Gamble Scholarship Fund Established at University

A new $5,000 Student Loan Fund has been established at UND by the Gamble Scholarship Foundation of Minneapolis, which is headed by B. C. Gamble, president of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc.

Born in Chicago, Gamble grew up in Hunter and Arthur, N. Dak. Loans from the fund will be made available to University students who need financial assistance, according to J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the Alumni Association.

In expressing appreciation for the gift, Stone said: "The loan fund set up by the Gamble Scholarship Foundation will enable many students to continue their education at the University over the years. Record of repayment of student loans is almost 100 percent, and students who have benefited from available loan funds have expressed great appreciation for the assistance they received at a time when they badly needed it."

Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., has been contributing to college capital funds for a period of 15 years.

U of Minnesota President Will Speak at Ceremony

The dedication of Twamley Hall, new administration building at the University of North Dakota, will highlight the spring commencement activities with Dr. O. Meredith Wilson, president of the University of Minnesota, as the main speaker for the dedication ceremonies.

The spring commencement activities will begin on Friday, May 31, with the Twamley Hall dedication ceremony scheduled at 3 p.m. in an outdoor area in front of the building. Government and educational dignitaries will be special guests at the event.

A significant milestone in University history, the Twamley dedication will be "somewhat of an echo of the famous laying of the cornerstone for Old Main in 1883," stated UND President George W. Starcher.

Old Main, the first building on the University campus, was vacated last January, and will be torn down this spring. Souvenirs from the materials of Old Main will be made into paper weights, pen sets, bookends, gavels, maces and candlestick holders and will be sold to alumni and friends.

Educational Statesman

Wilson, former president of the University of Oregon, began his duties at Minnesota in 1960. He is often referred to as an "educational statesman" and has received dozens of academic appointments and honors.

Witmer Heads Planning

Dr. R. B. Witmer, dean of the College of Science, Literature and Arts at UND, is chairman of the committee making arrangements for the Twamley Hall Dedication. Others on the committee are Miss Ruby McKenzie, registrar; Harvey K. Jacobson, director of news and information;

J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the Alumni Association; Ben Gustafson, director of Extension Division; John H. Vold, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds; Dr. M. L. Cushman, dean of the College of Education.

Dr. Henry Tomasek, chairman of the political science department; Dr. Theodore Snook, professor of anatomy; Palmer Reiten, chairman of the mechanical engineering department and two students as selected by the Student Senate.

Carillon Crowns Hall

Another "first" at the dedication of Twamley Hall will be a special Carillon concert on Friday, May 31, preceding the 3 p.m. ceremonies. The new 305-bell electronic carillon, one of the largest in the nation, is being installed this spring and is located on the fourth floor of Twamley Hall.

The carillon was given to the University for use in the education program of the music department and the cultural life of the campus. It may be played mechanically, or by musicians and guest carilloneurs. It will ring out hours on the campus, and be used for ceremonial occasions and special events.

The new administration building is named after James Frederick Twamley, who was instrumental in the founding of the University. The fourth floor of the new structure was built through a gift of $200,000 from his estate.

Miss Edna Twamley, class of 1902, will attend the dedication of the building and the carillon.

Sioux Cop Hockey Crown

About 2,000 hockey fans welcomed the UND hockey team at the Grand Forks Airport Sunday, March 17, as the Sioux returned with the NCAA championship from Boston.

The chilly night did not hamper the welcoming committee's spirit as the plane landed shortly after 9:00 p.m.

Coach Barry Thorndycraft was the first of the Sioux hockey party off the plane. He, his players and members of the UND athletic department who made the trip were quickly surrounded by the well-wishers.

As they made their way to the terminal, they received congratulations from the crowd in the form of outstretched hands, slaps on the back, and verbal salutes.

Preparation for the team's return was formulated about 24 hours earlier when the Sioux beat Denver University 6-5 for the National Collegiate Athletic Association hockey championship in Boston.

To get to the playoffs, Denver beat the Minnesota Gophers and North Dakota downed Michigan Tech in a two game most-goals-scored series. At Boston College's McHugh Forum, North Dakota advanced to the finals by beating Boston College 8-2. Denver entered the finals after victory over Clarkson, 6-2.

From Georgia

Walden Named New Dean of U Law School

Jerrold L. Walden, associate professor of law, Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., has been named dean of the University Law School, according to Dr. William Koenker, vice president of academic affairs at the University. The 39-year-old scholar will assume the new position, Sept. 1, 1963.

