Alumni Advisory Group to Meet On U Campus

More than 70 UND alumni will return to the campus for a one-day advisory committee meeting Friday, April 19, 1968, according to William DePuy of Grafton, general chairman of the event.

The alumni will become "students for a day," with current UND students serving as individual hosts to each of the committee members.

Registration will be held from 9 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. in the Fireside Lounge of the University Center. Committee members will then be assigned to individual students and will visit classes, meet with other students and faculty members.

At noon, committee members will accompany their student hosts for lunch to various sororities, fraternities and dormitories.

Committees will return to the Center Lecture Bowl at 1:30 p.m. where they will hear University student leaders discuss University problems. After a 3 p.m. coffee break in the Fireside Lounge, the advisory group will reassemble to meet with UND faculty and administrators to discuss University programs for 1968-69.

A black-tie dinner at the Grand Forks Country Club for advisory committee members and their wives or husbands at 7 p.m. will conclude the day.

GRADUATE DEGREES

The University of North Dakota granted 90 percent of the doctoral degrees awarded in North Dakota from 1920 to 1966. During this 46-year span, UND granted 218 of the 242 doctorates awarded in North Dakota.

At UND, doctorate degrees may be pursued in 12 programs. In its history, UND has awarded 4,001 graduate degrees, including 3,724 masters, 276 doctorates and one specialist diploma.

'ALUMNI DAYS' SCHEDULED MAY 17 - 18

An innovation in UND alumni gatherings will be launched on May 17-18 on the campus, with special events honoring the Classes of 1918, 1919, 1920, and 1921. All members of classes prior to those years will be special guests.

Mrs. Milton Kelly (Sybil Baker, '18) of Devils Lake is chairman of the event, which is timed to coincide with Governor's Day on May 17. Further details will be outlined in the April issue of the ALUMNI REVIEW.

Reservations can be made by writing the UND Alumni Office, c/o Mrs. Kelly.

REHAB CENTER AT UND NEEDS NEW BUILDING

The Rehabilitation Unit at UND is now operating at full capacity and a critical need exists for a new center building, according to Dr. Donald F. Barcome, rehab medical director.

At present, the unit has a capacity of 40 beds and is operating beyond that figure. He indicated that the unit would need as many as 100 beds if the quality of present service to North Dakota residents is continued.

Dr. Barcome said that the average stay of a patient has been reduced from 31 to 21 days. He indicated that the unit is expecting a grant in the near future for a cardiopulmonary unit, which "could give us an additional 300 to 400 patients."

He envisioned a new UND rehabilitation unit as becoming a "mother" center, providing supervisory assistance and continuing education to smaller rehab units across the state.

JOHN M. GILLETTE

A new residence hall under construction at the University of North Dakota has been named Gillette Hall in honor of Dr. John M. Gillette, former UND faculty member and noted sociologist.

Gillette Hall, which is expected to be occupied by the fall of 1968, is the last and eastern-most structure in the five-dormitory arrangement west of the English Coulee. The complex also includes West, McVey, Brannon and Selke Halls.

Gillette joined the University faculty in 1907 and served as professor of sociology until his retirement in 1948. He received an honorary doctor's degree from UND in 1949. Among the 10 books he wrote was "Constructive Rural Sociology," the first text in that field, in which he is considered a pioneer. The book was translated into several languages and was used throughout the world.

Lowry Nelson of the University of Minnesota wrote in "Rural Sociology" in 1944 that, "Until 1913 there was no textbook to which an interested teacher might turn for help should he wish to offer a course on the subject (rural sociology). But in that year

BERTIN C. GAMBLE

A new classroom building under construction at UND has been named Gamble Hall in honor of Bertin C. Gamble, a native of North Dakota, who is chairman of the board of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., Minneapolis.

Gamble Hall, which is expected to be occupied by the fall of 1968, will house the College of Business and Public Administration and classrooms for several other academic programs at UND. It is located on the west side of the campus, between Burtness Theatre and Oxford House.

Gamble received an honorary doctorate from UND in 1965.

Gamble and the late Phil Skogmo founded Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., in 1925. He joined Mr. Skogmo in operating automobile dealerships in Fergus Falls, Minn. They opened their first Gamble's store in St. Cloud, Minn. Today there are more than 4,300 Gamble-Skogmo outlets in the United States and Canada.

