Editorial:

It's Time for Decision

If you are a veteran receiving training under the G. I. bill, it is dangerously close to the time when you must state your intentions as to the course of study you are pursuing. July 25—next Wednesday—has been given as the last day for making your future plans known.

In the past years it has been a common practice for veterans to pick up a wide variety of courses. Although some of these did pertain to a specific field, many were taken to raise grade points or give the individual enough hours to assure him of government aid. The Veterans Administration feels that too many ex-G.I.'s have been taking unfair advantage of the training offered. Its theory is that no one benefits from pointless study. In the past a lot of tax money was paid to men who were merely killing time or feeling around for a course that suited them. However, if this policy is continued through the summer session, veterans will find they can receive no more training under the bill. The degree toward which you are working must be made known to the veterans administration while you are actually in training.

To continue on the bill, veterans must establish a definite goal; they must state the degree toward which they are working; and they must do so before July 25. If this is done your training will be continued until your course is finished or until your G. I. time runs out.

Do yourself a favor by taking stock of your education plans right now. Set your sights for a definite goal and then contact your V. A. office informing them of your intentions. It will make your study more worthwhile and will insure your continued work under the bill. —D. H. DeK.

Life at the University is being glamorized. Thel Evanson, photographer of Lee-Evanson's studio, has taken a series of from 10 to 20 shots of University scenes, including the new buildings with students posing around them for publicity purposes. The pictures will be used for brochures, pamphlets, bulletins and catalogs.

A typographical error in a recent Student listed Co-ed Norma Locklin as "Norman." She evidently took it to heart, because she bowled with one of the MEN'S teams in Monday's tournament.

Big argument these days. It's wide open—so you can get into it too. Question is: will the new side walk running diagonally from the avenue between the Union and Law, be wide enough to accommodate the traffic, come fall?

The members of Delta Tau Delta, social fraternity, are rather dubious of any phone calls these days, especially from girls. Of course it isn't the usual thing for girls to call up fraternity houses but when one girl had to get certain information this way, she ran into certain difficulties because they thought she was one of the "younger" girls who have been bothering them with numerous phone calls, as many as 8 in an hour.

Score one for the instructors, everybody was so busy no one even knew that it was Friday, the 13th.

Heard in classroom. A survey was taken at an all-girls school and one at an all-men's school. The survey found that graduates from the girl's school had averaged 1.3 children during five years while the men's school graduates had averaged only 1.1. General conclusion: women have more children than men.

Summer session students won't get into a mental rut. Signs around the cafeteria are always changing.

All the girls want to stay in Johnston hall, the new girls dormitory being constructed in the northwest corner of the campus. Loren Swanson, housing director, has been

60 Grad Students Take Examinations For High Degrees

From now until August 5 some 45 candidates will be taking the final step toward advanced degrees, oral examinations.

Fifteen have already taken their orals, bringing the graduate division session degree list to 60.

Dr. A. V. Overn, head of the graduate division, said that he "would like to have" degree candidates submit their work before 5 p.m. on the August 5 deadline. The deadline, he emphasized, is not final.

Examinations are given Monday through Saturday in Room 214 and 215 Merrifield hall between 3 and 5 p.m. The orals for doctors degrees are two hours long. Master degree candidates are quizzed for one hour.

The candidates must submit four copies of their thesis at the examinations, two of which are bound and filed in the library, Dr. Overn said. The meetings are open to the public, he declared.

Degrees applied for and the number of candidates include: three PhD, two EDD., six MA., four MS., one MS in chemistry and 44 MS in education.

Saturday Classes On Fall Program

The graduate division plans to offer Saturday classes again this fall and winter for students working on advanced degrees, Dr. A. V. Overn, head of the graduate division, said.

However, the list of specific courses to be offered and the hours they are to be scheduled has not been completed as yet. Graduate students are urged to watch for the announcement of these plans later on in the summer.

U Session Marks 56th Year, Evolves from 4-Week Term

By MARY ANN HEDER

The University summer session is now in its 56th year having evolved from a four week session for teachers to the present eight week term for students in all fields.

President Webster Merrifield arranged the first session in 1895 with school superintendents from the area assisting in teaching. From 1899 to 1905 three month winter sessions were held.

The first summer session in which instructors were regular members of the University faculty was held in 1905. That year also marks the beginning of the six week session of two sections, one for elementary teachers and one for students working for their degree.

Joseph Kennedy, professor of philosophy and education directed the sessions from 1896 to 1912 except in 1910-1911 when President F. E. McVoy was in charge of the college section. 1912, Dr. A. J. Ladd and Professor C. C. Schmidt began directing the sessions until Kennedy resumed the directorship in 1919.

Summer session was regarded as a permanent feature by 1914 when 121 students enrolled. Enrollment increased and at the end of the 1917 session, the 151 students petitioned for a six weeks continuance which was not granted.

The first eight-week session was held in 1922 with 450 students enrolled. That year two-year certificates for elementary teachers were discontinued.

A drop in enrollment was noted in 1926 with 350 students enrolled but the number of graduate students was increasing. Dean Joseph B. Breitwieser directed the 1928 session and continued in that position until his death in 1950.

Summer school enrollments again increased with 408 students registering in 1939. By 1942, 437 students were attending summer school in spite of the mobilization program for World War II.

Record enrollment was in 1947 when enrollment totaled 978. Last summer 825 students enrolled for summer school while this year 914 are enrolled.

