Fieldhouse Takes Shape

This first photograph of the interior of the new University fieldhouse shows work progressing rapidly. Pouring of concrete bleachers (directly below row of windows) is now underway. Plans are being made to the $825,000 structure to use during the 1951-52 school year.

U Building Tops $6,000,000, Present, Past and Future

Campus construction, present, past and future, has reached the total of $6,182,000 since March, 1948.

On March 8, 1948, the contract covering the first phase in the multi-million dollar expansion program was let for the construction of the Medical Science building. Cost: $400,000.

Since that time four other projects have been tabbed "completed". They are the Memorial Student union, $600,000; paving of campus driveways, $75,000; expanding campus steamlines, $92,000; and the Lignite Research laboratory, $750,000, a federal project.

Under construction now are the Engineering building, $400,000; men's dormitory, $350,000; women's dormitory, $400,000; and the Fieldhouse and Gymnasium, $850,000.

Funds were made available by the last session of the state legislature for a $600,000 replacement for Woodworth hall, education building destroyed by fire. The legislature also allotted $400,000 for expansion of the power plant.

Planned for construction in the near future are an addition to the Medical Science building, $600,000; swimming pool in the Fieldhouse,

Mill City Pastor, World Traveler To Talk Here

Dr. Homer J. Armstrong of Minneapolis will be the summer session commencement speaker at exercises on August 9, according to John E. Howard, convocation chairman.

Armstrong is pastor of Judson Memorial church in Minneapolis. During the summer of 1950 he conducted a tour of the major countries of Europe. He had an audience with the Pope at the Vatican while visiting Rome.

Following his European trip, Armstrong visited Middle East countries in which he interviewed American consuls, United Nations officials, prominent educators, missionaries, scientists and military men.

Armstrong was in Germany during the summer of 1934 when Hitler came into power and had an opportunity to study Fascism close at hand.

He received his B.A. degree in sacred literature from Drake University, Des Moines, Ia., and was ordained at University Place Church of Christ, Des Moines, in 1924.

He attended the Boston university school of religious education and social service, school of theology and graduate school. In 1927 he received his M.A. in social sciences, and then studied three more years for his doctor's degree.

Armstrong is director of the Minneapolis church federation. During the summer of 1952, he will lead a tour to Egypt and Palestine.

Editorial:

4 Years for Medics

Deans of four medical schools have been engaged to survey conditions at the University to determine the feasibility of instituting a four-year medical school here. When the survey is completed, they will submit recommendations to the state medical center advisory council.

Many people throughout the state have long been hoping for and working toward an accredited four-year medical school here. Through the efforts of the medical school's Dean W. F. Potter, the late head of the University medical center, John Page, the administration, and other interested persons, actual work will soon begin to determine whether the University will have a four-year medical school.

There are two large factors in favor of the four-year school. First is the new St. Michael's hospital being built near the campus which can serve the clinical needs of the final two years of medical training. Secondly, the new medical building, even larger than the present one, which will begin construction this fall, will provide adequate space for the instructors and classrooms of a four-year school.

All that stands in the way of a complete medical course is the assurance that an acceptable four-year school could be developed. The survey to be taken will help to determine this possibility.

A four-year medical school at UND would be a great boon to the University and to the state. More doctors trained in the state would give outlying areas better medical facilities, and the larger areas a chance to expand medical care.

Those working on the long and difficult task of instituting a four-year medical school at UND deserve all the credit and praise we can offer. Anyone connected with the University knows that the four-year medical school will be a great step toward making the University one of the best and most complete in the country.

Teacher Education Group To Visit Here Next Year

The University will be visited by the Inter-visitation Committee of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education during the school year of 1952-53, Dean Garold D. Holstine, dean of the school of education revealed.

The purpose of this committee will be to evaluate and examine teacher education programs on the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Deans, presidents, and professors of education from about a dozen schools in the U. S. will comprise the committee which will inspect University facilities, as part of the schools of the nation offering courses and programs for creditation.