Walden was named to Phi Beta Kappa and was an honor graduate at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., where he received his A.B. degree in 1945. In the same year, he went to the University of New Mexico as assistant professor in law. He received his LL.B. degree from Columbia Law School in 1947. He has his J.S.D. degree from Yale Law School where he was a Sterling Fellow.

Walden was admitted to practice in the state of New York in 1949 and in New Mexico in 1962. He was a law clerk for the U. S. District Court Judge for the southern district of New York from 1948-49. He served as assistant counsel to the Committee on the Judiciary, U. S. House of Representatives from 1949-53.

Walden went to the University of Alabama for a year as visiting professor of law. He has been at Emory University since 1960.

During the past two summers, Walden has been associate counsel of the anti-trust committee of the Committee on the Judiciary and has written numerous reports on newsprint problems, the broadcasting industry, ocean freight rates, and other issues. In addition, he has published articles in the Journal of Public Law, National Resources Journal and other legal publications.

The UND Law School has been without a dean since July 1, 1962, when O. H. Thormodsgard retired, after serving as dean since 1931. The Law School was established at the University in 1899.

Faculty Make News:

UND Professors Serve on National Boards

A number of University of North Dakota faculty members were selected in the past year to serve on regional and national committees of various scholarly associations. Here are some who made the news with appointments to these groups:

Dr. W. E. Cornatzer, professor and chairman of the biochemistry department in the School of Medicine, is one of six members of the National Board of Medical Examiners. The Board prepares the examination in biochemistry for sophomore or senior medical students throughout the country who must take the exam before they are licensed. He also is a member of the American Board of Clinical Chemistry which certifies clinical chemists in hospitals and laboratories in the U. S.

James P. White, associate professor and executive secretary of the Law School, was appointed chairman of an editing subcommittee of the American Bar Association (ABA). The subcommittee is a division of the public lands committee of the section of mineral and natural resources of the ABA.

Elected chairman of the education committee of Region Five on the Institute of Radio Engineers was C. J. Thomforde, chairman of the electrical engineering department. The region consists of 28 engineering colleges in nine midwest states.

Dr. Erich Selke, professor emeritus of education, has been elected president of the North Dakota Teachers Association. Selke joined the UND faculty in 1936 and retired in 1956.

Dr. Charles Hatfield Jr., professor and chairman of the mathematics department, has been reappointed regional representative for visiting lecture programs for mathematics in secondary schools. As a representative of the Mathematical Association of America for the second year, he is in charge of the program for Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota. Dr. Hatfield also served on a national panel in Washington to select host schools for Summer Institutes for College Teachers of Mathematics.

Completing a three-year tenure on the Advisory Committee on Institutional Research Grants of the American Cancer Society was Dr. C. J. Hamre, dean of the graduate school.

J. Donald Henderson, professor of physics and science teaching, was appointed chairman of the Education Committee of the North Dakota Academy of Science. Henderson is a representative of the National Science Teachers Association on the Cooperative Committee for the Teaching of Science and Mathematics of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He also is the regional counselor for North Dakota in the program sponsored by the American Association of Physics Teachers and American Institute of Physics.

Miss Clara A. Pederson, assistant professor of elementary education, was selected for a two year term on the editorial board of "Childhood Education," official monthly magazine of the Association of the Childhood Education International.

Selected as chairman of a special award committee of the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine was Dr. Victor Szyrnski, professor and head of the psychiatry department.

Alvin E. Austin, chairman of the journalism department, was named chairman of a Freedom of Information Committee by the American Society of Journalism School Administrators.

John C. Peterson, instructor in business education, was elected president of the Secretarial Round Table Division of the National Business Teachers Association.

John H. Crabb, associate professor of law at UND, continued as editor of the Foreign Exchange Bulletin, a publication of the Association of American Law Schools. The journal, which is widely distributed throughout the U. S. and in other countries, has been published at the University Press for the past two years.

Dr. C. A. Wardner, assistant professor of chemistry, was elected president of the Red River Valley section of the American Chemical Society. Dr. William Johnson, associate professor of chemistry, was named treasurer.

Dr. Paul Munger, professor of psychology and director of the counseling center; Dr. Walter Moore, associate professor of geology; and Oscar Manz, assistant professor of civil engineering, were elected to the UND chapter of Sigma Xi.

Dr. C. J. Hamre, Graduate School dean, continued as a representative on the Council of Graduate Schools in the U. S. The University is one of 100 charter members of the organization.

Dr. John Rowe, professor and chairman of business education, continued as vice president of the Catholic Business Education Association and editor and Board member of the National Association for Business Teacher Education.

Dr. D. J. Georgacas, professor of classical languages, returned to the UND campus to continue work on a Greek-English dictionary project. He worked on the project for 27 months in Greece before this fall.