In 1962 Gamble was featured in articles in Newsweek and Time magazines. Newsweek characterized Gamble as a man living the legend of "the small-town boy who scrambles from humble ori-

REPORT from the CAMPUS

By J. LLOYD STONE

This is written on a cloudy February day in North Dakota, and it seems almost unreal when I recollect the wonderful experiences during the start of the new year, which found us far away on a tour of the South Pacific.

1968 began with the 18th Annual Camelback Inn reunion at Scottsdale, Ariz. Although the attendance was smaller than previous reunions, the get-together was most successful. Louise and Jack Stewart rolled out the red carpet for visiting Nodaks and held a reception in their home that included many VIP's, even the governor of Arizona.

At this writing, plans for the 1969 Camelback reunion are indefinite. It is possible that we have enjoyed our last get-together at Camelback Inn. If this becomes true, we hope to schedule other meetings in the Southwest which will be of interest to alumni from all parts of the nation.

I sincerely thank my brother, Rev. Howard Stone of Indianapolis, for writing my column in the January issue of the ALUMNI REVIEW. Howard has a great attachment to his native state, even though he has lived in Indiana for more than 25 years.

From Camelback we went to Los Angeles, where UND alumni in that area arranged a "Bon Voyage" party. At midnight on January 6 Pan Am Flight No. 815 took off for Tahiti with 45 alumni on board. We had expected Jerry Fox from the class of 1959 to captain our Boeing 707, but he was on temporary duty in Saigon.

We arrived in Tahiti about 4 a.m. on January 7. From that moment on we were busy tourists, meeting new friends, visiting interesting places and enjoying every minute of our 24-day tour.

Idar Rimestad, Deputy Under Secretary of State and a 1940 UND graduate, arranged a reception in Sydney, Australia, which we enjoyed very much. Basil Capella, the U. S. Consul General in Australia, opened his home to the North Dakota nomads. He invited a number of Sydney's leading businessmen to meet our tour-mates.

It was a thrill to be welcomed at the airport in Australia by Mr. Capella. If all of our consulates and embassies are staffed by such intelligent, friendly and capable men as Mr. Capella, our affairs are in very good hands.

We were amazed at the beauty of the Tahitian Islands, including Bora Bora and Moorea. We felt the warmth of the welcome extended to us by Monique, Chris and the other Tahitians who made our visit there so memorable.

We shall always remember the coral waters in Tahiti, the motorized scooters, the out-rigger ride, and the dunking of four of our lady tourmates. The Fiji Islands are beyond description. The deep sea fishing was excellent and the swimming was fun. The people are gentle and considerate. Church services were inspirational.

New Zealand was majestic. The mountains around Mt. Cook in the South Island are as beautiful as our Rockies or the Alps of Switzerland. The lakes compare to our Minnesota lakes or Tahoe in California. The farm lands are productive and the people are hospitable.

Sydney is becoming much like an American city. There is a great amount of American capital invested in Australia and the tempo of life has quickened considerably in the land down-under since I was there in World War II.

American Samoa is another beautiful island. We enjoyed attending the Methodist church in Pago Pago and meeting these gentle people. The beautiful voices and faces of these Samoans made us feel a welcome we had never experienced before.

An interesting event happened in Pago Pago. Grace and I decided to attend the 8 a.m. church services at the Methodist church. We located a taxi and were driven up a narrow road to a little church on a hillside.

The church had no walls in the building and the doors were wide open. As we entered we noticed that all of the people were sitting on mats on the floor. An usher brought two chairs and placed them in the back of the church for us.

The men were barefoot and wore sula skirts. As we arrived they were singing a beautiful hymn in Samoan. After the prayer, the collection plate was passed. We tried to do a little better than usual, because we knew that the Samoans could use a little extra in their collection.

About that time, I received a note from someone sitting in the church, asking if I would say a few words to the congregation, and I agreed. After another song, the collection plate was passed again. (I think they were please with what they saw the first time!) This second offering was for the pastor.

