Noted Speakers To Appear On U Campus

An imposing list of speakers who will appear on the UND campus during 1968-1969 is one of the biggest and most varied in University history, according to UND President George W. Starcher.

"UND's series of speakers is worthy of the finest universities in the land," Starcher said. "Few schools could match the distinguished list of speakers who are scheduled to appear." Most of the events are free and open to the public.

Among the speakers are Dr. Richard Armour, author-humorist; Dr. James Warwick, department of astro-physics, University of Colorado; Immanuel Ben-Dor, archaeologist, Emory University; Mrs. Elizabeth Koontz, president, National Education Association;

Maj. Gerald Carr, Apollo astronaut; Dr. Alton Ochsner, Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans; Arthur Naftalin, mayor of Minneapolis; Art Buchwald, newspaper columnist;

Paul Grey, director of theatre, Bennington College, Vermont; Anna Marguerite McCann, archaeologist, University of Missouri; Ralph Nader, automobile industry critic; J. R. Wiggins, recently appointed U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations; Willy Ley, space travel and rocket expert;

Eric Sevareid, CBS news commentator and North Dakota native; Arthur Goldberg, former U. S. ambassador to the U.N.; Michael Gough, Institute for Advanced Archaeology Study, Princeton; and Pauline Frederick, NBC United Nations correspondent.

HISTORIANS VISIT UND

More than 200 historians from 10 states and three Canadian provinces were on the UND campus in October for the Northern Great Plains History Conference.

Development Fund Makes Good Start

The diagnosis: growing pains.

The treatment: strong support of the UND Alumni Development Fund.

This terse prescription tells the story of a growing University of North Dakota with growing challenges in providing a truly excellent education.

There are more than 7,000 students now on the campus, making 1968-69 a record year with an all-time high enrollment. UND of this year is a vastly different school than it was a few years ago. Although new dormitories, new buildings and other physical facilities are striving to keep pace, there are increasing needs in all phases of education.

North Dakota, as a state, can provide only part-way support. It takes strong Alumni support to achieve a true excellence of education.

Since its inception, the UND Development Fund has been the strong right arm of the University, helping a growing UND meet its responsibilities.

The Development Fund for 1968-69 is facing a budget total of $135,100. This is vitally needed support for faculty grants, student scholarships, University promotion and for printing and mailing the ALUMNI REVIEW.

It is a big budget, needed to meet big responsibilities.

Senator Milton Kelly of Devils Lake, who is serving as national chairman of the UND Development Fund, is enthusiastic about the initial support this year, stating "We're off to a good start, and I am confident that our loyal alumni will continue their record of giving. It's this kind

Astronomy Observatory To Be Built

Construction of an astronomy observatory at UND is expected to start this fall located north of the UND campus and east of the trailer court, according to D. L. Younggren, chairman of the UND geography department.

The observatory will house a 16-inch telescope built by UND geography instructors and believed to be one of the largest in the Upper Midwest. The telescope will rest on a large concrete pier, with an observatory dome with a hatch-type opening, which is made of steel and rotates electrically with the movement of the telescope.

Airplane Given UND By Texas Corporation

A 26-passenger airplane has been given the University of North Dakota by Houston Aviation Products of Texas. UND is one of nine educational institutions to receive a plane from the Texas firm, which is headed by Bradley.

The Douglas DC-3 aircraft will be used by UND for its honors, fine arts, athletics and College of Arts and Science programs in addition to faculty travel.

REPORT from the CAMPUS

By J. LLOYD STONE

Homecoming 1968 is history.

And, as the 50th annual Homecoming, it had special significance. From Thursday's events to the farewells on Sunday, it must be rated as one of the most successful.

Homecoming did not get off to a very auspicious beginning. An unpredicted snowfall brought nearly two inches of wet snow and slush to whiten the campus and the parade route on Friday. But the snow quickly melted, as did our concern.

The Alumni Awards luncheon was very well attended, with an over-flow crowd of students, faculty, alumni and friends. The five recipients of the Sioux Awards were certainly deserving of this honor and it made everyone proud to see and hear them.