Inspections of the University will cover six major points:

The organization of college and personnel service to students, preparitory experience of faculty, the teaching load of the faculty, instructional curriculum and professional lab and student teaching.

Also on the evaluation agenda is the library and material center, and the advance professional program.

Dean Holstine reported that plans are being made for local evaluation, by the education school staff, of all departments of the University which are related to the total preparation of teachers. This local evaluation will be held before the visitation of the national committee takes place.

Dean Holstine To Head State Air Education

Dr. Garold Holstine, dean of the the school of education, was recently named state chairman of the North Dakota committee for air education by the Board of Directors of the National Aviation Education council. Holstine will contact people actively interested in aviation education, industry, labor and government to function within the state.

Holstine is not new in the field of air education. Two years ago he was one of six educators called to Washington to prepare an administrative manual for colleges and universities in teacher education. The manual indicated what could be done with education in keeping with the air age.

Later this month school administrators will be taken for flights from Grand Forks International airport. The plan for air education is to give a better insight into the subjects of geography, weather, traffic, soil, and flight itself.

"Grade and high school students, as well as college students and teachers can benefit from education air excursions," Doctor Holstine concluded.

Dean Holstine worked with the initial group in Oklahoma state and is anticipating real development in North Dakota.

Summer Commencement To Be Held in Union

Summer session commencement exercises will be held in the Student Union ballroom this year instead of the armory as in previous years, according to a decision made by the commencement committee Thursday. The change was made in view of the fact that the lounge could be opened up to increase the seating capacity, John E. Howard, chairman of the committee, said.

Dr. Overn Heads Newest Of UND Major Divisions

Establishment of the graduate school as one of the major divisions of the University has been announced formally by President John C. West.

Formerly an adjunct of the school of education, the graduate school now becomes a formal organization embracing all advanced work beyond the bachelor's degree done at the University.

The graduate school continues under the direction of Dr. A. V. Overn, the president's announcement said.

President West pointed out that the graduate school has grown in enrollment to the extent that it is now equal to, or larger than, some of the other schools or colleges on the campus. Nearly 300 advanced students were enrolled during the regular school year, and this summer graduate enrollment has soared to an all-time high of 462.

President West added: "The graduate school under the direction of Dr. Overn will serve more abundantly the needs of those who seek to advance in the fields of engineering, education, medicine, commerce, and science, literature and arts. It is fully accredited and its future is bright indeed."

The graduate school thus has general supervision of the graduate work of all the colleges and schools of the University. Its purposes are to provide students who wish to study beyond the limits of undergraduate courses; to make University resources available in any combinations meeting occupational and cultural needs of qualified graduate students; to encourage original investigation and creative scholarship; and to provide, when possible, expert consultant service for groups of citizens concerned with important problems.

All Activities Free

All activities are free! That's what Don Layton, manager of the coulee bank playground wants to get across to all students. Anyone may use the archery equipment, horseshoes, croquet, bicycles, and all other equipment free of charge at any time during the playground hours, Layton asserted.

String Quartet Features Next Campus Convo

The Samuel Flor string quartet will play an hour of chamber music at convocation Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the Student Union ballroom.

Flor, first violinist, joined the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra three years ago. Prior to coming to this country three years ago, he was the leader of a Flor string quartet in Europe and with it traveled throughout central and southeastern Europe for nine years.

The present Flor quartet was organized by Flor when he became a member of the Macalaster college, St. Paul, music faculty. He was added to the faculty to develop a chamber music interest at Macalaster.

Other members of the quartet are Walter Targ, second violin; William Bagwall, viola, and Jess Melzer, violin cello. All are top musicians in their own right, John E. Howard, convocation chairman said.

Their program will feature "Quartet in D Major, Opus 64, No. 5" by Haydn in four movements; "The Bonnie Banks O' Loch Lomond" by Alfred Pochon; "The Mill" by Raff; "Nocturne" by Borodine and a "Czech Dance" by Dvorak.