After I was called on to speak, an interpreter got up and translated what I had said. As we prepared to leave after the service, the pastor's wife came up. In broken English she asked us to stay for a bite to eat and we accepted her invitation.

About 20 minutes later the families in the church began to arrive with breadfruit, fish, chickens and other foods, cooked in the leaves of the coconut plant. We sat on the floor, eating with our fingers and enjoying this native feast with our hosts.

After the lunch the village chief called on me for another talk. I told them how much we appreciated their hospitality and hoped that I could carry their message back to our people in the United States. The chief wished us Godspeed on our journey and said that we were the first couple from the United States to visit their little church, high on the hills of Pago Pago.

As we made our farewells, I asked the minister's wife if she could find a taxi for us. She pointed to a man who had been sitting on the floor and said that he had offered to give us a ride to our motel.

We were afraid that he might not know the motel location, but when we found that he spoke English, we were at ease. I asked him where he worked and he said that he was assistant to the Governor of Samoa. He was a brilliant man and really entertained us royally on a tour of the Samoan Islands.

Our farewell banquet with UND alumni in Honolulu was nicely arranged by Marvin Poyzer, '38, Dr. Min Hin Li, '20 and James Quint, '54. Many of our tourmates told of the highlights of the trip. Dr. Min Hin Li presented orchids and leis and brought greetings from other Hawaiian alumni. Marv Poyzer was master of ceremonies and did a great job of bringing loose ends together.

A few of us remained in Hawaii for a couple of extra days and were entertained by Min and Minnie Li. Few hosts can equal these good friends and we are proud and grateful for their loyalty to our Alma Mater.

We returned to the mainland on February 3 and attended a UND dinner in Seattle. Dean and Mrs. Martelle Cushman came from the University and assisted with the program. It was good to see Dr. and Mrs. Richard Beck at the meeting.

Beatrice Johnstone once said to me, "Appreciation is the true mark of culture." Our 45 South Pacific tourmates are surely appreciative of many things. We were all blessed with good health on the entire trip. We might attribute this in part to the pure water, the excellent food and deluxe accommodations at every stop.

Another UND alumni tour has ended and we bask in the memories of this great experience. It is my hope, and the hope of my 44 tourmates, that many of you will someday have an opportunity to visit the South Pacific where we have planted our North Dakota flag.

Peter J. Weyrens, '56, is assistant manager in the Western Electric manufacturing plant in Oklahoma City, transferring from Cicero, Ill. He has been employed by Western Electric since his graduation from UND, is married, and has four children.

Virginia Leads State Competition In UND Development Fund Race

Virginia is off and running!

Yes, Virginia, there really is a UND Development Fund campaign now in progress. You should know. You're leading the 52 other contestants.

The 1967-68 Development Fund is entering the spring stretch, with the finish line scheduled for May.

In the state race, Virginia is nearing the 25 per cent figure of contributions on a percentage basis, closely followed by Delaware. Other states in the top ten are Hawaii, Nevada, New Mexico, Maine, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Maryland and New York.

But don't rest on your laurels, Virginia. Dr. Harold Slaatte, '42, is spear-heading the race in West Virginia and has issued a strong challenge to Herbert "Bud" Lux, '32, the Virginia state chairman. West Virginia is down in 41st place, but watch them zoom.

Another interesting development is shaping up from Nevada, where Leo J. O'Leary, '52, is state chairman. He has challenged all other state chairmen to any kind of bet they'd like to make. Leo lives in Las Vegas, so the sky is the limit. Nevada, incidentally, is coasting along in fourth place.

The Alumni Office has received word that Elroy Arnason, '53, has accepted the chairmanship for Florida, and we expect some sunny results from that wonderful state.

Here are the state rankings as of January 31, 1968. You will note that they show the percentage of participation, along with the number of contributors and the total alumni residing in the respective areas.

The Development Fund goal, as you may be aware, is slightly more than $108,000 for 1967-68, which is a pretty big challenge. But contributions have been coming in at a good rate and the Alumni Board is confident that the goal will be attained.

Your contribution to UND will enable your Alma Mater to do a good many things for a good many people. Scholarships to students, faculty grants, University promotion are among them. Another is the ALUMNI REVIEW, keeping you posted on UND and classmates.

