AMOS MARTIN
Chamber Executive

IDAR RIMESTAD
Federal Official

CARL SAMUELSON
Industry Leader

Two major functions top the alumni events scheduled during the 1967 UND Homecoming October 13 and 14: the Awards luncheon Friday, October 13, and the Alumni Dinner Saturday, October 14, according to J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice-president of the UND Alumni Association.

Amos Martin, a 1950 UND law school graduate and executive director of the Miami-Dade County (Florida) Chamber of Commerce, will be the featured speaker at the Awards Luncheon in the University Center at noon Friday. Carl Samuelson of Ojai, Calif., Idar Rimestad of Washington, D. C., and Martin will be presented with Sioux Awards during the affair.

Rimestad, a 1940 UND graduate who is now Under-Secretary of State for Administration, will speak at the Alumni Dinner at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the Westward Ho Convention Center. Special tables will be set at this dinner honoring the Class of 1957, the Alumni Board of Directors, the University Advisory Committee, Sioux Award winners, and other special guests.

All alumni and University friends are invited to attend both functions, Stone emphasized. Reservations are necessary, however, and may be made by contacting the Alumni Office, telephone 777-2611.

Other special events are also planned for Homecoming including a Ten-Year Reunion of the Medical Class of 1957, a Reunion of the alumni who went on the South American Tour, the annual Blue Key breakfast, special sorority and fraternity functions, and the fall meeting of the Alumni Board of Directors.

Regular Homecoming features including campus tours, the parade, the football game, and campus open houses are also scheduled. A calendar of events showing time and place is printed in this issue for your reference.

KFJM Radio Tower to Come Down

Another landmark will disappear from the UND campus this fall with the removal of the KFJM radio tower which was built in 1936 and which is one of the nation's last wooden radio towers of 160 feet or more in height. The structure has been serving the campus broadcasting facility for 31 years and will be replaced by a steel tower which will be the transmitting antenna.

The history of KFJM goes back to 1913 when it was one of three college radio stations in the United States. It was then used for broadcasting standard time signals and weather forecasts. The first formal KFJM broadcast was made in 1923.

North Dakota Day Planned for Vikings Game

The Baltimore Colts and the Minnesota Vikings meet in a National Football League game in Minneapolis on October 22, with the day highlighted by a salute to North Dakota and a special recognition to Dave Osborn, former UND football star.

Osborn's home town, Cando, has been active in plans for the special day, organizing a Dave Osborn Fan Club, and sponsoring the appearance of the Cando High School Band for pre-game ceremonies.

Special buses will be chartered by the Cando group, while effort is being made to have special trains run from North Dakota for football fans.

Osborn was a three-year star performer for the UND gridders, and has become a first string back with the Vikings.

INAUGURATE PROGRAM

UND has inaugurated a graduate degree program in library science this fall enabling students to earn the master's degree in library science. UND students may now major or minor in library science at the undergraduate or graduate level.

REPORT from the CAMPUS

By J. LLOYD STONE

AN OPEN LETTER TO JACK STEWART

Dear Jack:

In November, 1950, Grace and I drove to Phoenix to attend UND's first Camelback Reunion. We had heard many stories concerning the Inn, always described as one of the finest winter resorts in the world.

Naturally, we wondered just what kind of fellow Jack Stewart had turned out to be. I knew you, of course, in the late '20's at the University of North Dakota. I remembered you as a friendly, cheerful, determined fellow who knew how to get things done. I remembered fabulous stories of your skill as a 145-lb. all-state quarterback from Grafton High School. I remembered your reporting for University athletics and your aggressive campaigning when the stadium drive was underway when you and Paul Samuelson worked together as a great team making possible our Memorial Stadium.

We wondered as we approached Camelback Mountain if Louise Stewart would enjoy our reunions. Would she be friendly to a group of Nodaks from the Northern Plains? Would she accept our way of doing things. Had you changed? We even worried about it!

You and Louise met us at the entrance of the Inn as we walked up to register that day. Never have we felt more welcome any place than we did at Camelback, and the welcome we felt was generated to all guests throughout the Inn. For 17 years now we have been a part of your Camelback family. How privileged we have always considered ourselves to be counted among your friends.

Fred Davidson of Minneapolis, one of our directors, wrote me the other day and said, "Our annual get-together at Camelback Inn has been one of the most outstanding alumni events in this country. I know of no other school that holds such successful reunions. It has done so much to cement friendly relationships among our alumni. Without the hospitality of Jack and Louise Stewart, our reunions could never have been so successful. Camelback has been the highlight of the year for us. Lil and I are grateful for the opportunity we've had to meet many old friends and to make new ones. We hope Jack and Louise Stewart will continue to sponsor our reunions, even though Camelback has now been sold. We owe them a great debt.