The first regular summer school appropriation of $18,000 was made in 1940. Before that time, the money came entirely from fees. At present the summer school appropriation is approximately $50,000.

Cooper was favorably impressed by the experiments being conducted at the lignite lab with the idea of solving these problems.

He emphasized the potentialities of lignite as a power producing fuel in connection with the Garrison Dam project and also the future possibilities of using lignite power in mining Minnesota taconite, a low grade iron ore.

Aches and Pains on Decline:

Good Health Helps Keep Summer Students in Class

By DON DeKREY

Summer session students are quite a healthy lot, according to Miss Ruth Noren, head nurse at the University dispensary.

Although almost half as many students are attending the summer session as compared with the winter terms, one registered nurse, Miss

Noren, has been able to handle the work that is given to four nurses during the winter months.

The slight illnesses that can be reported, according to Miss Noren, consist almost entirely of summer colds and a somewhat contagious throat infection. But, Miss Noren says, the throat infection seems to be disappearing, judging by the lessening number of cases being treated.

Summer students pay a medical fee that entitles them to free treatment, with the exception of a few specific charges, the same as winter-time students. A few of the married students, Miss Noren said, have taken advantage of the service by bringing in their families for minor care and treatment. "And, of course," Miss Noren said, "I'm more than happy to give whatever first-aid I can."

The same staff will resume duties September 10 for the fall semester. Besides Miss Noren they are: Miss Gunderson, working for the summer at the Grand Forks Clinic; Miss Hewitt, now on vacation as camp nurse with a YWCA group; and Mrs. Sando, on vacation for the summer months.

Plans to improve and repair the dispensary for the fall term are now underway, Miss Noren said.

Genuine Hoboes Camp by Coulee

Hoboes on campus? There may be any number here at heart but six genuine knights of the road were discovered in a newly improvised "jungle" just across the coulee along the Great Northern tracks this week.

The men has constructed shelters from scraps taken from the nearby University dump ground. Some were cooking a "mulligan," others were just lounging and one had his laundry on an improvised clothesline.

Coulee bankers—you have been warned. Take your night time "walks" on the East bank of English coulee.

2 Open Dates Remain On U Grid Schedule

Two open dates on the UND football schedule remain to be filled Coach Frank Zazula announced this week. One of the three original open dates has been definitely scheduled for October 20 when the Sioux play Beloit here. One more game has been tentatively scheduled, with only the game location to be decided, Zazula said. He said it will be decided this week where the game is to be played. Zazula did not name the school in question, pending definite arrangements. No information was available concerning the remaining open date.

7 UND Graduates Pass Medical Exams

Seven UND alumni successfully passed the state medical board examination. University medical school graduates passing were Lemual T. Longmire Jr., Bernard A. Girard, Paul L. Johnson, Mack Traynor Jr., William F. Buechler, Jerome S. Weingartner, and Duane Sommerness. The tests were conducted at the University.

HALL DEPOPULATED

Only nine girls spent last weekend in Davis hall, smallest number to "stay over" there in two summer terms.

Large Audience Lauds Selections By String Quartet

A large crowd heard the first instrumental music convocation program of the summer session Tuesday when the Samuel Flor quartet of Minneapolis presented an hour of chamber music.

The quartet opened its program with "Quartet in D Minor Op. 64, No. 5" by Haydn in four movements. Playing with perfect co-ordination, tonation and harmony the quartet at times gave the effect of a full symphony orchestra. Before each number, Flor, organizer and director of the quartet, pointed out certain facts concerning the pieces.

Excellent musicianship was shown in the playing of all the program numbers with each member of the quartet showing individual ability. In answer to the audience' applause, the quartet played "Drink To Me Only with Thine Eyes" as an encore number.

Members of the quartet were Flor, first violinist who is a member of the Macalaster college music faculty in St. Paul; William Bagwall, viola; Walter Targ, second violin, and Jess Melzer, violin cello.

S. D. Student Wins Horseshoe Tourney

Verne D. Hull, Michell, S. D., won the summer session horseshoe tournament held in connection with the summer session recreation program under the direction of Warren West, Fargo, and Louis Iacarella, Minneapolis. Runners-up were Iacarella, second and Weldon Gray, Appleton, consolation champion.

Others participating in the tournament were Jerome Schempf, Henning, Minn.; Tom Manley, Fargo; Gerald Caskey, Havre, Minn.; William Truskenski, Newfolden, Minn.; and George Galloway, Fargo. All participants were graduate students.

Looking to the Future: Research Work Under Way In Chemistry Department

It's a busy summer for members of the staff of the chemistry department who have started research on various problems in the field.

Two members, Richard Pearson and Morton E. Millberg, are working on a research project for the North Dakota Research foundation on the physical properties of lignite. Their work concerns two different methods on determining vapor pressure of water over lignite. One of the methods was perfected by Pearson for his master's thesis.

Dr. Lawrence Summers has begun work on a problem in organic chemistry under a grant of $1,750 from the Research Corp. of New York city. He is assisted by W. Kielsh and Melvin Larson.

Other researchers and their projects include Roland G. Severson on organosilicon compounds; Dr. Leonard Miller on derivatives of certain polynuclear hydrocarbons; Dr. E. D. Coon on the physical chemistry of nitrogen-oxides assisted by Mac Rhoades, and Dr. G. A. Abbott on chemistry of mucic acids.

The chemistry department recently started using their apparatus room, a small frame structure on the north side of the chemistry building. Within a month, Room 201 of the chemistry building will be converted into a student research laboratory.
