An All-Time Record!

UND Enrollment Tops 5,000 Mark

Our Newest Alumni Member

NEWEST MEMBER of the UND Alumni Association is President John F. Kennedy, who accepted an honorary Doctor of Laws degree when he spoke on the UND Campus September 25 during a 12-state conservation tour. Kennedy is pictured as he spoke to a crowd of 10,000 who jammed the UND Fieldhouse. The degree was presented by UND President George W. Starcher. Seated is Mrs. Elvira Jestrab of Williston, who is chairman of the State Board of Higher Education.

Name New Faculty Heads

Three University of North Dakota faculty members have assumed new administrative duties, according to an announcement from the office of UND President George W. Starcher.

Clifford J. Thomforde, chairman of the electrical engineering department, will serve as acting dean of the College of Engineering. E. L. Lium, who served as dean since 1952, has retired under the age ruling passed in 1962 by the State Board of Higher Education. The ruling states that administrative officers in the state college system must retire from their administrative position at age 65. Lium will continue as professor of civil engineering. Interviews will continue this fall for a new engineering dean.

Robert Snortland, assistant professor of engineering drawing, has been named chairman of that department.

James P. White, associate professor of law, has been named assistant dean of the Law School. In the absence of a Law School dean last year, White served as acting secretary of the Law School faculty, handling administrative duties. Jerrold L. Walden is the new dean.

New Dorms Named for Ex-Prexys

The first two dormitories of a new development west of the present University of North Dakota campus will be named for two former presidents who served UND for 29 years.

They are Frank L. McVey, who was president from 1909 to 1917 and John C. West, who served UND from 1933 to 1954.

Construction will begin on McVey Hall this fall with completion planned for the fall of 1965.

The two dormitories, housing 285 students each, will be the first of six to be located in the new area. A food services building with a central University kitchen and dining rooms may also eventually be located there. The dormitories will be four-story structures with basements. The food services building will be one-story.

Cost of the first two dormitories will be $2.1 million. Total cost of the six dormitories and food services building is expected to reach about $8 million. About 1,710 students would be housed in the area. The dormitories will be designed in such a manner that they may be used either as co-educational dorms, for men alone, or for women alone. The firm of Grosz and Anderson of Grand Forks is the architect.

McVey became University of North Dakota president in 1909 after serving as professor of economics at the University of Minnesota. He was the third Yale graduate to become a UND president. In the UND history book, "University of Enrollment at the University of North Dakota has surpassed the 5,000 mark for the first time in history.

Registrar Ruby McKenzie announced that a total enrollment this fall has passed the 5,100 mark, marking an increase of more than 200 over the time a year ago.

Ben G. Gustafson, director of the General Extension Division, said that the enrollment at the UND Williston Center is above 200.

The 5100 total does not include registrations in extension classes at the Grand Forks Air Force Base or other points in North Dakota.

U LAW SCHOOL ENROLLMENT RISES

The University of North Dakota Law School, established in 1899, begins its 1963-64 school year with the largest total enrollment since 1952, and the largest first year class since 1950.

Total Law School enrollment this year is expected to hit 160, according to James P. White, assistant dean. Last year's enrollment was 141. The first year class with 75 students enrolled is 20 more than the freshman class last year.

Freshmen entering Law School at UND this year began activities with a greatly expanded orientation program. In past years freshmen orientation was a half-day affair, but this year the Student Bar Association, which handles orientation, expanded the program to three days.

In order to be accepted for enrollment in the UND Law School a student must have either a bachelor's degree or the equivalent of 90 semester hours of college work with at least a C-plus average. All Northern Plains," by Louis G. Geiger, McVey is said to have done "more to bring the University in high repute than any other president" up to his time.

During McVey's years as president major reorganizations were begun in every college except medicine, in the summer school and in most departments. Graduate training was expanded and a faculty committee was appointed "to push for a charter" from Phi Beta Kappa, national honoray scholastic society. The University library was expanded and a state-wide bibliography and lending service was begun. McVey resigned as University president in 1917.

