See Great Year At UND

UND 'Skyline' Changing

Take a good look at this UND "skyline." It won't be this way long. This is a recent aerial picture of the University's picturesque, coulee-bank campus. But new buildings, popping up all over, are changing the picture rapidly — and more are still to come.

Fun, Thrills Go With 'Solid' Education

It's going to be a glorious year at UND.

And all it takes to get in on the fun, thrills and entertainment (as well as a profitable year of good, solid education) is to fill out an enrollment blank next September.

Freshmen entering UND for the first time, will see the "whole show" for the first time; returning students will find new features added with many new touches and improvements added to the old whirl of activity.

This is the year that will see:

The new streamlined, modern Student Union open—with eight lanes of new bowling alleys; its shiny new snack bar and cafeteria; its "acres" of dance floor and

Please! Pass This Copy Along!

This issue has been prepared especially for students interested in enrolling at UND. Alumni and others are urged to pass it on to some interested high school graduate or other prospective student.

Pride of the University!

Do you mean to say you get college credit for this? Why it's fun—playing in the University bands under the direction of Jovial John Howard—and going on those jaunts to Chicago and all over North Dakota and the middle west. Even if you aren't a musician, you'll get a kick out of the band. It's exciting to watch, going through its intricate maneuvers at a football game in the Stadium. It's inspiring to hear, with its stirring repertoire. (And UND bands can swing it, too!)

UND on Threshold Of New, Golden Era

Freshmen embarking on a four-year academic career at UND this fall will enter the school just as it launches a new, golden era in its development.

Before they take their final capped-and-gowned commencement march in the spring of 1955, the new students will see these things come into reality:

1. The new $525,000 Memorial Student Union, with its countless, modern facilities for student recreation and relaxation will open this coming winter.

2. The new $875,000 field house, now under construction, will be ready for the 1950-51 basketball season. Already they are talking about holding the 1952 state Class A high school cage tournament there. (The place will seat 7,000 for basketball encounters.)

3. Two new, modern dormitories, one for men and one for women, will be completed before the 1951-52 school year, at a cost of $750,000.

4. A new $400,000 Engineering building will be completed to centralize the activities of that important University college.

5. The State Medical Center, now just getting organized, will expand greatly its service to the state in providing more doctors and greater opportunity for better health.

6. The new $750,000 lignite laboratory, now far into the construction stage, will carry out the experiments designed to enhance the value of North Dakota's important lignite resources.

7. New Education, Administration and Auditorium buildings are scheduled for construction.

Freshmen beginning work when the University opens its doors for its 67th academic year in September, will find an up-to-date educational plant and a highly rated faculty ready to start them off on their college careers. And, before their very eyes, they will see an even Greater University of North Dakota growing into reality.

Student Groups Stress Campus Religious Life

Seven student denominational groups are active in keeping religion an important part of University campus life.

The eight are the Lutheran Student association, the Newman club for Catholic students, the Methodists' Wesley Foundation, the Canterbury club for the Episcopal group, the Presbyterians' Westminster club, the Federated group for Baptist and Congregational students, and the Hillel club, organization of Jewish students.

These groups, joined in an All-Campus Religious Council, will sponsor Religious Emphasis Week November 5, 6 and 7 this fall. Emphasized will be the role of religion in life.

Expect Great Year at UND

lounges; its spacious game and card room; and its all-new program for student entertainment and relaxation.

The hockey team, playing in the collegiate "big-time" ranks, meets Minnesota, Michigan State, Colorado College and Harvard, as well as some of Canada's top notch toughies, on the home ice.

The new $875,000 field house completed in time for next winter's basketball schedule—with a home game scheduled with Hamline as well as the traditional series with the downstate Bison.

Bright football prospects under a new coach, Frank Zazula. Five home games, including the traditional NDAC struggle, and the Homecoming clash with South Dakota U, are on the schedule.

The University is always a busy and pleasant place to be. And making it even more so this year will be all these events—plus such other mainstays on the calendar of events as Homecoming, the Carney Sing, the Winter Carnival, the Flickertail Follies and a glittering, if well-spaced, schedule of social events.

Bargain!

