Enrollment Ahead of 1953

Summer Students Given Last Welcome by Dr. West

Dr. John C. West, retiring president of the University of North Dakota, today issued his last official greeting to an incoming group of summer session students.

"Since this will be the last time I will have an opportunity to express an official greeting to students who are beginning a summer term at the University, I wish I had some way to convey to you the pleasure I have found in the warm and cordial friendships that have been built up among many of us through the years.

"I hope that this spirit will continue, and that with all of our new buildings and modern facilities, the University may never outgrow its atmosphere of a friendly campus.

"Summer sessions afford an opportunity for learning situations that are frequently unavailable during the regular term. I hope that this session will be, for each of you, a most profitable one. It is a good time for both participation in our recreational program and for academic achievement."

Dr. West also expressed confidence that the current summer session will exceed the best of all the years that he has been connected with the school.

This session is the 21st term that Dr. West presided over, starting in his current official capacity in 1933. Previous to taking over the presidency of the school, Dr. West taught here during the University summer term for four years. He was also engaged in active teaching during his first summer as head of the school.

Dr. George W. Starcher, the incoming president is expected on the campus within the next few days, preparatory to taking over July 1.

First Day Figure Totals 623, Tops Last Year by 66

Registration for the 1954 summer session was running well ahead of last year as instruction began Thursday.

Enrollment on Wednesday, registration day, totaled 623 which was 66 more than finished registering on the first day last year, Registrar Ruby McKenzie announced.

Many others were in the process of enrolling Thursday and if the registration continues at Wednesday's clip, the total enrollment of the 1953 session, 823, should be exceeded.

Graduate students make up more than half of the enrollment. Advanced students in attendance Wednesday night totaled 332.

Wednesday's figures showed 482 men and 141 women enrolled, continuing the usual 4-to-1 ratio of other years in this respect.

In the schools and colleges, 102 had enrolled in the College of Science, Literature and Arts; 71 in the College of Education; 34 in the School of Commerce and 25 in the College of Engineering.

In addition to the 332 graduates, the enrollment included 88 seniors, 77 juniors, 49 sophomores, 37 freshmen, 17 unclassified, and 6 special students.

Additional registrations are expected today and over the week-end.

Included among the enrollees are many from outside of North Dakota. The graduate school enrollment includes several instructors from other colleges.

Coffee Hour Monday First All-Campus Event of Summer

"Opening gun" in the summer recreation program comes at 4 p.m. Monday, which is "zero hour" for the family "get acquainted" coffee hour in the Student Union ballroom.

All summer session students and faculty and their families are urged to attend by Recreation Director Leonard Marti.

Children are especially invited, with baby sitters provided for the smaller ones and special treats for older ones.

University wives and women staff members will act as hostesses with Mrs. A. J. Kochman and Mrs. Archie Gray as co-chairmen.

Editorial:

It's All Up to You

The clarion of higher education has again sounded and again the halls and campus resound with the voices of those who, in the pursuit of knowledge, are wisely taking advantage of the many opportunities available at the University of North Dakota.

Certainly the motivation for attending summer session classes must be considered intrinsic since the element of pressurized attendance is not a significant factor among the reasons for attendance. Undoubtedly most of the enrollees agree with John Dewey who suggested that education IS living—not preparation for life.

No effort has been spared by the administration in a concerted drive to make this term the best planned and most successful summer session in the history of the school. A host of activities arranged to provide a more complete education await only your participation.

In past years the full extent of the diversified summer session program has not been utilized by the student body. Since an effort has been made to include each individual in the planning of activities, it is only fitting that each student should make a concerted effort to investigate and participate in some phase of the activities program.

Staff members of the DAKOTA STUDENT extend an individual welcome to each of the hundred of graduate and undergraduate students of the 59th summer session. We, who edit the STUDENT, consider it a privilege to serve you throughout the next eight weeks.