Publish Book On N.D. Ants

George C. Wheeler, chairman of the University biology department since 1926, and his wife, Jeanette, who received her Ph.D. degree from UND, are co-authors of a book on North Dakota ants, to be published this spring.

Printed at UND by the University Press, the 326-page book is titled, "The Ants of North Dakota."

The Wheelers say it is intended for anyone interested in the ants of the Northern Plains, "but especially designed for amateurs." It is liberally illustrated with 80 line drawings and photographs, plus 82 maps. The majority of the illustrations are by Mrs. Wheeler.

The Hill Foundation of St. Paul contributed grants for part of the research, and subsidized the publication.

NAMED TO GROUP

Dr. Richard Beck, chairman of modern and classical languages at UND, has been named to the National Association of Standard Medical Vocabulary. He will serve as a consultant in the Scandinavian languages.

The scholastic organization includes 2,900 university presidents, deans and professors. Purpose of the group is to stabilize the vocabulary of the medical and allied sciences.

Dr. Beck, who was recently added to a permanent list of reviewers for the American Historical Review, has been a professor of Scandinavian languages and literatures at the University since 1929, and is in his 10th year as department head.

Burtness Theater Dedication

Scheduled for April 28

Dedication ceremonies for the new Burtness Theatre at the University of North Dakota are scheduled for Sunday, April 28.

The premiere Dakota Playmakers production in the new theatre will be Archibald MacLeish's "J.B." and will open April 30 and run through May 4.

The new Burtness Theatre is located west of Merrifield Hall, and is being financed largely with a $100,000 gift from the late Mrs. Zoe E. Burtness, who was married to the late Olger B. Burtness, district court judge and six-term U. S. Congressman. Patrons who have contributed to funds set up to equip the theatre will be honored at the dedication.

UND Granted $75,000 Research Award

A grant of $75,000 for a Hill Research Professorship in Anatomy has been awarded to the University of North Dakota by the Louis W. and Maud Hill Family Foundation, St. Paul, Minn., according to Dr. T. H. Harwood, dean of the School of Medicine. The grant will cover a period of five years, beginning with the date of the appointment of the First Hill Research Professorship in Anatomy. Chairman of the department of anatomy is Dr. Christopher J. Hamre.

In announcing the grant, Donald H. Hughes, assistant to the executive director of the Hill Foundation, said, "The Foundation is pleased to be able to encourage Dr. Hamre and his associates, as well as all who have an interest in the Medical School of the University."

The Hill Professorship will add to the strength of the anatomy department, according to Dr. Hamre. "It will be especially helpful in the research and graduate programs of the department," he said. "The department will seek an anatomist with interest and experience in the field of histology. A research professor with experience in that field will be of assistance to other branches of the medical sciences and the entire medical school."

The Hill Research Professorship is the third awarded to UND by the Louis W. and Maud Hill Family Foundation. Both previous professorships were awarded to the department of biochemistry. Dr. Robert C. Nordlie, now in residence at UND in biochemistry, was the first to be appointed a Hill Research Professorship. He began his research professorship at UND in December of 1961.

The March issue of the ALUMNI REVIEW carried a story on the demise of the Coulee Bridge, which had been condemned as unsafe and was removed to make way for a future structure.

The article proved of keen interest to C. Hjalmanson, superintendent of Plant Construction of the San Diego Gas and Electric Co., at Chula Vista, Calif.

He writes: "... I was one of the "needy" students in the spring of 1941 involved in its construction. It is true that the bridge was designed by a small group of civil engineering students under the direction of Prof. Boyd.

"... work was stopped because we had no facilities or equipment to assemble the span over water. As I recall, we decided to assemble it the following winter when the Coulee was frozen. Later, the Buildings and Grounds Department was ordered to proceed with the work. I am happy that Mr. Tannahill reported it was easy to put up. I trust this order did not reflect the Administration's belief that the students could not do the job, but only to have the bridge open for the fall semester."

He concludes: "Since then, I have supervised the construction of many structures in this country and abroad, and this is the first, and I hope the only, report of the collapse of a structure I had anything to do with!"

Got A Yen To See Europe?

Plans are being formulated for a UND Alumni tour of Europe, to start July 30th, 1963. If you have been planning on a trip to the continent, this might be your best opportunity. You will be traveling in company with your Alumni friends, and everything will be arranged for a most enjoyable holiday. If you are interested, write for the details at once to: Alumni Office, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N. D.

ATTENTION UND ALUMNI!

We can save $212.00 on round trip air fare if twenty-five alumni join the 1963 UND invasion of Europe!