New Buildings 'Free' to State

North Dakota taxpayers are paying for only two of the six buildings in the current construction program at UND. The state is footing the bill for the new Engineering building and the Fieldhouse.

Of the others, the $525,000 Student Union is being paid for from student and alumni contributions; the $750,000 lignite research plant is being financed by federal appropriation; while the money for the $400,000 women's dormitory and the $350,000 men's dorm comes from self-liquidating bonds.

Cost of the entire building program totals $3,255,000.

Dean Keefer Advises Incoming Freshmen

Chief freshman adviser on the campus is Junior Division Dean Daryle E. Keefer. He came to the University a year ago, well qualified for this work. He served as admissions head at the University of New Mexico, as a navy lieutenant commander in the South Pacific and on the faculty at Drake university before coming here. He received his Ph. D. degree at Northwestern university in 1945. Dean Keefer heads a staff of advisers and consultants equally well qualified to get new students off on the right track at UND

"Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Grand Forks, N. D., under the act of August 24, 1912. Published by the University for alumni and former students of the University of North Dakota in the interests of the University, monthly, ten times a year except July and August."

Here's How to Register--It's Simple

By December 1, Maybe!

Fieldhouse Fills Big Need

Here's an architect's sketch of how the new fieldhouse is going to look.

Historic Sioux-Bison basketball battles in the dinky, dusty and dingy Armory are a thing of the past.

The old Armory is scheduled to go into moth-balls this winter in favor of the new $875,000 fieldhouse-gymnasium, said to be one of the most elaborate physical education plants in this section of the country.

Present plans call for the completion of the arena, which will house the main basketball court, by

Dec. 1, 1950. The entire structure is expected to be finished by July 1, 1951.

Construction Under Way

Construction of the huge plant already is under way. Evacuation is nearly completed and footings for the building have been poured.

Two distinct sections will be incorporated in the structure.

First, the fieldhouse proper, or arena, will house such sports events as basketball, boxing, indoor football, track, basketball, softball, golf and wrestling.

To Have Dirt Floor

The arena will have a dirt floor measuring 130 by 210 feet. A portable wooden floor will be put down for basketball games. Seating capacity will be 7,500, with 3,750 of the seats being permanent.

The other section of the building will be called the gymnasium. It will be 100 feet wide and 200 feet long, and will have three floors.

Offices, locker rooms, whirl-pool baths and other facilities will be on the first floor. Two gymnasiums, one 78 by 100 feet and the other 60 by 80 feet, will be the features of the second floor. On the third floor will be three classrooms, three squash and handball courts, a boxing ring and a projection room for audio-visual equipment.

North Dakota has 11 colleges of various types and descriptions—but only ONE University.

Sept. 11-12 Big Freshman Days On U Calendar

If you are a high school graduate and plan to attend University of North Dakota next fall, there are just two simple things that you have to do:

First: Be SURE that your high school sends your credits to the UND registrar, because these must be on file here before you can register.

Second: Just show up at the Armory on the University campus at 8:30 a. m. Monday, September 11. You will be guided through the whole enrollment procedure from that time on.

You'll be given English placement, scholastic aptitude, vocational interest, and reading tests during Freshman days, September 11 and 12. Don't let these high sounding names scare you. They're actually fun to take!

Important sessions for freshmen include:

Sept. 11: 8:30 a. m., welcome at Armory; 9 a. m., English placement test; 10 a. m., meet with counselors; 11:15 a. m., fraternity rushing session; 1 p. m., vocational interest and scholastic aptitude test; 4 p. m., session with religious groups; 4:30 p. m., hear Junior Division D. E. Keefer talk about registration.

Sept. 12: 8:30 a. m., reading test; 10 a. m., Merrifield hall, get permits to enter, English section assignments and registration material; prepare programs.

Sept. 13—Complete registration.

Orientation and registration for transfer students is scheduled for September 14. Upperclassmen will register September 15 and classwork actually will get under way Monday, September 18.

Any additional information regarding the University may be obtained by writing to the Registrar, University Station, Grand Forks, N. D.

Education Deadline For GI's July, '51

Former GI's with "education time" coming under federal laws had best get their collegiate careers started soon.

VA officials point out that the ex-GI's must either be in school by the second semester of the coming school year or must enroll for summer school in 1951 if they are to maintain their eligibility.