Check your standing in your state. Your contribution in the mail will move your state higher in the race, and your name will be included in the Honor Roll edition of the ALUMNI REVIEW.

PLAN EUROPE TRIP

Seven journalism students and eight in history at UND have been chosen to participate in a two-week education field study trip to Europe this spring. Students pay for one-half of the trip expenses, with financial support also provided by firms and foundations in North Dakota.

NEWS NOTES

Dr. and Mrs. Richard Beck will spend a week on the campus March 1-8. Since his retirement they have been living in Victoria, B. C.

J. G. Sinclair writes from Galveston, Texas, recollecting his days at UND when he was on the Medical School faculty from 1920 to 1926. Now 80 years of age, he is carrying on investigation in embryology.

Mr. and Mrs. G. James McKay, '55 (JoAnn Nelson, ex '53) announce the birth of a son, Jeffrey Hugh, on Jan. 22, 1968. They also have a daughter, Julie Ann, age 2. Jim is owner of McKay Implement and Hardware at Gilby, where they have lived the past nine years.

● Gillette

appeared 'Constructive Rural Sociology.' I think Professor Gillette was surprised at the wide reception of his pioneer work."

Sociologist James Reinhardt of the University of Nebraska wrote upon the death of Gillette: "Dr. Gillette's death at 83 took from the ranks of sociology one of its most original and adventurous thinkers. His fundamental research made a profound and lasting impression on the sociological thought of America."

Gillette was born in rural Missouri in 1866 and he and his family moved to a farm near Girard, Kan., when he was less than a year old. He received the B.A. from Park College, Parkville, Mo., in 1892. He attended several theological schools, earning the M.A. degree from Princeton in 1895. He received a Ph.D. in theology from Chicago Theological Seminary and a Ph.D. in sociology and psychology from the University of Chicago in 1901.

Before joining the UND faculty in 1907, Gillette taught in a country school in Kansas; served the Presbyterian Church in Dodge City, Kan.; lectured in sociology at Bible Normal School in Massachusetts; was principal of Chadron Academy in Nebraska; was president of the Academy for Young Women, Jacksonville, Ill., and taught history and social sciences at Valley City Normal School. He died in 1949.

Gillette Hall, begun in October of 1967, is similar in construction to the four preceding dormitories in the complex. It will accommodate 327 students. It is financed by a U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development loan, which will be paid on a self-liquidating basis through rent received from dormitory residents.

RETIRE HOCKEY JERSEY

Hockey jersey No. 12 was officially retired by UND in ceremonies between periods of the Sioux and the U. S. Olympics team game during January. Olympics jersey No. 11 was similarly retired. The jerseys were last worn by Sioux All-American Terry Casey, who was killed in a car crash in Montana on July 7, 1967.

gins to emerge as a dauntless captain of commerce."

Gamble is married to the former Gladys Lucille Pearson. They reside in Wayzata, Minn.

The new building named in honor of Gamble is being erected on the former site of Macnie Hall dormitory, which was razed in September, 1967.

Gamble Hall is made possible, in part, by a $200,000 gift from the Gamble and Skogmo Foundations, which enabled the University to apply for a supplemental federal grant of $100,000, which permitted enlarging the building by $300,000 over the original plans.

The state authorized $1 million, which was supplemented by a $500,000 grant from the U. S. Office of Education.

In addition to the $200,000 donation, the Gamble and Skogmo Foundations have made contributions to UND in the past for faculty improvement programs and scholarships in the College of Business and Public Administration.

'Alm Report' Results In New Ed. Program

UND has received an initial $100,000 from the U. S. Office of Education to implement its new elementary school teacher preparation and curriculum revision program.

The monies accepted are for use during the first 30 to 60 days of a contract negotiation period with the U. S. Office of Education, in which it is anticipated that developmental assistance in the amount of $352,500 will be awarded.

The elementary teacher preparation and curriculum revision program will be carried out by UND through a New School of Behavioral Studies in Education.

Federal support resulted from a statewide education survey and planning project now called the Alm Report, conducted two years ago by Dr. Kent G. Alm, former UND education professor and now vice president for academic affairs at Mankato State.

UND was the first university to submit a package proposal covering several titles of the Elementary-Secondary Education Act and was the first accepted by the U. S. Office of Education.