When Dr. West retired in 1954 after serving as University president for 20 years, he had tied the record for the longest tenure of any state university president in one institution. A native of Clearwater, Minn., West received a professor's diploma from St. Cloud Teachers College, a B.A. from Fargo College (now North Dakota State University of Agriculture and Applied Science), M.A. and Ed.D. degrees from UND.

His first work in education was as superintendent of schools at a number of North Dakota and Minnesota cities. He came to Grand Forks in 1929 as superintendent of public schools. During his term at the University, he improved the educational standards and had a vital part in effecting a great physical expansion of the school's facilities, including a broad building program.

During the school year of 1937-38, in addition to his duties as University of North Dakota president, he was acting head of North Dakota Agricultural College during a temporary vacancy in that post. West died in July of 1961.

Past Presidents

Alumni Heads Honored for Accomplishments

It would take more than an ordinary issue of the ALUMNI REVIEW to tell the details and accomplishments of the eight past presidents of the Alumni Association who are being honored with "Big Chief" awards at the 1963 Homecoming.

The past presidents are:

- 1945-1950 Dr. Ralph E. Leigh
 1950-1953 J. B. Bridston
 1953-1955 Henry Lykken
 (Deceased)
 1955-1957 Armin Rohde
 1957-1959 Dewey Balch
 1959-1960 Loyde C. Thompson
 1960-1961 Dr. E. L. Grinnell
 1961-1963 Robert Eddy

The period of their leaderships dates from the end of World War II to 1963, and is a period of unmatched progress in the history of the University of North Dakota. It is an 18-year period of great growth and expansion.

There were many successful accomplishments. Among them is the Medical Center, which began as an Alumni project, with alumni spearheading the campaign to a successful statewide approval of a one mill levy which established the Medical Center.

The Memorial Student Union was an Alumni project, being completed in 1952 after $250,000 was raised in cash and, coupled with a bond issue, the building became a reality.

The giant UND Fieldhouse was a project that was promoted and sponsored by the Alumni Association. Full Alumni Association support was given to the U. S. Lignite Laboratory, which was built by the Federal government at a cost of $750,000.

During these eight administrations, there have been contributions and pledges of approximately $7,000,000. There were funds provided for a new library, a new Fine Arts building (soon to be constructed) money for the Student Union, for Burtness Theater,

HENRY G.
LYKKENAlumni Assn.,
President, 1953-55

A native of Grafton, North Dakota, Henry G. Lykken died from injuries received in a car accident on April 6, 1958.

He earned a degree in civil engineering from UND in 1905, and had a long history of accomplishments in that field. He was the engineer who built the North Dakota Mill and Elevator in Grand Forks.

Lykken gained national recognition as an engineer and inventor, and had more than 600 patents granted. He developed many new processes in the mining and milling field, including a coal pulverizing machine and a turbo-milling process while he was associated with the Pillsbury Company of Minneapolis.

J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the Alumni Association, states that "Henry was one of the outstanding presidents to serve the Alumni Association. He was a very staunch supporter of UND, and he will always be remembered". for the Twamley Administration Building, and more than $1,500,000 in the form of scholarships.

The J. F. T. O'Connor will was probated, and brought approximately $400,000 to the University. The legislation making possible the building of new dormitories was sponsored by these Alumni leaders. The revenue bond act, which was passed in 1947, has been used in all institutions of the state. It saw the building of a swimming pool, the installation of artificial ice in the Winter Sports Arena; a gift made possible the Ireland Research Laboratory, while the Abbott Chemistry building was completed. The Campbell Foundation was established.

The 18 year record of these eight past presidents is interwoven in a story of progress and development that will never be forgotten.

THOMPSON

field in Grand Forks, and established his own firm in April of 1942, and now represents several national firms. He is a past president of the YMCA, both the Junior and Senior Chambers of Commerce, the Community Chest, Country Club and the North Dakota Insurance Agents Association. He is a past president of the North Dakota Peony Society, and was named as the outstanding "boss of the year" in Grand Forks.