The absolute deadline for getting an education started under the GI bill is July 25, 1951. The VA will allow few if any interruptions in veterans' education after that time.

Full information regarding education rights of veterans may be obtained by writing A. P. Cole, officer in charge, VA Office, University of North Dakota.

Housing Situation Looking Up

The housing situation is looking up at UND. Pictured above are the architects' conceptions of the two new dormitories to be built on the campus this summer—the $350,000 men's dorm (top) and the $400,000 residence for women students below. These ultra-modern housing facilities will take care of 115 men and 120 girls, respectively.

Accent on Youth—That's Fall Theme Here

The accent is going to be on youth at UND.

That will be the situation next fall when the new group of students enroll, University administrative officials report.

Instead of armed service veterans, wise in the ways of the world, the new students are going to be right out of high school and not quite so sure of themselves as the average students of the past five years.

The average age of the new freshman will be about 18 years, as contrasted to the 22-year-old average of the past few years.

The lower age quotient however is the more normal situation for a state university. UND and its staff members are looking forward eagerly to a new crop of students that it expects to be more refreshing, if less sophisticated.

OFFER BUSINESS TRAINING

The school of commerce was organized in 1917-18 as a four year course. The school gives a solid, substantial training in fundamental business principals.

Rushing---'Rush, Rush, Rush'

Rush Week Busies Co-eds, How You Get In on the Fun

The busiest and most exciting week in a girl's college career is that of formal rushing. Looking at it from the point of view of both the rushees and the sorority girls, this week is aptly named, because it's just "rush, rush, rush" for six solid days.

To begin with, girls wishing to join a sorority and go through rush week must sign a list which is kept by the dean of women. Girls may either sign the list in person when they arrive at the University, or they may write to the dean of women and ask to have their name added to the list.

This year rush week opens at 3 p. m. Saturday, September 9, with a meeting of all rushees conducted by the dean of women, Alice M. Hanson. Specific details

Fraternities Do Some Rushing Too, Fellows

An excellent opportunity to meet fellow students is extended to all men interested in joining a fraternity. The only prerequisite is that those interested must sign a rush list after which the rushees go to a minimum of three fraternity houses.

If a rushee does not pledge a fraternity within two days after registration, the exact date of which will be published by the Interfraternity council, he must wait a period of two weeks before he can place his name on the rush list again. After these two weeks, the rushee's name must be on the rush list for at least a week before he can pledge a fraternity.

A meeting will be held in room 300 Merrifield hall on Monday, September 11, for all those interested in joining a fraternity. At this time, an orientation lecture on fraternities will be given by Daryle E. Keefer, dean of the junior division.

concerning rush week will be revealed at this meeting.

The rush week functions begin with teas at all seven sorority houses on Sunday, September 10, and end the following Friday with a "preference" luncheon. The days in between are spent attending luncheons and dinners. The Sunday teas enable every rushee to visit each house for a 20-minute period as a preliminary means of getting acquainted.

As for the required wardrobe for the various functions, suits are always appropriate. Heels, gloves and a hat are a necessity and a dressy dress can always be worn. Fall or winter clothes are favored over summer cottons.

Girls registering too late for fall rushing still have an opportunity to join a sorority by signing up for informal rushing. This period is conducted at two different times throughout the school year. The first informal rushing period begins shortly after the end of formal rush week, while the second period takes place at the beginning of the second semester in February.

During formal rush week, most of the rushees stay in the Women's Gym, which is located on the campus. As soon as the week is over, however, the girls move into either a sorority house or one of the campus dormitories.

Additional information concerning rush week may be obtained by writing to the dean of women. Although reactions to rush week differ, it is truly a week never to be forgotten.

Just Think — $72,000 For Going to College

You can't afford to pass this up: The average college graduate, it is estimated, makes $72,000 more than the non-college man in a lifetime.

That's an $18,000-per-year return on a four-year college course.

Like Nursing? U Lends Hand To R. N. Trainees

By JANET HORNSTEIN

Are you at least 17 years old? Healthy? Willing to work? Resourceful? Do you like people? It takes all this and special knowledge (the kind you get through special training) to be a registered nurse.