It's been almost 17 years since the first UND alumni reunion at Camelback, and many things have happened there and at the University since then. During those years about 4,000 UND alumni have attended Camelback Reunions and enjoyed your warm hospitality. While our Nodaks were there, I know that many thoughts and much talk was of UND and early days spent in Grand Forks.

Some alumni may not realize that these Camelback Inn Reunions have been a very profitable venture for the University Development Fund. It is true that you, Jack, have always more than covered the expenses for the reunions for all of the officials from the University who have attended. Many of our alumni who have been guests there have made generous gifts to their Alma Mater, and I'm sure they were motivated by suggestions from you and other alumni at Camelback Inn.

During your visit early in September, it was fun to show you our campus and to share the pride in the changes that you saw here. You were especially thrilled with the new Raymond Richards Golf Course, the high-rise dormitories, the Chester Fritz Library, Twamley Hall, Burtness Theatre, the University Center (you were active in its building fund drive, too), and the new look of the fraternities and sororities.

One of the highlights of your visit was watching a practice session of the football team. Marv Helling stopped practice and asked his players to take a good look at the stadium, and then introduced you as one of the men responsible for the drive to raise funds for the structure. Your interest in sports at UND has continued over the years.

It was a genuine pleasure to spend a couple of hours with you in my office and to learn of your keen interest in the recognition of our American heritage and liberty. The plan you unfolded to me that morning was thrilling news to one who loves freedom and believes his Alma Mater is in a position to help spread the good word throughout the country.

At noon on September 4, 1967, you revealed your plan to a number of luncheon guests at the Westward Ho Motel. You announced a gift of $100,000 to the University of North Dakota.

As you outlined the plan for the Stewart gift, we all became interested in the idea behind the essay contest. It will certainly awaken a renewed awareness among all students of the value of the freedom and opportunity offered in America.

The Jack Stewart Sportsmanship Award will do much to attract fine athletes to the University. Both awards will help students in the years to come and will be living memorials to Jack and Louise Stewart.

I wish that all of our 35,000 alumni could have been present at the luncheon to hear the words of heartfelt gratitude expressed by your lifelong friends. In a way, they spoke for all of us.

Jack, in my more than 20 years as alumni director, I must say that you have been one of the most loyal supporters and enthusiastic backers we've had. Your enthusiasm has spread to your family and we now claim them as adopted Nodaks.

Elsewhere in this issue there is a story about your book, "We Met at Camelback,"

● Report

which will be published this fall. We are looking forward to reading it, and I am confident that a great number of alumni will want to buy copies, particularly those who have attended reunions at Camelback.

I could write pages about you and Louise and your devotion to Camelback and your love for the University. I hope that your future plans will include many visits back to Grand Forks and your Alma Mater. You will always be welcome here. Thank you, Jack and Louise, for your wonderful gift, for your friendship, and for all you have done to help make the University of North Dakota a great school.

JACK STEWART

HAS MOST TO OFFER

A midwestern educator believes that UND has the most to offer as a leader in developing a graduate school of social work in Northern Plains states. He is Dr. Ralph E. Pumphrey, professor of social work at Washington University, St. Louis, who recommends a pooling of resources by Northern Plains states to create a major graduate school of social work.

He stated that "such a school might achieve national standing for its excellence," and cited the need for a regional university to develop graduate professional training at a more advanced level in such fields as medicine, dentistry and veterinary science, as well as sociology.

Jack Stewart Gives $100,000 to University

Jack Stewart of Phoenix, Ariz., an alumnus of the University of North Dakota, has given UND $100,000 to finance two annual awards. Interest from the trust established by Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will finance $5,000 in prizes annually for an essay contest for UND students on America's heritage and freedom and a $500 annual sportsmanship award to a UND athlete.

Announcement of the gift was made Sept. 4 by J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association. Stewart operated Camelback Inn near Phoenix since 1936 until selling it in August. The Inn has been the site of many UND alumni reunions.

Stewart, who attended UND during the 20's, said he hopes that the annual essay contest will awaken in UND students a renewed awareness of the value of freedom and opportunity offered in America. The contest will provide a top annual prize of $1,500 and other prizes of $1,000, $500, $300 and $200, plus five $100 cash awards. There also will be plaques and medallions for honorable mention winners in the contest.

Details of the contest will be worked out by a committee approved by the University and Stewart, but the theme of the first competition will be "Our American Heritage — How Can It Be Eternally Yours?" Similar themes will be chosen each year.

