Set Development Fund Goal

Coast to Coast

State Leaders
Accept Fund
Drive Challenge

Activity is increasing in the Development Fund office. Organization of the UND alumni according to states is nearly complete, according to William T. DePuy, national Fund chairman.

Thirty-seven alumni have accepted the appointment as state chairman, with more being added to the list every day, DePuy said. Campaign packets containing each state's mailing list and suggestions for the conduct of the Drive have been sent to all the chairmen, and letters from the chairmen to the alumni in their states will be in the mail soon.

Again this year a contest is being set up among the states, the winner being the state with the highest percentage of alumni participation. A second winner will also be chosen — the state with the greatest gain over last year's participation percentage.

A ranking of the states in each category will appear at intervals throughout the campaign in the REVIEW. The Drive will run until May, 1966, DePuy explained.

The mechanics of the Drive are being handled by the Alumni Office on the campus under the direction of J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the Alumni Association, and his assistant, Mrs. Donald L. Anderson (Virginia J. Thompson, '52).

Chairmen who have accepted so far include Dr. M. Jordan Thorstad, '33, Alabama; Mrs. Robert Pender (Carole Jean Smith, '53), Alaska; Edward J. O'Connor, ex-'33, California; Mowat Fraser, '20, Connecticut; Mansell Richards, '20, Delaware; Harry M. Schwenke, '53, Florida;

CONTRACTS AWARDED

Contracts have been awarded for 100 married-student housing units at UND at a total of $1,119,156. The money will come from a loan from the Housing and Home Finance Administration, and construction is now underway in a location northwest of the main UND campus. All of the units are duplexes or four-plexes.

President Outlines U Needs

Alumni and other visitors who were here for Homecoming expressed surprise at the changes taking place on the campus. It is good for us to have reminders of accomplishments which we tend to overlook in the press forward to next important stages in the development of the University. Alumni, through their words of appreciation, give us encouragement to strive even harder for the goals we believe this University should achieve. Seldom do we hear nostalgic references to Old Main or Davis Hall. Alumni are glad for new, modern, and up-to-date dormitories with enough rooms for our more than 6,000 students this fall.

Starcher

They share our pride in Leonard Hall, a new, modern and up-to-date geology building, dedicated to the memory of a great teacher, scientist and servant of the state, Arthur G. Leonard. The new University Center, crowded with students, delighted alumni as they recalled their days in the old Commons. The Chester Fritz Library and Twamley Hall, both serving students efficiently and with space for handling important University functions, stand as examples of the kinds of needs we talk about when we point to the necessity to have new spaces and new teaching aids for a new era.

Next fall we shall experience crowding again because the two new dormitories and food service building planned to complete the dormitory and food service area west of the English Coulee will not

FUND CHAIRMAN

WILLIAM T. DEPUY

It was a pleasure to accept the assignment this year as national chairman for the University of North Dakota Development Fund. Because I have been in close association with the University and the Alumni Board for several years, I know something of the history of the Fund, how it started, its objectives and its results.

Toward the end of 1945, the Alumni Association, as I remember it, had nothing but outstanding bills. Before 1945 very little money had been raised for University projects. It was decided by the Alumni Board of Directors and President West that the Association should launch a fund drive and establish the University of North Dakota Development Fund. From that date on, the success of the Fund has been phenomenal.

The first major project accepted by the Board was the promotion of its Medical Center. This project was successful: the Medical Center has become a reality and has made a great contribution to the health of the people of North Dakota and to medical education. It is supported by a one-mill levy.

The ALUMNI REVIEW has been printed ten times each year for the past twenty years. This, too, has been made possible because of the Development Fund. The REVIEW has kept alumni and friends informed of the needs and projects of the University. Too much credit cannot be given to the value of the REVIEW to the University. When I have made trips across the country, I have visited alumni and University friends who have told me many times that the way they keep in touch with the University is through the ALUMNI REVIEW. They can hardly wait for the next issue!

