GRAND FORKS, NORTH DAKOTA - FEBRUARY, 1955

NUMBER 8

Report Grom The Campus

By LLOYD STONE The Varsity Bards (male glee club) recently returned from a tour of the state. In Bismarck they performed for our legislators, and from all reports they made a tremendous hit. In my opinion more of our University groups should get out in the state to show our North Dakota citizens the type of talent being developed at the University.

x x x Many founders day meet-ings have been scheduled around the country. We celebrate this year our 72nd birthday. We received our first appropriation, $30,000, in 1883, when we were still a part of the Dakota Territory. The growth and progress of our alma mater since that time is nothing short of phenomenal. If we continue our progress as rapidly in the next 72 years, our University will be one of the leading educational institutions in the nation.

x x x Founders Day at UND will be held on February 22nd. Adrian McLellan, class of 1937, now President of a bank in Fargo, N. D., will speak at an all University convocation. Alumni are cordially invited to attend.

x x x We still talk of oil progress in North Dakota and spend time thinking of uranium prospects! From press reports which have appeared in several papers in this area, we might believe that uranium is to be found in large quantities in western North Dakota. University staff members from the mining engineering department have spent considerable time in the Bowman, Medora, and New England area but have made no an-nouncement of their findings.

To date we have 459 producing oil wells in North Dakota. Of this total 434 are in the Williston area, 12 in the (Continued on Page Four)

Dinner dancing plans of the University of North Dakota Los Angeles Alumni Club are being forwarded by (seated, left to right) Edith Swinton, first vice president; Hugh Moore, president; Phil Poppler, second vice president; and (standing) John Olson, secretary-treasurer. Faculty Awards Set Up

Formation of the University of North Dakota Alumni Fund for Faculty Improvement with an initial grant of $30,000 available to finance its awards was announced by the UND Alumni Faculty Awards Com-

Cash awards for outstanding teaching and service to the University will be made to faculty members from the fund, according to Dr. E. L. Grinnell, committee chair-

Other committee members are Armin Rohde and Mrs. Milton Kelly of Devils Lake.

3 Receive Grants

Three retired faculty members, recommended by a faculty and alumni committee are the recipients of the first grants from the fund.

The three, each of whom was awarded $200, are Dr. George A. Abbott, Dr. A. M. Rovelstad and Dr. Harley E. French. Other retired, as well as active, staff members will be considered for future grants.

Dr. George W. Starcher, president of the University, and the deans of the various colleges and schools, will make recommendations for several awards to be made in September, 1955.

Factors Outlined

Factors to be considered in judging the teaching effectiveness of the faculty members considered for the awards include organization of subject matter, speaking ability, attitude toward students, knowledge of subject, tolerance to disagreement and the instructor as a "human being."

Dr. Grinnell stated that the donors for the money being used for the grant do not wish (Continued on Page Four)

HONORED AT UND ALUMNI MEETING

The Rev. Rolla P. Currie, curate emeritus of St. Stephen and Incarnation Episcopal Church, Washington, D.C., was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by District of Columbia alumni of the University of North Dakota.

The luncheon was held at the Willard Hotel with Comdr. Richard B. Black, president of the D.C. chapter, presiding. Rev. Currie graduated from the University of North Dakota in 1893 and followed his professional field of entomology until 1945, when he was retired as head of the editorial office of the Bureau of Entomology, Dept. of Agriculture. He then undertook studies at the Episcopal Seminary in Alexandria, Va., which enabled him to be ordained an Episcopal priest in 1946.

On June 5, 1954, the University of North Dakota and Wesley College recognized his outstanding service to his fellowmen by conferring upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Rev. Currie has shown much interest in alumni affairs and this interest, combined with his long experience with the University, was revealed in his remarks at the luncheon, which followed his presentation to the group by Cmdr. Black. Brief talks were also given by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Fred G. Aandahl, 1921, and Brig. Gen. George Lodoen, 1926.

DR. PETER A. MUNCH Research Director

Research Institutes Established

Establishment of two new research institutes dealing primarily with social sciences have been launched at the University.

Dr. Peter A. Munch, professor of sociology and head of the department of sociology and anthropology, has been named director of the new Social Sciences Research Institute.

A Bureau of Economic and Business Research in UND's school of commerce, established last year, is headed by Samuel C. Kelley Jr., associate professor of economics.

Both new research groups are recognized as institutional functions of the University.

Grant Obtained

Through the efforts of the UND Alumni Association, Munch pointed out, a substantial grant was obtained for research in social sciences for the University.