Maj. Gen. Donn J. Robertson gave an excellent address as the featured speaker. He paid tribute to the "unheralded majority" of young Americans serving in the Vietnam War. Donn has recently returned from a tour of duty in Vietnam to take over as Base Commander at Camp Pendleton. He certainly looks every inch a general.

In his remarks Donn said: "Whether or not you understand this war, or agree or disagree with our nation's purpose in the war, there is one very important point that must not be overlooked, and that is the dedication and courage of our young Americans."

He referred to servicemen in Vietnam saying: "This generation will become the confident, intelligent, dedicated citizens who will make our nation's future greater than its past."

Those at the Sioux Awards Luncheon had a special thrill when University President George W. Starcher announced that the new math-physics building will be named for Dean R. B. Witmer. The Dean and his wife were in attendance at the meeting, and—like most of us—were overwhelmed.

Another highlight came Friday evening when there was a reunion for the Class of 1928 and the former Sioux football stars of that era. Although some forty years have passed since these men were on the gridiron, most of them looked very fit and as though they could still play football.

They had a great deal of enjoyment in reminiscing about their "Golden Era." Among those in attendance of these former Sioux stars were Cy Kahl, Orville Lindell, Bill Durnin, Harold Westerdahl, Bill Murray, Bud Lux, Halvor Tvedten, Charlie Solberg, Ted Halvorson, John Booty, Fred Felber, Arnold Kirkness, Willis Shepard, Loyde Richmond, John Burma, and Curt Schave.

The Homecoming Parade was one of the best, despite a brisk wind that called for top-coat wearing. The parade lasted for about an hour and a half, with excellent floats and great bands. In a political year there were several candidates on hand, both in the parade and on the sidelines.

Of course, the big climax of Homecoming was the traditional game between the Sioux and the Bison. It's a game that will be long remembered.

The Bison came to Grand Forks with an impressive record of successive victories and had averaged 41 points per game prior to meeting the Sioux. In fact, the Bison are currently holding the number two position in national ratings for small colleges.

The final score was 14 to 8 in favor of the Bison. And the game was just that close. The Bison pretty well controlled the first half, which ended 14 to 0. Then the sun broke through the clouds for Sioux fans.

One of the Sioux touchdowns was called back because of a penalty. The Sioux scored on a spectacular pass play late in the fourth quarter and were really fired up. Had there been more time in the game, it looked like the Sioux would score again. I consider it a great moral victory, and the score could have easily ended up 15-14 for our fighting Nodaks.

The half-time ceremonies found both UND and NDSU with marching bands, and both gave fine performances. The five Sioux Award winners were introduced, and they received a standing ovation. It was a great vote of confidence for the citations committee for choosing the recipients so wisely.

There were many other highlights, including the reunion for the class of 1958, the reunion of the Madrigal Club honoring Hywel C. "Pop" Rowland, the Blue Key luncheon and Lettermen's breakfast, the open houses at the various fraternities, sororities and residence halls, the Medical School Alumni reunion, the alumni no-host reunion; and this does not include the many events that kept the students going at a rapid pace.

So, Homecoming 1968 is history. It's one that will be long remembered by all of us.

Alum Authors Navy History of Pearl Harbor

"Pearl Harbor: Why, How, Fleet Salvage and Final Appraisal" has just been published by the Naval History Division in Washington, D. C. Author of the book is Vice Admiral Homer N. Wallin, USN (Retired), who received an honorary doctorate from UND in 1952. Originally from Washburn, N. D., Admiral Wallin served with Admiral Nimitz and with Admiral Halsey in the South Pacific, commanded three different Navy Yards, and was Chief of the Bureau of Ships. He was a Captain stationed at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, responsible for fleet repair and alterations and became Fleet Salvage Officer after the Japanese attack. He began work on the book in 1965 at the request of the Director of Naval History.

STUDENTS NAMED TO ESSAY COMMITTEE: Coralyn Caldis and John Dibbern, both of Grand Forks and winners in the 1967-68 Stewart Essay Contest, are pictured with Harold Boe, contest chairman. Miss Caldis and Dibbern have been named as student representatives on the committee, which handles the details for the annual Stewart American Heritage Essay Contest. The contest was established through a $100,000 trust given to the University of North Dakota by Jack Stewart, a native of Grafton and former UND student who resides in Arizona. Cash awards from the contest total $4,000, with a $1,500 first prize. Entry blanks are now available at the Alumni Office in Grand Forks.