The Student Union project was made possible by private contributions. The original Student Union, completed in 1951, was built at a cost of $650,000. Before a bond issue could be sold, it was necessary to raise $250,000 in cash. This was done by alumni, friends, and students of the University. The new million-dollar addition, creating the University Center, has been made possible, too, through fees and gifts.

Our UND loan funds, scholarships, and faculty awards program has been one of the finest of any small university in the country. The generosity of alumni and friends to these projects has been sincerely appreciated. Many other projects come to mind which were made possible through the Development Fund including the swimming pool, the artificial ice in the Winter Sports Building, the Old Main Memorial, and of course, the Raymond Richards Golf Course, which is now nearing completion. The little theatre, known as the Burtness Theatre, was built by a gift from the estate of a former alumni board member, Olgar B. Burtness.

Another alumnus, Chester Fritz, has given more than $2,250,000 for a new library building, an auditorium, and a scholarship program. What a wonderful way for a man to invest his money!

The Alumni Board has many things in mind for the Development Fund in the future. We expect to build a Winter Sports Arena. In the future, too, we shall have a new Fine Arts Center. We will increase our faculty awards program.

Because of these and many other things made possible by you UND supporters, our University has become known as the "University of Outstanding Alumni." With your continued support of the Development Fund, the University will continue to lead as an outstanding institution academically, athletically, and in every other way. It's fun to be on a winning team; I consider it a privilege to serve as chairman this year for the University Development Fund. Please continue your support of this worthwhile program.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

It has been said that the "sum of man's highest obligations to his fellow man could be expressed in one word: education."

The UND Development Fund has compiled a record of alumni support that is the envy of other universities and colleges, including many institutions larger than we. Here are some comments about the Fund from loyal UND alumni who have been generous contributors:

"One of the best investments I make each year is a contribution to the University Development Fund. As President of the Alumni Association I would like to prescribe the same for you. I know that you will be pleased with the results."

Robert Eddy, ex'20, Jamestown, N. D., Development Fund chairman for North Dakota—

"I have served on the Alumni Board for eight years, and it has been a great satisfaction to me to learn of the fine things that have been accomplished through the scholarship program of the University Development Fund. I hope that you will add your contribution so that this worthwhile program may continue."

Dr. Erich Selke, Professor Emeritus of Education, University of North Dakota—

"As a retired member of the faculty I would like to add my indorsement of the program of the Alumni Association through the Development Fund for scholarships and faculty grants. The faculty is proud of the outstanding record of our graduates, and we appreciate their loyalty and generosity."

Gerald M. Skogley, '56, Business Manager, University of North Dakota—

"The University Development Fund continues to provide funds for the many "extras" which cannot be obtained in other ways and thus makes the great University possible. As we have seen by the inquiry of others, it has also clearly identified the alumni of the University of North Dakota as being "special."

SOME F-UND!

There are hundreds and hundreds of colleges and universities who have established development f-UNDS.

One of the most outstanding has been the Development F-UND of the University of North Dakota. It has gained a nationwide reputation for having the most loyal alumni of smaller universities.

There are many reasons for the record of the UND Development Fund. Much credit must go to the loyal alumni who respond with their contributions. And, there are the Alumni Board, campaign chairmen and state chairmen who work long and hard for their alma mater.

Perhaps another reason is the one word: f-UND. Look at it again. The three letters UND make up three-quarters of the word f-UND.

Of all the hundreds of colleges and universities who make use of the word f-UND, only UND can claim that it is an integral part of the word!

When you make your contribution to the Development F-UND, you're helping your alma mater keep its position as one of the outstanding of the nation.

PROGRAMS SET FOR UND CONVOCATIONS

A series of outstanding programs has been lined up for the 1965-66 UND Convocation series, starting with the October appearance of Ross Barnett, former governor of Mississippi.