This grant was made by one of the larger regional foundations for a study of the social and economic impact of oil development in the Williston Basin area. This study is now under way and under the joint directorship of Prof. Bernt L. Wills, UND geography department head; Robert B. Campbell, professor in the sociology department; and Ross B. Talbot, professor in the department of political science.

• Faculty

One of them, however, said "no matter how good our faculty is now, there is still and there always will be a need for great teachers—men who can by their competence win the confidence not only of our students but also of our citizens. We doubtless have such teachers here now; and I'm sure, without knowing the detailed facts, that they deserve more recognition."

Second Semester UND Enrollment Total 2,508

University of North Dakota enrollment of 2,508 tops figures for the same date last year and the final second semester total of 1953-54, Registrar Ruby M. McKenzie said.

The 2,508 includes 66 special students and consists of 1,840 men and 668 women. First semester total was 2,634.

At this time last year enrollment was 2,240 and the final second semester figure was 2,381.

All projects sponsored by the new institute, Munch emphasized, form part of a general research program centered around the theme: "Modern Development of a Frontier State."

N. D. Frontier State

Munch added, "from several points of view, North Dakota must be regarded as a frontier state in the process of adjustment to the modern industrial society." Up to this day, Munch said, the state has retained much of its basic quality of rurality. Only recently, he added, has modern industrialism made its impact on this region with mechanization of farming, irrigation projects, oil discovery and utilization and a higher mobility of population.

A number of other projects under the consideration of the institute include "A History of North Dakota," by Prof. Elwyn B. Robinson of the history department; "A Sociological Study of New Town, N. D.," a map of the distribution of nationality groups in the state; a study of migratory labor in the Red River Valley and of the changing role of the rural town.

Sioux Win Cage Honors

For the second straight year, Coach Louie Bogan's U.N.D. basketball team will hold at least a share of the North Central Conference championship.

Co-champions last year with the N.D.A.C. Bison, the Sioux this season have a chance to win the undisputed title with only the traditional series with the Bison left. With an 8-2 record, the Sioux can finish alone on top of the league by splitting with their State College rivals, regardless of what the runner-up teams do.

South Dakota State and South Dakota University, behind the Sioux in the standings, both have suffered four defeats and still have their own state rivalry to settle.

Report

(Continued from Page One) Bottineau area, 12 in the Dickinson-Medora area. In the past three years, 12,931,558 barrels of oil have come from North Dakota wells. Three refineries are now located in our state—one at Mandan with a capacity of 30,000 barrels, one at Williston—1500 barrels a day, and one at Dickinson—2000 barrels daily. A total of approximately a million barrels is refined a month. One gas refinery is now operating at Tioga, with a capacity of 65 million cubic feet per day.

Enrollment for the second semester this year is expected to exceed 2600. Of this number approximately 70% are male students. Lutherans lead the religious preference list with more than 1100, Catholics—600. Methodists—300.

x x x

Fine religious education opportunities are now provided students at the University. The Lutheran Student Association home and offices are located on Cambridge Street just a block from the campus. The recently completed Newman Center consists of a modern chapel, recreation rooms, dining facilities, and offices.

Hence, at least one of the two will lose more than four.

Lightly regarded when the season started, the Sioux surprised their fans by being in first place from the outset, dropping to second only once. They proved to be the best road team in the conference, a major point in the successful season, and won several vital games by late rallies after having been counted out.

This last factor was regarded as one of the team's best

x x x

Hockey fans are hanging on to a chance the Sioux skaters will earn a place in the N. C. A. A. playoffs next month but the going will be hard and the Nodaks, in the second division of their Western Hockey League, are faced with the task of winning practically every series remaining. They encounter Michigan, Michigan Tech, Michigan State and Minnesota in the closing games. Colorado College ran away with the league championship, winning three of four from the Sioux in the process.

The old Theta Chi Fraternity is now the Episcopalian Youth Center. Wesley College provides modern facilities for Methodists and other Protestant groups.

x x x

The new Theta Chi fraternity house is nearing completion. It is located on Cambridge Street just south of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority. Reports indicate that the completed structure will cost in excess of $80,000. The Theta Chis have been using Wesley College facilities this year for meetings and for dining.

FOUNDATION AWARD

An award of $3,400 for study of sorption of water vapor by thermally treated lignite was made to the University by the National Science Foundation. Wayne R. Kube, department of chemical engineering, will be in charge of the study.