Alumni Head Salutes U On Birthday

ROBERT EDDY
Alumni President
Feb. 27, 1963

In years, I am more than four decades removed from my Alma Mater.

In distance, I live 200 miles from the campus, but in memory it is only yesterday since I walked these paths, attended university classes, courted beautiful coeds, made everlasting friendships and gained inspiration from dedicated professors.

My debt to the University is great—for my life is richer—my horizons broader and my philosophy more satisfying because I attended here.

In a very small way, I have tried to express my thanks to the University for being here when I needed it so badly.

It has been a pleasure to serve on the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association for several years—to help convince legislators from all parts of the state that the high standards which have always been maintained here require greater and greater appropriations.

It has been a joy to send outstanding students here and to praise the accomplishments

Sheffield Replaces Moulton as Wesley Prexy

Dr. Phillips Moulton has been named academic dean and professor of religion at Wesley College following his request to be relieved of the non-academic administrative duties of his present position as president of the college. In acting upon Dr. Moulton's request, the Board of Trustees of the Methodist school affiliated with UND, elected the Rev. Wesley Sheffield to the presidency. Sheffield is from Long Island, N. Y. He assumes the office in June, 1963.

of the University to my friends.

It has been my privilege to send a few dollars to add to the $18,000 a year alumni scholarship fund.

On behalf of the more than 50,000 former University students who attended classes here—and personally—I want to say

Happy Birthday 80 times to the University of North Dakota, my Alma Mater!!

Montana Publisher Featured in National Story

A weekly newspaper founded by Melvin Ruder, a 1937 and 1942 graduate of UND, is featured in a six-page illustrated article in the March edition of Quill, journalism magazine.

Written by Joseph H. Mader, former UND journalism department head, the story tells the fast growth of the Hungry Horse News from its founding in 1946 at Columbia Falls, Mont. Under Ruder, the newspaper has doubled in circulation size, and now is the largest weekly in Montana. The newspaper has won national recognition for its wildlife photos (taken by Ruder) and his insistence on stressing local news. Ruder was president of the Montana State Press Association in 1958.

Mader, author of the article, is now on the staff of the Milwaukee Sentinel, after a journalism career that included teaching positions at UND, University of Minnesota, Duquesne and Marquette.

UND ALUMNI HOLD FLORIDA SESSION

Robert Eddy, president of the UND Alumni Association, brought greetings to the alumni of Florida at a special Reunion Banquet held in Fort Lauderdale at the Coral Ridge Hotel on March 14.

Harry Schwenke of Fort Lauderdale was in charge of arrangements. Mr. Eddy, with J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the Alumni Association, brought the group up-to-date on the progress being made at UND.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOLS TO SPONSOR INSTITUTE

The UND Law and Medical Schools were co-sponsors of a Medical - Legal Institute in March, sponsored to create a better understanding between the two professions. Medical testimony in personal injury cases and medical malpractice was discussed by Robert Valter, Grand Forks attorney; William Lanier, Fargo attorney; Dr. E. P. Wenz, Fargo physician, and Dr. W. A. Wasdahl of the UND Medical School faculty.

Skulason Is Dean Of Consular Corps

Bardi G. Skulason, Iceland's Consul in Oregon, is winding up his term as dean of Portland's consular corps, in which he was the presiding officer of corps functions for representatives of the 21 nations represented in Portland.

Now 92 years of age, Skulason left Iceland at the age of five when his family homesteaded in Manitoba. He was admitted to the practice of law in North Dakota in 1897, at a time when aspirants to the legal profession could study three years in a lawyer's office, while working for next to nothing in wages, and then take an examination before the State Supreme Court.

In 1911, Skulason shifted his law practice to Portland where he is now in his 53rd year as a trial lawyer. Skulason was appointed vice consul in 1942 when Iceland split off from the kingdom of Denmark. He proudly displays a framed notice of appointment, written in Icelandic and another framed document signed by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and Cordell Hull.

Skulason makes his home in Portland with his daughter and her husband in a house built by Skulason himself, more than 50 years ago.

"Old Main" Faces Wrecking Crew

Razing of Old Main is scheduled this month at UND, and one of the features will be the retrieving of the original cornerstone which was installed October 2, 1883.

Encased in the cornerstone are copies of the 1883 issues of the Grand Forks newspapers; one silver dollar engraved with the name of P. O. Broughton, the contractor; a list of the local Masonic officers and visiting members present, and one U. S. Treasury stamp.

Other items include a copy of Governor Ordway's 1883 message to the territorial legislature, a copy of the "Common Schools of Dakota," a pamphlet by E. A. Healy; an envelope addressed to the Rev. F. W. Iddings, secretary of the Board of Regents; miscellaneous coins and post-cards.

