The University of North Dakota School of Medicine and Health Sciences, founded in 1905, was a two-year school of basic medical science until 1973, when the North Dakota Legislature approved initiation of a four-year curriculum leading to the Doctor of Medicine (M.D.) degree. The school offers a statewide, university-based, community-integrated medical education program that places an emphasis on primary care. Practicing physicians, constituting the majority of the faculty, educate medical students in clinics and hospitals throughout the state.

The mission of the University of North Dakota School of Medicine and Health Sciences is to educate and prepare North Dakota residents as physicians, medical scientists, and other health professionals for service to the people of North Dakota and the nation, and to advance medical knowledge through research. Through its federally funded Indians Into Medicine (INMED) Program, the school also seeks to address disparities in access to health care by educating American Indians as physicians and other health professionals. The first two years of medical education are provided at the UND campus in Grand Forks. The third year is completed in hospitals in Fargo, Grand Forks, and Bismarck, and the fourth year consists of clinical rotations at Grand Forks, Minot, Bismarck, and Fargo. Students may elect to take the majority of their third year in rural communities through a program called ROME, Rural Opportunities in Medical Education. Medical students also have the opportunity to experience training in other parts of the country and the world during fourth-year electives. Postgraduate residency training in family medicine, internal medicine, general surgery, and psychiatry, as well as a one-year transitional program, is conducted in the state's four major cities.

The University of North Dakota School of Medicine and Health Sciences offers a combined M.D./Ph.D. program in which students pursue a terminal degree in one of the basic science disciplines while earning the doctor of medicine degree. Students who pursue the M.D./Ph.D. degree devote six or seven years to this goal and are usually interested in careers in research as they relate to the practice of medicine.

In addition to the medical education program, the school offers graduate study in clinical laboratory science, occupational therapy, physical therapy, and physician assistant studies, as well as in the basic sciences: anatomy and cell biology; biochemistry and molecular biology; microbiology and immunology; and pharmacology, physiology and therapeutics. Undergraduate study is offered in cytotechnology, athletic training, and clinical laboratory science.

The Contemporary Oath of Hippocrates

Today, in the presence of family, friends, teachers, and colleagues,
I dedicate myself to the profession of Medicine.

I pledge myself to the service of humanity.

I will use my skills to care for all in need,
without bias and with openness of spirit.

The health of my patients will be my first concern.

I vow to hold sacred the bond between doctor and patient.

I will hold in confidence all that my patients entrust to me.

I will strive to alleviate suffering.

I will respect the dignity and autonomy of my patients in living and in dying.

As a physician, I recognize my duty to society.

I will work to promote health and prevent disease.

I will advocate for the welfare of my community.

Even under duress, I will not use my knowledge or my skills against humanity.

I will acknowledge my limitations and my mistakes
so that I may learn from them.

To uphold these responsibilities, I will maintain my own well-being and the well-being of those close to me.

I will promote the integrity of the practice of Medicine.

In the tradition of my profession, I honor all who teach me this Art.

Through honest and respectful collaboration
with my colleagues,

I will uphold the highest standards in the service of patients.

I will seek new knowledge, reexamine ideas and practices of the past, and teach what I have learned.

Above all, the health of my patients will be my first concern.

This Oath I take freely and upon my honor.

*This contemporary version of the traditional Oath of Hippocrates was composed by the Harvard Medical School,
Class of 1998*

Keynote Speaker

Norman T. Byers, M.D., F.A.C.S., is clinical associate professor in the Department of Surgery at The University of North Dakota School of Medicine and Health Sciences. Byers has served on the faculty since 1989. Board-certified in ophthalmology, he has been an ophthalmologist with Altru Health System since 1989, where he has held numerous leadership positions, including medical director of pharmacy and chief of staff.

Byers grew up in Cambria County, Pa., and attended Indiana University of Pennsylvania, where he earned a Bachelor of Science in Physics in 1967. In 1968, he earned a Master of Science in Environmental Health from the University of Minnesota. Byers earned his Doctor of Medicine degree from the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine in 1974. He performed a one-year rotating internship at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., from 1974 to 1975; he also completed his ophthalmology residency at Walter Reed from 1975 to 1978. He earned a Fellowship in Oculoplastic Surgery with the International Oculoplastic Society in 1984.

Byers was drafted in 1968 and received a direct commission as an officer in the U.S. Army. He served in the U.S. Army Medical Department for 20 years, and retired as a colonel. Byers was awarded The Legion of Merit in 1989 for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service to the United States.

During his career, Dr. Byers has conducted extensive research in ophthalmology. He has published research on ocular oedipism, diabetic retinopathy, flouorescein angiography, pneumatic tonometry, orbital reconstruction, and gortex tarsal grafting. He is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a member of the American Medical Association, the North Dakota Medical Association, the American Legion, and the Knights of Columbus. He serves on the Credentials Committee of BlueCross BlueShield of North Dakota and on the North Dakota Board of Medical Examiners.