2nd Annual Stewart Essay Contest Competition Opens

Official contest brochures are now available for University of North Dakota students interested in entering the second annual Stewart American Heritage Essay competition, with $4,000 in cash awards.

The contest was established last year when Jack Stewart, a native of North Dakota and former UND student, provided a $100,000 trust, with the proceeds designated for the contest and other University projects. Top prize is $1,500, with runnersup receiving $1,000, $500, $300, and $200. There are five honorable mention awards of $100 each.

The essay contest committee, made up of faculty and alumni, has been augmented this year with the addition of two University students. They are Coralyn Caldis and John Dibbern, both of Grand Forks and both winners in the 1968 contest.

The topic for the 1968-69 contest is "What would your opportunity be under the Communist System as compared to Free Enterprise?" The competition is open to any undergraduate or graduate student in good scholastic standing who carries a minimum of 12 hours of study. Students at UND in Grand Forks, UND-Williston and UND-Ellendale are eligible to enter the contest.

Encouragement to students wishing to enter the contest was given by the student members of the committee. They were asked their feelings about entering, and made the following statements:

Miss Caldis—"Although the cash prizes may act as the impetus for writing the essay, the subject matter and what it really does mean to you, as an American, is the real prize. For this reason I would encourage every student to enter the contest."

Dibbern—"The Stewart Essay is not a 'patriotic' essay, and it does not exist to offer encouragement to an effective use of platitudes and slogans. Instead it hopes to reward well written papers and well supported arguments, of whatever persuasion. This year's topic, a comparative study of capitalism and communism which will require research, is an attempt to increase the academic nature of the contest."

"The Stewart Essay offers generous rewards to those willing to put forth the effort, but the contest and the essays will only be meaningful if students participate."

"Students planning to write essays for this year's contest and those wishing to assess last year's contest may see last year's winning essays in the Alumni Office, Twamley Hall."

Entry brochures are available at the UND Alumni Office.

Alumni Tour To Spain Planned

One of the most exciting of all UND Alumni tours is scheduled in March of 1969 with two glorious weeks in Spain. The Tour to Spain replaces the Alumni Mexican Festival Cruise, which has been cancelled because of conflicts.

Open to all UND Alumni and friends, the tour of Spain begins on March 13, 1969, with departure by jet-liner from Chicago.

The excitement begins on arrival in Madrid, the gayest of all European capitals. Sight-seeing includes the famous Prado Museum, the unique Plaza Major and the impressive Plaza de Espana. Madrid is filled with points of interest, fabulous shopping and sight-seeing.

All days are arranged so that tour-mates can go at a leisurely pace, or pack excitement into every hour of the tour.

There are dozens of high-lights planned for the tour, including a full-day excursion to Toledo, home of El Greco and famed for its tempered steel and gold Damascene works.

Another stop is at Palma de Majorca, with its magnificent cathedrals and museums. It is a city that combines the old with the new, with smart shops, fine restaurants and night clubs. It is on a marvelous beach with the blue Mediterranean offering swimming, yachting, fishing and relaxing.

The Alumni tour includes Barcelona in the romantic, charming land of Southern Spain and then continues to Lisbon. The plans include visits to the picturesque Alfama quarter with its narrow streets, open markets and fruit vendors.

There are side trips from Lisbon along the ocean, with stops at Nazare and Obidos. Nazare is a quaint fishing village, with fishermen in brilliantly colored shirts, and the women in hand-embroidered blouses and long gay skirts pulling in huge nets. An after-

On the Move

College of Business Getting Settled in Gamble Hall

The UND College of Business and Public Administration is on the move. In previous years, the college was headquartered in the Law Building, faculty offices were located in four different structures and classes were conducted in 14 different buildings. This year, however, the college, with all its offices and classes, has physically moved and is situated in a newly-completed, $1.8 million building with 88,000 square feet of space.