5 Films on Program For Tuesday Movies

A selection of five movies will be shown Tuesday night in the ballroom of the Student Union. Dick Hovet, in charge of the summer movie program, listed Tuesday night's movies: "Men and Oil," "Before and After," a visual story on interior decorating, "Southern Highlands," about life in the hills of the South, "Clear Waters," on the operation of a city water plant, and a comedy.

Competition will be held for both men's and women's teams, with the tournament bowling to begin on the Union alleys at 1 p.m. Teams may bowl when they wish from that time until 7 p.m. when the final top teams will compete for tourney honors.

Nelson Eddy to Appear Here During 1951-'52 Artist Series

Two vocal soloists, a husband-wife piano team, a boys choir and a string quartet will make up the program for the 1951-52 Artist series according to John E. Howard, general chairman for the Grand Forks Music association.

Bartlett and Robertson, the pianist team, will present a two-piano recital on their own Steinway pianos during the season. Soloists who will perform are Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Nelson Eddy, baritone.

The concert choir of the famous Columbus, Ohio, Boys choir school of 40 voices directed by Herbert Huffman will participate in the series with a varied program while one of the world's premiere string quartets, the Paganini String quartet will present a concert. Members of the quartet are Henry Tamianka, Gustave Rosseles, Charles Foidart and Adolphe Frezin.

Exact dates of the series numbers will be announced by August 1, Howard said, as soon as they are approved by the Columbus Artist Management of New York city under whose management the attractions will appear.

A special feature of this years Artist Series will be a "Young Artist Night" which will be included at no extra cost. Plans are now under consideration for tryouts during the coming season for young singers or performers on musical instruments. Outside judges of recognized reputations will select the young performers to appear on the program. Details of this phase of the project are in charge of a committee headed by Dr. Elroy Schroeder, superintendent of Grand Forks public schools.

There will be no increase in ticket prices even though artist fees have increased greatly during the last 12 months, Howard said. Student tickets will be $3.60 including tax while adult tickets are $6 and $7.80. Those wishing to hold the same seats must apply with remittance before August 31. After September 15, the ticket board will be open to general sale in Room 1, Merrifield hall, Howard said.

Final Band Concert Now Slated August 1

The third and final summer session band concert scheduled for July 25 is postponed until August 1, according to John E. Howard, convocation chairman.

The change has been made as Howard and two of the band members, Donald Paul and Ronald Warcup will attend the biennial convention of Kappa Kappa Psi, honorary band fraternity, at the University of Indiana, Bloomington, from July 25 to 29.

Howard is governor of the fraternities' fourth district and a past president of the grand chapter while Paul and Warcup have been chosen as members of the National Intercollegiate band which will play at the convention.

Dickinson TC Head To Visit on Campus

President C. E. Scott, Dickinson state teachers college, will be on the campus July 19 in co-operation with the school of education and the Phi Delta Kappa, national educational honorary, campus visitation of college presidents program for the summer session. The first stage of the University power plant expansion is in progress with the Kehne Electric company, Grand Forks, digging trenches from the power plant to the northwest corner of the campus for the laying of an electric cable.

Another trench following the same route will be dug for a steam pipe line. The electric cable and steam line are to serve the two new dormitories now under construction.

Correspondent Predicts:

U. S. in Crucial Period, War Possible in 1952

By MARY ANN HEDER

If the United States gets over the crucial period, between now and October, there will be no war until next summer, John C. Metcalfe, former diplomatic correspondent for Time magazine and the New York Herald Tribune, said in answering the major question, "Will there be war between the United States and Soviet Russia?" at convocation Tuesday.

The United States, Metcalfe said, is faced with the most crucial period in our history. Much of our trouble, he said, could be traced to lack of strong national leadership. In describing the diplomatic scene, Metcalfe said, that we have had five secretaries of state in the last half dozen years which has created unnecessary confusion. He then commented on the secretaries of state which included Cordell Hull, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., James F. Byrnes, Gen. George C. Marshall and Dean Acheson.

