TURTLE

1. That I will tell you is the story of the monkey and the turtle. 2. One day the friends, monkey and turtle, were walking. 3. They saw a banana tree that had fallen because of strong wind, blocking the road. 4. The monkey said to the turtle, "My friend, turtle, look at that plant that is blocking the road. 5. What kind of a plant do you suppose it is?" 6. The turtle answered, "I don't know my friend, monkey, but it looks healthy, doesn't it?" 7. "Yes," said the monkey, "It probably fell because of the strong wind last night. 8. Let's hurry and look at the plant." 9. So hurrying, the friends went over to the plant that was blocking the road and saw that it was a banana tree. 10. Right away the crafty monkey thought, "If I get this plant and plant it, I will get much money from it because it will bear fruit quickly. 11. I will sell the fruit and get much money. 12. This plant has to be mine."

13. So he said to his friend, the turtle, "My friend, turtle, if I plant this plant I will get much money. 15. You must give this plant to me." 16. Just as fast the turtle answered, "No my friend, monkey, I need the money as much as you do. 17. But why don't we divide the plant?"

18. Though the monkey didn't like that idea, he agreed because he felt that the turtle would never let him have the plant. 19. And then the monkey thought, "If I can't have the whole plant, I must have the end that has all the leaves because it is already leaf-covered and if I plant this end it will bear fruit faster, while the other end that hasn't any leaves probably won't bear fruit for a long time. 20. So he said to the turtle, "My friend turtle, I want the end that has the leaves and you can have the end that's left."

21. His friend, the turtle, being a good friend, agreed and so they divided the plant. 22. The friends separated. 23. The turtle planted his half of the plant in his back yard where it would be reached by just a little sun while the monkey planted his half in a place that was exposed to the sun. 24. After a few weeks the monkey saw that his plant wasn't flourishing nor getting tall. Instead it's leaves were drying up.

25. Meanwhile in the next yard the turtle could see that his half of the plant that didn't have any leaves was flourishing, getting tall and leaves were starting to come out. 26. After a few more weeks the turtle's plant started to bear fruit.

27. Overjoyed, he went to his friend, the monkey, to see what happened to his plant. 28. And happily he hurriedly told the news to his friend, the monkey, that his banana tree is bearing fruit already and in no time he will be able to sell it and earn money. 29. The monkey was so angry when he heard this but he couldn't do anything about it because he was the one who chose the part of the banana tree that he liked.

30. This story teaches that even though the monkey may be crafty, someone can still put something over on him. 31. This is where the Philippine saying came from.

Free Translation: 1. One beautiful morning in May a young girl named Grace decided that it was time that she learned to cook. 2. She marched to the kitchen and boldly announced to her whole family that she will be the one to cook that day. 3. The whole family laughed when they heard the presumptuous words, but the child had already made up her mind that she will learn how to cook that day, and she is sure that she will learn if given a chance, so that after she coaxed them the whole household agreed. 4. They all left the kitchen and braced themselves for whatever will happen. 5. The only one left in the kitchen to help Grace was her older sister Rachel, and so the ceremony begins. 6. When the frying pan was good and hot, Rachel laughingly mentioned that she did not have the ingredients ready to be sauted. 7. In sudden realization, Grace quickly grabbed the hot pan and just as quickly threw it in the sink when it burned her fingers. 8. After this bold start, she carefully took out the ingredients to use and started to cut them up. 9. When these were ready, she put the pan on again and started sauteing. 10. First is the pork. 11. While she was waiting for the pork to cook, she thought she would read a comic. 12. She was still reading when her older sister came and startled her with shouts of "Fire, fire; Grace!" 13. When she looked at the smoking pan, her heart sank when she saw that all the pork was burnt. 14. In all this excitement, she grabbed the pan and quickly dropped it in the sink. 15. When it started sputtering again, the girl got scared and so she turned on the faucet and all the burnt pork was wasted in the sink. 16. Next she did the garlic. 17. She did this well. 18. She didn't know what to do with the garlic, so she mixed this with the onions. 19. Because it takes longer to cook onions than garlic, by the time the onions were done, the garlic was burnt. 20. So she again had to throw this away, since the burnt garlic would give a bitter taste to her cooking. By this time, after all these experiences, it was getting close to 12 o'clock, and the household was getting hungry, but the poor child had not even started anything yet. 22. Poor Grace was close to tears as she didn't know what to do, when her older sister got to thinking that if the child has nothing to show the family, she may dislike cooking for the rest of her life; because of this sad experience, so that she started to do it herself, but did let Grace help her. 23. The little girl was so happy, and when they showed their cooking to the family, they were all so pleased and were convinced that their little Grace was growing up and close to being a young lady.