Named to the committee to oversee the contest were Stone; UND President George W. Starcher; Ralph Roth, E. E. Simmons, Harold Boe, Loyde C. Thompson and Marv Helling, all of Grand Forks; State Sen. Milton Kelly, Devils Lake; former Gov. and American Legion National Commander John E. Davis, Bismarck; John Donnelly, Grafton; and Fred Davidson, Minneapolis.

The $500 Jack Stewart Sportsmanship Award will be administered by the UND athletic department, with the winner to be chosen on the basis of sportsmanship, popularity, effort, morale and citizenship. It may go to an athlete in any sport at the University. Plaques honoring the winners of the essay contest and the sportsmanship award will be placed in a suitable location at the University each year.

Stewart's connection with UND athletics extends back to his student days when he was sports publicist for the University and later was publicity director and assistant manager for the campaign which led to the construction of Memorial Stadium. He is a native of Grafton. He received an Alumni Association "Sioux Award" from UND in 1963. He was also a fund chairman in the alumni drive for the Student Union building.

He and his wife will continue to live at their home at Camelback Inn, which will continue to be managed by Jack Stewart Jr., who assumed that position when his father retired from it late last year. The Marriott Hotel Co. of Washington, D. C., purchased the Inn.

The Alumni Office has received a copy of a letter sent to Jack Stewart from Dr. Alden W. Squires, a graduate of UND class of 1927. He says: "Dear Jack:

"My mother has relayed to me a clipping from the Grand Forks Herald of September 5th, containing the report of the splendid gift which you and your wife recently made to UND. I want to tell you that I am personally both proud of and grateful to you for remembering our Alma Mater so generously. Also I congratulate you for the wisdom and good taste which led you to choose the particular types of awards you designated.

"I was thinking what a great fortune a $1500 prize would have been to anyone in our own student-generation, when one would exert himself to the utmost to win a 20-dollar medal! It is a wonderful improvement to have such a lavish award made available to some deserving student each year, to say nothing of the lesser awards all of which are of handsome proportions. This fund is certainly one of the finest types of memorial gifts that could be conceived and it will become a perpetual reminder of your loyalty and good judgment.

"I am also very glad that you chose the essay-topic which was announced for the first competition. The theme of America's heritage is one that needs far more emphasis than it often receives. Thank God you did not earmark your awards for competitions in "modern literature" or "creative art!"

"Altogether this act of yours is so wholesome, productive and well considered—in addition to its remarkable generosity—that I cannot resist my urge to tell you I am applauding it vigorously.

"Yours very sincerely,
"Alden W. Squires"

BOOK TO BE PUBLISHED ABOUT CAMELBACK INN

"We Met at Camelback" is the title of a 250-page book which will be published this fall telling the story of Jack and Louise Stewart and their lives in creating Camelback Inn through three decades.

Written by Charles S. Stevenson, a many-time guest at the Inn who is a former vice-president of Hallmark, Inc., and author of hundreds of articles, the book has 27 chapters and many illustrations.

The story starts during the time that Jack was a student at UND and follows with his experiences in the resort business. The first guest was Robert Zuppke, famous football coach, and the second was Ted Lewis, well-known entertainer.

The book includes details about UND reunions at Camelback and will be of particular interest to alumni who have attended the gatherings. It is anticipated that many alumni will wish to order copies for themselves and for gift giving.

The book sells for $5 post-paid and may be ordered direct from "Snowball," the voice of Camelback. The profits from the sale of books to alumni will go to the UND Development Fund.

UND Sioux Awards to be Given at Homecoming

CAMELBACK RESERVATIONS RECOMMENDED NOW

The 18th Annual UND Camelback Inn reunion will start December 30, 1967, and conclude on January 7, 1968, with early reservations urged because of space limitation.

The special North Dakota rate is $20 daily per person, when two people occupy a double room. Private rooms are $25 per person. Because of conflicts, there is a limit on rooms available, which will be allotted on a "first reserve" basis.

Highlights of the Camelback Reunion will be a special banquet January 5 and a dinner-dance January 6.

A UND registration fee of $5 per person should be included with reservations. Reservations are open now and should be made to: Jack Stewart, Jr., Camelback Inn, Scottsdale, Ariz. 85252.

CAMPUS FOOTNOTES

A $93,867 research professorship in physiology and pharmacology has been awarded the UND Medical School by the Louis W. and Maud Hill Family Foundation of St. Paul. "The University has received more than half a million dollars from the Hill organization during the past six years," noted Dr. T. H. Harwood, Medical School dean, "and these grants have made it possible to secure personnel whose teaching and research contributions are highly significant and beneficial."