Dean Acheson was described by Metcalfe as one of the most controversial figures in Washington today. Acheson's severest critics can't find anything wrong with the military program as Acheson saw it, Metcalfe said. It is absolutely necessary for the secretary of state to have the confidence of congress and the support of the American people. This, Metcalfe believes, Acheson does not have. Unless a secretary of state has this support, Metcalfe said, he should resign.

In answering the question, "Where are we going from here?" Metcalfe said, there is room for optimism and we are making progress. We have, he said, succeeded in the past through the United Nations. "It's going to be difficult to establish lasting peace," he said and then went on to point out that it would take contributions of generations.

In closing his address, Metcalfe said that we are faced with the most violent forces and all our beliefs are at stake. Unless we stand for what we have, our whole foreign policy will turn to dust, he concluded.

Haahr Art Collection Goes on Display Monday

Portraits, landscapes, and humorous cartoons done in both paint and pencil may be seen in the Louis J. Haahr memorial collection on display in the University art department beginning Monday and continuing through July 30. Louis J. Haahr was one of the youngest students to enroll in the University, and his artistic skill was unusual, said Prof. Paul E. Barr. Haahr, an art major, left school as an army officer before graduation and was killed in action on Midanao in 1945.

Playmakers Rush Play Preparations

"Papa Is All," a three-act play which will be presented by the summer session playmakers July 26-27, is a comedy concerning the lives, romances and frustrations of a Menonite family in Pennsylvania.

The play, written by Patterson Greene, takes place in the home of Papa and Mama Aukamp with their son Jake and daughter Emma.

The home life and religion of this Menonite family is very strict, and when Papa learns that his daughter has gone to a movie in the city with a boyfriend, he becomes furious and goes out with murder in his eye to avenge what he calls an outrage to his family honor.

Jake, Emma's staunch supporter, knocks Papa out with a monkey wrench and loads him on a out-bound freight before he can get to Emma's suiter and claim his vengeance.

Papa eventually returns, and the plot then takes a few unexpected turns.

The play, under the direction of S. Donald Robertson, will be presented in West grade school.

Annual Arvilla Outing Slated Sunday, July 22

The annual summer session picnic at the Arvilla state park will be held July 22. The picnic is a family affair, and all students and faculty members and their families are invited to attend. The Sunday outing is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., and free coffee will be served.

They also may indicate if they want the Student Union food service to pack a bag lunch to take along. All persons are asked to sign by noon Friday.

There are swimming facilities at the park, and other entertainment will be arranged by the physical education department.

By VENOY DRAPER

An expanded physical education program is in the cards upon completion of the fieldhouse next fall, says Phy Ed Director Leonard Marti.

He said after required subjects are completed students would have more electives plus later opportunity for specialization.

Marti added that more time and Equipment already available at the audio-visual center includes: two 16 mm projectors, three film strip projectors, two screens, one tape recorder and a Speed-Graphic news camera.

"This is just the beginning of our instructional material center which will be increased greatly in the new education building when completed," Dr. Garold D. Holstine, head of the school of education, stated.

Faculty Members Make Speech Trips

Members of the University faculty will continue their tour of North Dakota and nearby Minnesota cities throughout the summer. This group is speaking to the business and professional organizations on the significance of higher education in the military program, and the significance to the business man.

Included in the tours thus far are: D. J. Robertson, Ben G. Gustafson, R. D. Koppenhaver, John E. Howard, Alvin E. Austin, Capt. James Burgess and Maj. Jesse C. Davis.

Cities to be covered by members of this group for the remainder of the summer include: Minot, Kulm, Lisbon, Wahpeton, Harvey, Cavalier, Larimore, and Thief River Falls, Minn.

8-Ball Tournament Scheduled for Union

An eight-ball pool tournament will be held in the Student Union game room at 3 p.m. Thursday, according to Tom Manley and Buzz Gray, tournament managers. Those wishing to take part in the tournament should register in the game room or at the information desk by Wednesday.

space will be available to the physical department making it possible to devote more time to such activities as badminton, archery, handball and squash rackets. Previously those have been hard to crowd into the program because the department had to share the armory with the ROTC.