Computer Center Expands Program

The computer process is becoming the way of doing business in the future and the future of North Dakota depends on up-to-date businesses. This is the philosophy behind the expanding programs of the UND Computer Center.

Several North Dakota colleges are already using the services of UND's computer, the largest in the state. Institutions send materials and programs for processing to the Computer Center, where a general purpose machine is used in solving problems in business, mathematics and science.

Explaining the benefits of using a computer system has become one of the main tasks of Conrad Dietz, UND Computer Center director. He expects other North Dakota educational institutions, public and private school systems and large business firms will be using the computer.

The big problem at present in using computers is developing programs to apply the computer to the existing problems. Dietz believes that by sharing complimentary computer systems that the University and businesses can save money. He visualizes a great future potential, stating that someday "every home will have a terminal system that will provide stock market reports, weather forecasts, recipes and even a way of paying bills—via computer."

TO SPEAK AT EXERCISES

Dr. Malcolm Moos, president of the University of Minnesota, will deliver the spring commencement address at UND on June 2. Dr. Moos was named president of the University of Minnesota last fall. He was formerly director of the Ford Foundation office of government and law.

EDUCATOR HONORED

M. F. Peterson, M.S., '55, superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction in North Dakota, was honored in Bismarck for his recent election as president of the National Council of Chief State School Officers. More than 300 attended the event, including Governor Guy.

DEDICATE GALLERY

The C. A. (Jack) West Memorial Picture Gallery in the UND Fieldhouse was dedicated on February 24 in a ceremony before the Sioux-Bison basketball game. West was UND athletic director and head football coach from 1928 to 1945. During his 15-year career, his football teams won eight football championships and had an overall record of 90 wins, 35 losses and five ties.

West died in 1957. More than $900 was contributed by former Sioux athletes for a memorial fund, which was used to build the picture gallery in the Fieldhouse concourse. The collection includes many old and valuable photographs of teams and individuals at UND, some dating back to the 1890's.

Science Grants Aid Institutes

UND has received grants from the National Science Foundation totaling $320,770 to support Science Institutes at the University in the summer of 1968 and the 1968-69 academic year.

The largest portion will be used to conduct the 1968-69 Academic Year Institute in the Broad Study of Science for Secondary School Teachers, enabling 40 selected high school science teachers to spend an entire year on the campus.

NAME CHANGE

The name of the bureau of governmental research at UND is being changed to Bureau of Governmental Affairs in an effort to broaden the scope of the bureau's future programming. The bureau has received designation by Gov. William L. Guy as the administering agency for two new Federal programs designed to improve the capabilities of local governments in solving local problems.

RECEIVES 25,000th DEGREE

The 25,000th degree to be awarded in the history of UND was conferred upon James M. Hurkes of Hazelton, N. Dak., at UND mid-year commencement exercises. In presenting the degree, UND President George W. Starcher noted that Hurkes, 33, spent 12 years working his way through school while farming 800 acres near Hazelton.

NEWS NOTES

Stewart Essay Awards Set For May 17

Forty-one students from UND, UND - Ellendale and UND - Williston Center had submitted entries in the first annual Stewart Essay Contest when the deadline closed on February 15.

Preliminary screening of the essays is being made by a group of UND faculty members, while the final selection of the winners will be made by a group of judges from the Minneapolis area.

Contestants prepared essays under the title of "Our American Heritage . . . How Can It Be Eternally Yours?" This is the first year of competition for the American Heritage Essay Contest established by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart of Scottsdale, Ariz.

First place winner will receive $1,500, with $1,000 to the second place winner, and $500, $300, and $200 to the third, fourth and fifth place winners. Five honorable mention awards of $100 will also be made.

A permanent plaque will be displayed at a suitable location on the UND campus, listing the names of the yearly winners. Individual plaques will also be given to the top ten winners.

Presentation of the awards will be made by Jack Stewart at the Alumni Days luncheon on May 17 with Governor William L. Guy in attendance along with other honored guests.

A special invitation is being extended to the members of the UND graduating classes of 1918, 1919, 1920, and 1921 who will be holding a special alumni reunion during the May 17-18 week-end.