—UND—

A record total of 346 students were awarded degrees at the 47th Summer Commencement during August at UND. There were 15 doctor's degrees, 205 master's degrees and 126 bachelor's degrees.

—UND—

A National Science Foundation grant of $32,900 has been awarded the UND biology department for a two-year study of the activities of ants and other social insects headed by Dr. Paul B. Kannonowski, '49. Research will be conducted at Oakville Prairie, an 800-acre biology field station near Emerald, and at UND.

CARL SAMUELSON

executive

California citrus industry

Carl Samuelson was born in Spring Grove, Minn., and has become an industrial and civic leader in Ventura, Calif., where he is a co-owner of the Ventura Pacific Co., a citrus packing house, and president of the Council of California Growers.

He was recently featured as a "self-made man" in the Ventura newspaper, which traced his career from a farm family that lived in a one-room sod hut to his executive position with a firm that handles one million field boxes of fruit annually.

Samuelson received his elementary education at a one-room South Dakota school house. His family could not help him financially for his high school education, so he took a number of part-time jobs to pay for his room and board. Upon his graduation from high school at age 17, Samuelson accepted his first full-time job — teaching all eight grades and doing the janitorial work in a one-room school. His salary was $90 a month.

In 1926 he enrolled at UND with the hope of becoming a dentist. But his plans were altered and he majored in accounting and business administration. He made his way to Los Angeles, where he sold cars and worked for a public accounting firm.

Samuelson began his career in the citrus industry as office manager of a packing house in San Fernando. Ten years later he started a packing house of his own. Today the Ventura Pacific Co. handles the lemons of about 80 growers, and for several years has picked, processed, packed and shipped approximately 1,000,000 field boxes of fruit annually. The firm pioneered in the shipping of lemons in corrugated cartons.

Not only has he been a successful businessman, but he has served ten years as a councilman, and is a leader and member of several organizations in the citrus industry. He is serving his second term as president of the Council of California growers. Samuelson and his family reside in a spacious home overlooking Ojai Valley.

IDAR RIMESTAD

Deputy Under Secretary of State for Administration

Alsen, N. D., is the birthplace of Idar Rimestad who started his foreign service career in 1941 is the top administrative officer and fifth ranking officer in the U. S. State Department, serving as Deputy Under Secretary of State for Administration.

Rimestad was nominated to his position last January by President Lyndon B. Johnson, with Senate confirmation on January 26, 1967.

He received a bachelor of philosophy degree from UND in 1940 and began his government career as a specialist in the field of personnel administration. During World War II he served as a salary and wage analyst with the War Department.

Rimestad went with the Atomic Energy Commission in 1945, serving as a classification and wage analyst. As a salary and wage specialist, he rose to director of the program, European Command, Frankfurt, Germany, from 1947 to 1949. Rimestad entered the Foreign Service as a Foreign Service Staff Officer, becoming chief of the Bonn, Germany, personnel division in 1953.

In 1957 he was assigned to Moscow where he served for three years as Consul and First Secretary. In 1964 he was assigned to Paris as Counselor of Embassy for Administration and Counselor and Executive Director of U. S. Mission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and European Regional Organizations.

Rimestad is married to the former Ann Prestbo, and they have two daughters. His is a true success story of a North Dakota Alumnus who has achieved the fifth ranking officer position in the 25,000 persons employed by the U. S. State Department throughout the world.

WINS MERIT AWARD

"History of North Dakota" by UND Professor Elwyn B. Robinson has received an Award of Merit from the American Association for State and Local History. Dr. Robinson spent 20 years in research and writing the book, which is the first comprehensive history of North Dakota.

AMOS MARTIN

Executive Vice Pres., Chamber of Commerce, Miami

Amos Martin holds two degrees from the University of North Dakota, and has had a spectacular career in Chamber of Commerce work, now serving as executive vice president of the Miami-Dade County Chamber of Commerce, Miami, Fla.

A native of Wisconsin, Martin received his bachelor of commerce degree from UND in 1949 and his bachelor of law degree in 1950. He was the first manager of the Memorial Student Union at UND, serving from 1950 to 1953.

From 1953 to 1960 he was executive vice president of the Grand Forks Chamber of Commerce, before moving to become general manager of the Chamber of Commerce at Evansville, Ind. In 1965 he was named executive vice president of the Miami-Dade County Chamber of Commerce, one of the largest in the United States.

Martin was an officer in the U. S. Naval Air Force during World War I. He holds membership in Phi Alpha Delta honorary law fraternity, and Blue Key, national honorary fraternity.