Lignite Sessions Will Study New Developments

The program has been completed for the 1963 Lignite Symposium at the University of North Dakota, April 30-May 1. Sponsored by the University of North Dakota and the Bureau of Mines, United States Department of the Interior, the Symposium will be devoted to recent developments in the technology and utilization of lignite.

Conferees will register on Tuesday, April 30, in the lobby of the Student Union. Dr. George W. Starcher, president of the University, and Marling J. Ankeny, director, U. S. Bureau of Mines, will make introductory remarks at the opening sessions, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Presiding at the Tuesday, April 30, afternoon sessions will be A. M. Cooley, professor and chairman of the department of Chemical Engineering; and R. C. Ellman, project co-ordinator, U. S. Bureau of Mines, Grand Forks.

Speakers will include R. W. Rovelstad, president, Baukol-Nonan, Inc., Minot; G. H. Gronhovd, project co-ordinator, the Babcock and Wilcox Co., Barberton, Ohio; and Carlos M. Henderson, Husky Briquetting Division, Husky Oil Co., Dickinson.

OFFER SUMMER SESSIONS

Students who will attend the 1963 summer session at UND from June 17-August 10 can enroll for courses in 35 departments. In addition, the University offers students the chance to study for graduate or under-graduate credit. A summer session bulletin may be obtained by writing to the Director of the Summer Session, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N. Dak.

HEADS COMMITTEE

Dr. W. E. Koenker, UND vice president for academic affairs and professor of economics, has been named as chairman of the North Dakota Manpower Advisory Committee. Serving on the committee are Byron Lubbers, Burnstad; Don Erickson, Rugby; Carl Whitman, New Town; Ralph Dallman, Fargo; Bob Schmusser, Hunter; Thomas Kleppe, Bismarck; and Wallace J. Dockter, Minot.

An Outstanding Engineer

Upson Given Concrete Honor

Maxwell W. Upson, '96, was given an honorary membership in the American Concrete Institute for his outstanding contributions to the field of concrete engineering. The honor was presented at the Awards Luncheon of the 59th annual convention of the Institute in Atlanta, Ga., March 6.

Born in Milwaukee, Upson is well known for his work in foundation and harbor engineering. His achievements in this field are closely associated with the growth of Raymond International, Inc., New York, with more than 40 patents covering equipment and methods credited to his development. He is currently a company director and honorary chairman of the board.

Mr. Upson received an A.B. degree from the University of North Dakota in 1896 and a Mechanical Engineering degree from Cornell University in 1899.

Early in his career he was employed by Westinghouse, Church, Kerr and Co., at that time one of the largest engineering and contracting firms in the United States. As a field superintendent, he directed construction of many plants and power houses, including the design and construction of a group of reinforced concrete industrial buildings for the Canadian Westinghouse at Hamilton, Ontario.

In 1905-07, while serving as chief engineer of the Hockanum Mills Company, Rockville, Conn., he supervised the construction of the first reinforced concrete textile buildings in the United States.

In 1907, Upson acquired an interest in the Raymond Concrete Pile Company (now Raymond International, Inc.) and for the ensuing 53 years served as vice-president, general manager, president, chairman of the board, and since his retirement in 1960 as a director and honorary chairman of the board.

Upson is trustee emeritus of Cornell University after serving 35 years as trustee. Among his contributions to Cornell is the mechanical engineering building named Upson Hall. He has also provided for 16 annual scholarships at the University of North Dakota which in 1931 awarded him an honorary Doctor of Engineering Degree. In 1940 he was awarded the Edward Longstreth Medal by Franklin Institute in recognition of his improvements and developments in machines and mechanical processes.

An organizer of the American Concrete Institute, Mr. Upson has been an active ACI member since 1912. He served as president during 1926-27, vice-president for 1922-25, and as a director during the period 1928-36. He also has served on ACI technical committees and has contributed seven papers to the Institute's "Journal."

In addition to ACI, he belongs to many other professional engineering societies including the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and the American Society for Testing and Materials. He also has been active in the Boys' Club of America, Inc., having served as a member of the Board of Directors and of the Executive Committee.

MARTI REPRESENTS U VALLEY CITY MEETING

Mr. Leonard Marti, athletic director, represented UND at the Valley City Alumni meeting Saturday, March 30th. Sixty-five alumni gathered at the Valley City Elks Club with Mr. Ken Matson in charge of arrangements. The new officers elected for the year are: president, William Paulson; vice-president, Dale Sorenson; secretary-treasurer, Russell Edlund.