The Winnipeg Symphony will appear in November, as will Senator Mike Monroney of Oklahoma. Spring convocations will feature the Carnegie Wind Quintet, Alonzo Rivera and Partner, Mexican dancers; Ralph J. Bunche, under-secretary for the U. S. delegation to the United Nations. The final program next April will feature the Paul Winter Jazz Sextet.

FINAL ENROLLMENT

The final on-campus enrollment for the first semester at UND is a record-breaking 6,042, an increase of 495 over the first semester total for last year.

WORK-STUDY PROGRAM

UND officials have announced details of a Work-Study Program designed to help students and prospective students of limited means finance their college education by working part time in either on-campus or off-campus jobs. UND is among the first four North Dakota institutions of higher learning to receive federal funds for the Work-Study Program.

President Starcher Outlines University Needs

be ready until September, 1967. We are starting 100 new units for married students, and 35 of them should be ready by February. While we shall soon start building our new Math-Physics building, we are experiencing a greater lag in buildings for academic uses than for housing. Office space for faculty members is at a premium. Presently we are seriously considering taking Budge Hall for administrative and faculty offices next year. Classrooms of adequate size and arranged to accommodate up-to-date teaching devices and techniques are urgently needed.

One of our most rapidly growing colleges, the College of Business and Public Administration, needs a building with appropriate classrooms and laboratories. This has been a high priority building for a long time. Engineering must have more space if the present plans for teaching and research are to be realized in the years ahead.

We are all mindful of the urgent need for an adequate gym for women's physical education. In the near future, after the present wave of student and faculty appeals and concern about ways especially designed to stimulate high academic excellence has waned (and I hope we never forget this most important function of a university and the basic objective of all our efforts), I predict we shall have a new reminder of the importance of physical development and of the need for attention to health considerations, too. We have more young women taking physical education now than we had men in the men's division when we built the fieldhouse. We are not ready to surrender our efforts to promote health and the physical development of our students, for a sound mind is still dependent upon a sound body. In the health field we have made little progress looking toward a satisfactory student health service. The need grows more obvious every year and soon we must seriously attack the problem of securing a suitable health service building. It is believed now that a combination student health service and college of nursing building would be the most economical solution of the need to house these two divisions. The nursing faculty need better quarters, appropriate classrooms and laboratories for their work. We already find that the space occupied by the College of Nursing in Twamley Hall is required for other administrative offices not in existence when Twamley Hall was built. Hence, the need to relocate the College of Nursing. The student health service urgently needs more space for diagnosis and out-patient services. In addition, rooms to permit isolating students who are ill and who would recover in a short time under proper treatment are very important, not only for the student who is ill but for the protection of other students who may come in contact with students not sick enough to send to the hospital but who should not be returned to their dormitories or other housing units.

As I look outside my window I see the bridge, so long hoped for by students and alumni, being constructed across the coulee. This will be an attractive, well-lighted, pre-stressed concrete bridge, which will again restore traffic crossing the coulee at the same location where the old wooden bridge once stood. This will be the Alice Fox Memorial Bridge, given by her husband.

Many changes academically, not visible as buildings and bridges, are taking place rapidly on the campus. The honors program has grown until now there are some 200 students enrolled. The faculty have been studying our humanities program and we look forward to the inauguration next year of a new program as a part of general education for all students. The freshman English program has been changed. Composition was reduced to one semester's course and we now offer a second semester of literature the sophomore year.

This year, as a cultural stimulus to the campus and to the community, we have in our midst Dr. Avard Fairbanks who is sculptor in residence and whose appointment was made possible by the assistance of the Robert D. Campbell Foundation. Alumni will hear more of him and his work in due time. Just now he is lecturing to classes in the humanities to the delight of all those who have heard him.

"A great university deserves great buildings," said a recent campus speaker. But above all a great university must have distinguished faculty members, committed to their tasks, and outstanding students capable of benefiting from contact with scholars and teachers who make up the "community of scholars" we want our University to be. Alumni and friends will be helping their University by recommending it to outstanding students and by nominating outstanding students to