In his career as a Chamber of Commerce executive, Martin has held many key positions on a regional and national level and is currently executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Americas.

He is married to the former Grace Ellen Whiteside, and they have four children. The Martins have kept a close relationship with UND and are often hosts to former Nodaks who visit Florida.

Gamble, Skogmo Foundations Make $200,000 Gift

A gift of $200,000 has been received by the Development Fund of the University of North Dakota to be used to furnish and equip a new classroom building, and awarding of contracts for the $1.8 million structure has been completed.

The new building, which will house the College of Business and Public Administration, will be erected on the former site of Macnie Hall, which was razed in September. Construction has already begun and is expected to be finished by the fall of 1968.

The $200,000 contribution was made by the B. C. Gamble and P. W. Skogmo Foundations of Minneapolis. Reception of the gift was announced by J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association, and Thomas J. Clifford, dean of the UND College of Business and Public Administration.

Head of the Foundations and chairman of the board of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., is Bertin C. Gamble, who received an honorary doctor of laws degree from UND in June, 1965.

Stone reported that this is the third large gift given to the UND Development Fund by the Gamble and Skogmo Foundations. The other gifts have been directed towards scholarships and faculty award grants.

Contracts for construction of the classroom building have been recommended for approval by the Board of Higher Education. Awarding of the contracts totalling $1,582,723 was announced by Gerald M. Skogley, UND comptroller.

The general contract was awarded to the Witcher Company of Minneapolis with a bid of $1,024,700. The $168,090 electrical contract went to Midwestern Electrical, Grand Forks. Detweiler Brothers of Twin Falls, Idaho, received the plumbing, heating and air conditioning contract with a bid of $225,156. The $134,777 ventilating contract was awarded to C. L. Linfoot Co., East Grand Forks, Minn.

Architects for the structure are Wells Denbrook and Associates, Inc., of Grand Forks. The three story building will contain about 30 classrooms and several offices.

Funds are being provided through $1 million in state funds, a $500,000 grant from the U. S. Office of Education, plus a supplemental federal grant of $100,000 made possible by the $200,000 Gamble and Skogmo Foundations gift.

Norman Bursheim, '58, is chairman of the art department in the Clackamas Community College, Milwaukie, Ore. He had taught for many years in the Oregon City High School.

Committee Issues Long Range Plan for UND

A report containing guidelines for the operation of the University of North Dakota for the next several years was recently issued on the UND campus. Titled "Priorities for Progress," the report of the Long Range Planning Committee (LRPC) was distributed at the general meeting which initiated the 1967-68 academic year for some 450 faculty members.

The 20-page printed publication represents the crystallization of ideas that have been pondered for a year by task force committees made up of 111 faculty and administrative officers and 40 students. The LRPC steering committee, consisting of 13 members of the faculty and administration, began work in October, 1966. Dr. W. E. Koenker, vice president for academic affairs, is chairman of LRPC.

Dr. George W. Starcher, UND president, said "long range planning is an attempt by an institution to establish rational control over its own destiny. We have attempted to select and define the educational objectives of the University, determine the means required for achieving them, and prepare for systematic achievement of those objectives within a stated period of time."

The report contains: A statement of goals; 39 recommendations of first-order priority; 20 recommendations of second-order priority; 10 recommendations of third-order priority; and 42 suggestions, consisting of references to approved policies or practices presently in effect or indicating support for a plan or recommendation that has been approved but not yet implemented.

Dr. Koenker stressed the continuing nature of long range planning. "Publishing a document setting forth goals and recommendations does not terminate the planning task," he stated. "Meaningful planning must be a continuing endeavor. Several of the task force committees have asked permission to continue their planning work. A number of University Senate committees will be asked to formulate and recommend policy alternatives concerning issues which the

Study Surfacing

The use of fly ash, an industrial waste, as a money-saving substitute for low-strength concrete in road construction and similar projects is being studied by a UND researcher.

He is Oscar Manz, associate professor of civil engineering. He and his assistants have laid a test strip of what Manz calls "ashcrete," a mixture of 50 percent gravel and 50 percent fly ash and slag.

The strip is laid as the entrance to a parking lot on the UND campus, and will be tested for strength, expansion and flexibility. Research is being supported by a $12,600 contract from Otter Tail Power Co., a firm that faces the accumulation and removing of fly ash and slag.

UND ENROLLMENT HITS 7,777

UND enrollment has reached a record total of 7,777, with late registrations expected to boost the total. The total includes 6,949 on the UND campus, 343 at the UND-Williston Center, and 485 at the UND-Ellendale branch. The three-campus enrollment is nearly seven percent above last year's total.