Availability of more time and space will also affect the teacher training program, Marti announced. Some new subjects are to be added to the graduate division, he added. Marti mentioned that more activities for the handicapped are being planned, also more recreational games of a social nature.

Add 11 Members To UND Faculty For Fall Semester

Eleven additions to the University faculty have been announced by D. J. Robertson, assistant to the president, for the fall term.

Donald H. Poole, instructor in geography; Dr. Donald F. Towe, assistant professor geology; and Dr. Benjamin DeBoer, professor pharmacology.

Mid-Term Tests Strike Campus

Now is the time for the monument to memory of every summer session, mid-term examination time. This week marked the hectic session period as mid-term exams were scheduled in many courses.

"My, my, so this the library?" was the comment one student registered, maybe we could call this wee get-with-it at the library.

Undergraduates seem to place stock in the phrase, "You'll never be free, 'till you get your degree." While the graduate students became keenly aware of the fact that "C" wasn't in season and Able and Baker were the goals they must attain.

So it went, and the cool North Dakota weather co-operated with the students who wanted to have those courses "cold."

U Grants 11,294 Degrees

By A. L. MONROE

Just think of it—11,294. That number doesn't seem like it means anything to you, but if you were compiling the records in the Office of the Registrar it would mean the total number of degrees granted by the University from 1889 through June of this year. And that doesn't count the 54 honorary degrees which have been bestowed over the past 62 years. This brings the grand total up to 11,348 degrees, which include not the the Hienz '57', but 59 different degrees, including bachelors, masters, doctors and even one certificate of merit.

The largest number of these is the bachelor of arts degree, UND has granted 2,702. Bachelors in education degrees counted for 1,925, while bachelor degrees in commerce followed with 1,629. Eighty-nine students received juris doctors, while the law school has granted 807 LL. B. degrees, and 711 have received bachelors degrees in medicine. A total of 10,333 bachelors degrees have been awarded.

Four-hundred and forty have been granted their masters degrees in education and 297 have received degrees for M.A. work, and 121 for M.S. achievements.

A total of 52 doctors degrees have been awarded.

The University is building a huge educational plant, the improvements since the University began in 1883 are often looked upon from the brick-by-brick point of view, but we can be proud of the fact that we are going forward by degrees also, and that of course is the primary function of the University.

Band Impressive In Second Concert

A large crowd heard the summer session band play its second outdoor concert under the direction of John E. Howard Wednesday night. Band alumni assisted with the concert as part of "Band Alumni Night."

The band after four weeks of rehearsals, proved itself to be a very impressive ensemble.

Following the concert, the band and its alumni held a social hour at the Student Union. Band alumni playing in the concert were Curtis Malm, Jerome Hager, Ray Bostrom and William Pond of Grand Forks, Harry Hildebrecht of Bakersfield, Calif., Miss Evelyn Russell of Glendive, Mont., and Kenneth Cross of Fargo.

Urge Session Grads to Pay Diploma Fees

Students who expect to receive degrees at the August 9 commencement are urged by Registrar Ruby M. McKenzie to report to the business office at once to pay diploma fees.

Veterans who are degree candidates should check with the veterans' records office to ascertain if the fee is being paid for them, Miss McKenzie said.

A fee of $5 is charged for all bachelor diplomas, with the exception that candidates for bachelor of science degrees in education pay $7.

Candidates for masters and doctors degrees should make a $10 hood deposit at the business office. Of this, $8 is refunded when the hood is returned. Veterans must pay an $8 hood deposit, all of which is returned after the commencement.

Badminton Tourney Starts Wednesday

A badminton tournament, part of the summer recreational program, will be held Wednesday and Thursday in the University armory, according to Al Clyne, tournament manager.

Those interested in participating should be at the armory at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday. The tournament will be for both men singles and mixed doubles.