Their daughter, Virginia, is a UND graduate.

medical societies, and has written numerous scientific papers in the field of allergy and dermatology. He has also authored several articles, fiction and poetry.

Like other past alumni presidents, Dr. Grinnell has been very active in civic and community affairs for both the city and UND.

Three Gain Fritz Awards

Three University of North Dakota students have been awarded $800 Chester Fritz Scholarships for the 1963-64 academic year.

They are Roland Eugene Barden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Barden, McGregor; James Dean Brosseau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean H. Brosseau, Drayton; and Mary Lou Tschider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tschider, 810 15th St., Bismarck.

Earlier this summer Robert Glenn Knodell, Fargo, and Lana Jean Patch, Bismarck, also were announced as recipients of Chester Fritz scholarships for the coming year.

Fritz scholarship winners are selected on the basis of outstanding scholarship, leadership, character and dependability. Their cumulative scholastic averages are all over 3.7 out of 4.0 this year.

Fritz, a former University student, has given many other gifts, including a million dollar library building. A native of Buxton, and a graduate of Lidgerwood High School, he attended UND in 1909-10 and received an honorary doctor's degree in 1952. He resides in Gstaad, Switzerland.

Mautz to Head Accountants

Professor Robert K. Mautz of the University of Illinois was named president elect of the 10,000 member American Accounting Association at their meeting in August at Stanford University.

Mautz is a native of Grand Forks, and received his B.S. degree from UND in 1937, with his M.S., Ph.D., and CPA at the University of Illinois. He was a member of the UND Tennis Team, capturing the North Central Singles title his senior year.

Mautz is a former editor of the Accounting Review and has served as a certified public accountant with Alexander Grand & Co., and Haskins & Sells, both prominent national accounting firms. He will serve as AAA president during 1965. He is the author or co-author of three books on accounting.

Hawaii is a long way to go for a business meeting, but two lucky UND alumni made the trip there last August to attend the National Legislative Research Committee Meeting, and were treated to the fabulous hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Min Hin Li of Honolulu.

The two lucky Alumni were Charles Emerson Murray (B.S. - 1949, J.D. - 1950) and Senator George Longmire (1947). They were among the UND Alumni who were entertained royally by Dr. Min Hin Li at the Hilton Hawaiian Village, taking a break from the business sessions.

Dr. Li has invited all UND Orient tour guests to his home for cocktails and a buffet supper on March 16, as the tour group visits Hawaii on its return from Hong Kong and Japan. On March 18, the entire group will be guests of Dr. Li at a nine-course dinner at Lau Yee Chai's famous restaurant in Honolulu.

Only those who have experienced the hospitality of Dr. Li will understand the fabulous party that will be in store for the UND Orient tour guests. If you haven't made your reservation, write or call the UND Alumni Office. Time is getting short!

Active Alum

One of the busiest men at this year was Ralph Rohde, who served on many of the committees and was chairman of the "farewell breakfast" for the alumni on October 13 at the Westward Ho Motel.

Rohde has two sons who are medical doctors in California; he and his wife, Hazel, are active in University affairs and have made many world tours.

BRA-AA-Y Alumni!

Roughly translated, that means: "Welcome to Camelback Inn, Alumni!"

Snowball, the talking burro, speaks out a warm welcome for Jack Stewart and the gang at Camelback Inn, where plans are all set for the 14th Annual UND Reunion from January 2 to January 14.

The actual reunion dates are January 5 until January 12, but the special UND rate of $14 per person will go into effect January 2 for early arrivals. And, this $14 is a real bargain—it includes three fantastic meals per day, your room and a good deal of entertainment.

Each year, the attendance is growing at this function, and the 1964 reunion will probably beat all previous totals. For those who have attended these reunions, the wonders of Camelback Inn need no embellishment. For those who have never attended this reunion, you have a fabulous treat in store when you arrive at the front door of Camelback. If this is your year to enjoy the finest of all vacations and reunions, get your reservation in right away.

Write to: Jack Stewart, Camelback Inn, Phoenix, Arizona. Enclose ten dollars to get your firm reservations. Write . . . right now!