Once you're an "R. N." you have scores of colorful, lifetime jobs to choose from. The welcome mat is really out for you when you're a registered professional nurse.

The University of North Dakota plays a large part in training for a nursing career.

The University admits students presenting fifteen high school credits, which must include three units in English. Candidates for admission should apply to the registrar for necessary admission blanks.

It is recommended that candidates have a personal interview with the director of the division of nursing education, Miss Beatrice Horsey. The state board of nurse examiners passes on all applications. Necessary records may be obtained from the division of nursing education at the University.

The first two years of a nurse's training are spent on the University campus. Here she takes courses necessary to a foundation for her career.

The third year is spent obtaining clinical experience at Deaconess hospital in Grand Forks. The student lives at the nurse's home where there is no charge for board, room and laundry. Students furnish their own uniforms and duty shoes.

While at the hospital the nurse learns medical, surgical and obstetrical duties and special fields of nursing.

The fourth year the student obtains further clinical experience, not now available in North Dakota, but at the University of Minnesota school of nursing.

Here she studies pediatrics, psychiatry, communicable diseases and/or tuberculosis, out-patient and rural nursing.

Why not be a nurse?

May Is Follies Time

Every May is Flickertail Follies time at UND. If you have a secret desire to parade your talents, (and who hasn't?), the Follies is the place you can get your stage tryout. It's no exclusive organization. Four hundred students sang, danced and acted in the 1950 production, most of them amazing themselves and the audience with their proficiency. Adding zest to the 25th annual Follies show this year was the presence of a Life magazine photographer and the resulting "splash" in Life. The scene above is from the 1950 winning combined act, Phi Deltis and Delta Gammas in "Silly Sea Scenes."

UND Education---A Good Buy

While the cost of everything has gone up since the war, it actually costs five dollars less "on the line" to enroll at UND now than it did in 1940.

The drop in the registration fee came about through elimination of a five dollar "forfeit deposit fee" formerly charged.

Today—in most of the colleges and schools—state residents pay a $46.75 registration fee, while non-resident students pay $73.25.

If you think that is expensive, consider this:

It has been estimated that each UND student costs North Dakota taxpayers $318 to keep in college.

Campus Rooms Available -- Here's How to Get Them

Whether you are home or away at college, you need shelter and a place to sleep. If you are wondering about your home away from home at the University write to Loren F. Swanson, housing director, University campus.

An application form will be sent to you, fill it out and mail immediately. Although rooms are still available, future students are urged to apply early, Swanson said. Date for occupancy of the dorms on campus is Sunday, September 10.

Girls dormitories on the campus are Davis hall and Larimore, which is under Wesley college jurisdiction. New dorms will not be ready until the fall of 1951.

Freshmen men, first semester, will have a chance to room at East hall, reserved strictly for freshmen. The hall, the newest on campus, has new equipment, and a new knotty pine lounge and recreational room.

Any information regarding rooms should be addressed to Director Swanson.

All-Campus Barbecue To Usher in Activities

New students will get the inside dope on some "secrets" of campus life early next fall. One of the opening events on the fall schedule is an all-campus barbecue set for September 21 from 6 to 9 p. m. Sponsored by Blue Key service fraternity, this unique get-together will serve to introduce the school's songs and yells to freshmen and other UND newcomers. The Interfraternity Council's new Pep club will make its first appearance at the barbecue.

HAVE NEW BUILDING

The school of medicine, created in 1905, is a basic two-year school offering the freshman and sophomore years of medicine in the pre-clinical medical sciences. A new medical building, built in 1949, houses the school.

Get Into the Sioux Sports Whirl!

Football, hockey, basketball, track on the intercollegiate side—and an “individualized” intramural sports program designed to make every man and woman on the campus a participant, that’s the UND athletic program. Big, brick Memorial Stadium, seating 7,000 for grid contests, is the center of the fall athletic whirl.

From A to Z---That’s UND Curriculum

Everything from A to Z—art to zoology—is offered by the University’s seven major divisions and 35 departments, with all the work directed by nationally-recognized faculty members and fully indorsed by the nation’s leading accrediting agencies.

Founded in 1883 as a “one-building baby” in the midst of the wheatfields west of Grand Forks, the University has grown to an institution of 26 modern buildings—with six more either under construction or in the advanced planning stage.