Three stories high, the structure houses enough classroom area to seat 2,000 students simultaneously. Sixty individual faculty offices are arranged in groups by departments. A 12-sided lecture bowl encloses five pie-shaped auditoriums with seating capacities that range from 90 to 250 students. According to Thomas J. Clifford, dean of the College of Business and Public Administration and UND vice-president for finance, the move to Gamble Hall is a welcome change.

The building has been named in honor of Bertin C. Gamble, a native North Dakotan who co-founded and is currently chairman of Gamble-Skogmo, Inc., Minneapolis. Gamble Hall was made possible, in part, by a $200,000 gift from the Gamble-Skogmo Foundations. The gift permitted the University to obtain a supplemental federal grant of $100,000, thus enabling the structure to be enlarged over the original plans by $300,000. The state authorized $1 million which was supplemented by a $500,000 grant from the U. S. Office of Education.

The new facilities of Gamble Hall are enabling the College of Business and Public Administration to be on the move in another respect. That move, according to Clifford, is away from the area of "deadly statistics" and into the field of analysis and theory. "We're getting away from sheer technique courses and getting into the analytical areas where you work with ideas and theories," Clifford stressed. More problem solving is the main difference, the dean added.

In line with analytical approach, the new building has been designed for the case method of instruction, Clifford pointed out. Rooms are designed in an amphitheatre style so that "cases can be presented situationally and different types of solutions discussed." "Management games" are also employed, he added. "The curriculum has gradually expanded," the dean noted. "More emphasis on the behavioral sciences has added more breadth to the curriculum."

Clifford commented that while the UND computer center will remain in Twamley Hall, Gamble Hall houses data processing laboratories. The availability of computers and data processing apparatus will provide an additional aid for students and faculty, he added. Courses in computer programming are being offered this semester. "Gamble Hall will also facilitate the use of visual aids, particularly closed circuit television and video tape recorders," he said.

Looking toward the future, Clifford sees further growth and expansion for the college; it will continue to be on the move. "We should continue increasing as we have, which is slightly in excess of the University growth rate," he stated. Clifford also looks for an increased proportion of transfer students.

A major plan for the near future, according to Clifford, is the introduction of the master's degree in business administration in the college's graduate program. Currently master's degrees are offered in accounting, marketing and economics.

UND Tops All Enrollments

A record enrollment of 8,249 has been announced for the fall semester at the University of North Dakota, according to registrars at the Grand Forks campus, Williston Center and Ellendale Branch.

The figure represents an increase of 446 or 5.7 per cent over the final enrollment of 7,803 one year ago, said Milford Ulven, registrar at Grand Forks.

This fall's enrollment is 7,398 at Grand Forks, 362 at Williston and 489 at Ellendale. Grand Forks recorded a gain of 449 or 6.5 per cent over last fall's enrollment of 6,949; Williston gained 14 or 3.9 per cent over 348, and Ellendale lost 17 or 3.3 per cent from 506.

Officials said that Ellendale has fewer transfer students this fall, primarily because this will be the last year that the institution will be granting a four-year degree. It will be a two-year school beginning in the fall of 1969.

The enrollment on the Grand Forks campus includes 4,727 men and 2,671 women. The breakdown by divisions is: University College (freshman division) 1,684; arts and sciences, 1,589; business and public administration, 956; engineering, 390; law, 131; Medical School, 247; College of Nursing, 217; New School of Behavioral Studies in Education, 53; St. Joseph's School of Nursing, 37; and Graduate School, 1,115, of which 67 are enrolled in the New School.

Totals by class at Grand Forks are: freshman, 1,611; sophomores, 1,684; juniors, 1,382; seniors, 1,297; graduate students, 1,115; special students, 44; professional school students, 228, and St. Joseph's nurses, 37.

Williston's enrollment, according to Irene Eide, registrar, includes 215 men and 147 women. The totals by class are 212 freshmen, 114 sophomores and 36 part-time.

Enrollment at Ellendale includes 334 men and 155 women, reported Isabelle Vick, registrar. The breakdown by classes is: freshmen, 167; sophomores, 98; juniors, 91; seniors, 124; special, 2; and part-time, 7.
