Sioux Win Conference Cage Title

Alumni Invited To Reunion

University of North Dakota won its first undisputed North Central Conference basketball championship since 1937 by finishing with an 8-4 record this season.

Although the Sioux lost three of their annual four-game series with the NDAC Bison, their excellent early season start helped pull them through. A year ago, the North Dakota schools were co-champions.

North Dakota's hockey team hit its usual late season decline and wound up sixth in the seven-team Western Intercollegiate Hockey League. The hockey Sioux did finish on a winning note, blanking Minnesota, 7-0, in the final game. This gave them a 3-1 margin over the Gophers in their four-game series.

Lauga Geir, 1923, was awarded first prize in a play-writing contest sponsored by a Winnipeg, Manitoba, organization of women. Her winning entry, "In the Wake of the Storm", which depicts the life of homesteaders Lauga Geir in an 1886 Icelandic community, will be staged in Winnipeg this fall.

Dr. and Mrs. T. L. Stangebye, 1951 (Ruth Jones, 1952), announce the birth of a son, Thorlief David, February 24. They plan to stay in Detroit for a medical residency next year at the Receiving Hospital.

NOTICE

The alumni records staff will appreciate receiving any information concerning the whereabouts of the following members of the class of 1905:

John J. Bergland, Henry R. Bitzing, Charles DeNoyer, Arni Kristinson, Oliver Leverson, Jennie McMurchy (Mrs. W. C. Wilson), Laureat Martinneau, Joseph E. Totten, Maude Wehe (Mrs. S. Z. Stansberry).

Dear Alumni:

The time has come for the alumni to talk not about many but about one thing. Thinking on world problems and even on reports from Congress or our State Legislature must be set aside in order to consider with singleness of purpose the one thing needful—a plan to attend the 1955 Commencement activities, June 4 and 5. Your presence will help to make it an event long to be remembered, which is our ambition and our object.

Whatever effort or whatever sacrifice is required in order to make the trip to your Alma Mater will be fully repaid by the privilege of learning to know President and Mrs. George W. Starcher, who have been cordially received on the campus, in the city, and throughout the state. Then, too, former President and Mrs. West will be present to greet you in their own friendly way.

The refreshing experience of seeing your classmates and students of your day will be an ever recurring pleasant memory.

Lloyd Stone and his enthusiastic committee are planning events of unusual interest to alumni.

"Come in the evening or come in the morning,
Come when invited or come without warning.
Come in the sunshine, or come in the rain;
You will always be welcome when you come again."

—Longfellow

Oh, I almost forgot — I will be present, also.

Sincerely,

M. Beatrice Johnstone
Class of 1891

Dr. John C. West, who retired as President of the University of North Dakota in June, 1954, has spent a pleasant winter in San Diego, Calif. In a recent letter he said he would arrive home in early April. President and Mrs. West purchased a home on Fourth Avenue in Grand Forks, just a block from the Beta Theta Pi house.

Alumni News Notes

The Los Angeles Times for February 24, featured a story concerning a $75,000,000 century plan for the University of Southern California. A picture of John E. Fields, ex1935, Vice President in charge of development at U. S. C., along with President Fred Fagg showed the model of the proposed campus. Fields is still a loyal UND'er, very much in evidence at Camelback reunions and Los Angeles Alumni Club meetings.

An interesting article on college hockey appeared in the February 21 issue of Sports Illustrated magazine. A campus scene with several UND hockey players and coeds was pictured, along with two action shots of the Sioux against Denver U and against Colorado College.

Cadet Jerald H. Skatvold, ex1952, is a member this season of the U. S. Military Academy's hockey team at West Point, N. Y.