The major units at UND are the college of science, literature and arts; the college of engineering; the schools of education, law, medicine and commerce, and the graduate division.

Hundreds of courses are offered annually in such widely varied subjects as accounting, anatomy, anthropology, art, bacteriology, business education, chemistry, classical languages, economics, business, marketing, management, political science, education, English, geography, geology, health, history, home economics, industrial arts, journalism, mathematics, military science, music, philosophy, physical education, physics, physiology, Romance languages, Scandinavian languages, sociology, social work and speech.

In the graduate division, students with bachelor’s degrees who maintain high scholastic standards are allowed to work toward master’s and doctor’s degrees.

So, no matter what field you’re interested in, you can either take it or prepare for it at UND.

STUDY N. D. RESOURCES

The UND School of Mines investigates the mineral resources of the state. Much work has been done on lignite and clay. This department has co-operated with the U. S. Bureau of Mines in investigating processes and equipment for treatment of lignite.

Grid Coach Sees 'Interesting' 1950 Season

The loss of many experienced players leaves University football prospects for 1950 "only fair," according to Head Coach Frank Zazula. But he promises an "interesting" season for Sioux grid fans.

Zazula, who moved up from assistant to head coach position when Dick Miller resigned this past spring to take a high school coaching position in Canton, O., figures the Sioux do not have the necessary depth in line. And then he also has the problem of finding a quarterback, an important position on his T-formation style of attack.

Bad weather reduced spring practice to virtually nothing, leaving the bulk of the work tutoring replacements for the few days before the opening game of the season here September 16 with Moorhead Teachers.

Roy Hausauer, former Wahpeton high school mentor, will assist Zazula. Hausauer will handle the backs, with Zazula, who was in charge of the backfield under Miller, working with the linemen.

The schedule:

- Sept. 16 — Moorhead Teachers, here.
- Sept. 22 — Iowa Teachers, here.
- Sept. 30 — Morningside, there.
- Oct. 6 — Bemidji Teachers, here.
- Oct. 14 — South Dakota U, here.
(Homecoming)
- Oct. 21 — South Dakota State, there.
- Oct. 28 — North Dakota State, here.
(Dad's Day)
- Nov. 4 — Augustana, there.
- Nov. 11 — Open.
- Nov. 18 — Kentucky, there.

Students May Obtain Loans for Schooling

Funds for temporary loans are available to freshmen and underclassmen as well as to senior students, along with a number of educational loans. This loan fund is made up of contributions from campus organizations, alumni groups, companies and individual benefactors.

No Stuffed Shirt!

Won't Bite Hand He Shakes

This is the picture of a University president.

But — wait a minute.

Take a good look at him, he won't bite!

In fact, he's entirely different from what you've probably imagined a college president is like.

This one is no stuffed shirt.

He likes people, particularly young people.

His office, and his home, ALWAYS are open to UND students with problems (and they do have problems!)

He's the friend of everyone on the campus, so, if you're a new freshman, don't be surprised if you have a University president for a friend soon after you arrive here.

If he doesn't meet you any place else, he's going to have you over to his house for a party some fall afternoon. So watch out for that invitation.

Oh yes—he told the editors of this paper to tell you that he's looking forward to seeing you on the campus this fall, that he knows you're going to get a great start in life be begin-

Music, Music, Music:

Band, Madrigal 'Big Time'

If you have any hidden musical talent it'll be found at the University of North Dakota. John E. Howard, band director, and Hywel C. Rowland, Madrigal club director, will make sure of that!

Concerts, tours and just plain fun are on the agenda for a member of either group.

This year's plans for the band include the big trip to Chicago. Tentative plans have also been made for the band to tour to Morningside university at Sioux Falls for the football game there with the UND.

Madrigal, too, will see the bright lights of Chicago with stops at Fargo and Minneapolis en route. The chorus will then, too, make its annual trip to schools, churches and clubs in this area and spend a weekend in Winnipeg.

Madrigal club women members first serve an apprenticeship in the Women's Glee club to become eligible for this chorus. A group of about 50, their greatest effort is perhaps shown in their presentation of the Great Vespers of the Orthodox church which closed their schedule last year.
