NOTE

This special edition of the Alumni Review contains a listing of former UND Medical students, starting with the class of 1909. The summary indicates their present location.

MEN AT WORK: pictured here are Dr. H. E. French, (seated) dean emeritus of the University of North Dakota Medical School, and (standing) Dr. A. F. Jensen, class of '22, and Dr. G. G. Thorgrimson, class of '23. Both Drs. Jensen and Thorgrimson are practicing physicians in Grand Forks, N. D.

Class of '46 Plans Reunion

John M. Kerr ('46) has compiled an interesting summary of the present status of the students who were graduated in 1946 from the UND Medical School.

Kerr is now serving as a doctor with the U. S. Medical Corp, and holds the rank of Captain. He indicated that the class of 22 members was anticipating a ten-year reunion in the spring or fall of 1956 in Grand Forks, and that they were "looking forward to seeing a lot of scenes and all the new improvements we have heard so much about".

In the statistics compiled by Dr. Kerr, he stated that 20 of the 22 students graduated from the UND Medical School were subsidized by the government, with 13 serving in the Army Specialized Training Program and 17 in Navy V-12. Fourteen members of the class have been or are on active duty with the government services. All but two of the class of 22 are married, with 26 future UND students resulting from these marriages.

31 ON STAFF

There are 31 members on the University of North Dakota Medical School faculty, according to Dr. Wilbur F. Potter, Dean of the Medical School.

MEDICAL ADDITION—Workmen above pour concrete footing for a new three-story addition to the University's medical building (visible in background). The new addition, which will double the size of medical school facilities, was started earlier this spring and is expected to be a two-year construction project costing $600,000. When the new addition is finished, it will house the North Dakota state public health laboratory now located in the University's old science building.

Construction Advances on Medical School Addition

Construction is now in full progress on the $600,000 addition to the University of North Dakota Medical school building, with the project slated for completion by 1954.

The new three-story addition will double the size of the present medical school building, with the new addition state public health laboratory, which is presently located in the old science building.

The new structure, which is equal in size to the present center, is being built on the east end of the Medical School Building. The present Medical School Building contains three large lecture rooms, offices and modernly equipped laboratories for anatomy, bacteriology, pathology, physiology, pharmacology, and biochemistry.

The building also contains a number of administrative offices including the Director of the Medical Center, the Dean of the School of Medicine, and the Librarian. The Harley E. Harley E. French Medical library occupies the entire side of the first floor.

Edition Lists Former UND Med. Students

This edition of the Alumni Review represents a tremendous amount of research and compilation. Starting on page 2, you will find a listing of former University of North Dakota students who have received their BS (Arts-Medical) degree at UND. The major share of credit for compiling this list should be given to Dr. H. E. French, Dean Emeritus, UND Medical School, and to the staff of the Alumni Office and the Medical Center, all of whom assisted in the preparation. Every effort has been made to assure the correctness of this listing. The Alumni Office will appreciate being informed of mistakes and of recent changes.

Biochemist Awarded Paris Trip

Dr. William E. Cornatzer, University biochemistry department head, has been awarded an expense-paid trip to Paris, France, to attend the second international congress of biochemistry July 21-27. The award came from the National Science Foundation. It was made on the basis of books and papers written by Dr. Cornatzer and on his research in the field of radioactive isotopes. He expects to make the trip by plane, leaving New York July 19. Mrs. Cornatzer will accompany him. Before leaving for Europe Dr. Cornatzer will participate in a special research symposium on phosphorus metabolism at John Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., June 15-19. He is one of 40 biochemists invited to participate in the discussions which are to be published in book form.

Arrived in July

Dr. Cornatzer arrived here last July to set up the University biochemistry department. Since that time he has received grants totaling $60,000 for research with the North Dakota Cancer Society, the Atomic Energy Commission and the U. S. Public Health division among the contributors.

A native of North Carolina, Dr. Cornatzer came here from the Bowman-Gray School of Medicine at Winston-Salem, N. C., where he taught biochemistry for six years. A paper written by him was read at the first International Congress of Biochemistry at Oxford, England, three years ago.

Is 1 of 19

Dr. Cornatzer was one of 19 biochemists to receive the travel grant to attend the sessions in Paris.