Campus Banter

By the Staff

It looked for a while as though John Howard was going to be in charge of the summer archery program. The recreation schedule listed him in charge of ARCHESTRA.

x x x x

Next summer's session will have a brand new feature. The swimming pool, now under construction in the Fieldhouse, will be ready.

x x x x

There was some question as to whether the "stag" designation for the summer dances meant they were to be "for men only." Those in charge reassure the gals, however. The "stag" just meant anyone—male or female—could come without a partner.

x x x x

Ideal summer courses would seem to be these phy ed classes in swimming. Imagine, on these hot days, picking up credits for that! But then, there are those students who find themselves "over their heads" in a lot of other courses.

x x x x

The recreation committee furnishes the equipment for all sports on the coulee bank—except sun bathing. For that, you have to bring your own.

x x x x

Saturday usually is a day off for summer students. But they'll have to slave this week, because of a later start for the session this year. The rest of the Saturdays will be "no class" days. One other holiday also is on the books—Monday, July 5, which is the "legal" Independence day this year.

x x x x

Regular session students who have difficulty getting up in time for 8 o'clock classes should be here now, with things getting under way at 7:30 (yawn!) But it isn't so bad when you consider that it all adds up to those Saturday-free, long week-ends.

The University's annual Homecoming is scheduled for October 30, when NDAC will be the Sioux football opponent. On Dad's Day, October 16, the U gridgers meet Iowa Teachers.

Housing Accommodations Adequate As Budget Opens

A late surge of applications for housing resulted in the opening of Budget hall to summer session students, according to Loren Swanson, housing director.

Housing accommodations will be adequate, Swanson said, although the closing of 40 units in Park Village forced some students to leave their families at permanent addresses for the summer term. However, a considerable number of housing units were available through subletting.

Last year only Hancock hall was open to single men while the current session finds Macnie and Budget pressed into service. Women are being housed in Johnstone hall and Linguistic students in Davis.

Education Building Nears Completion; To Open Sept. 1

The new College of Education building which has been in the process of construction during the past year will be ready for the 1954-55 academic term with occupancy definitely set for September 1.

Dean Garold D. Holstine announced that the plastering is practically completed and wood finishing on the upper two floors fully completed. Some wood finishing remains to be done on the second floor level.

New facilities of the $600,000 addition to the University campus will centralize the departments of the College of Education which have been spread out into 11 different campus buildings since Woodworth Hall was destroyed by fire five years ago.

The new building will provide for centralization of departmental offices, an audio-visual and curriculum center, conference and assembly center and administrative office and facilities center.

Also included will be music department course, studio and activity facilities and guidance and psychological service equipment. Special service facilities are being installed for each of the departments and many experimental features are being incorporated in the new structure. Only nationally recommended features are being installed.

Linguistic institute students will be housed in Davis hall again this summer.

N. D. Administrators' Summer Conference Slated July 19-23

School administrators of North Dakota and neighboring states will gather at the annual summer conference July 19-23.

Five major sections have been devised from questionnaires submitted to members of the association of school administrators, according to faculty members of the college.

These will be: Getting and keeping public confidence; Getting and keeping good teachers; Getting at problems caused by individual differences; getting the most for our money and getting on with the job.

Meetings will start with brief keynote talks and develop into discussions of the problems to be dealt with.

A credit of one semester hour may be earned by students who register for the conference through the graduate school.

In charge of the session will be Dean Garold Holstine and Dr. Archie L. Gray.

Rev. Mehl was graduated from St. Paul's College in Concordia, Mo., the college at which he is now taking over the presidency. He also did his theological work at the seminary in St. Louis. He did some graduate work at the University of Minnesota, and completed his work for an M. A. degree in history here at the University, finishing in August, 1953.

ested summer students and faculty members are urged to try out.

The play will be staged the evenings of July 22 and 23 outdoors on the mall at the north end of the campus, where summer dramatic productions have been presented for the past five years.

The play was first presented before British royalty at the St. James theater in London in 1895. Wilde himself described it as "a trivial comedy for serious people."

Drastic Changes Due:

Park Village to Lose Four Rows

Park Village, a haven for married veterans attending the University since 1947, will undergo a drastic change before the end of the current summer session under a plan calling for removal of four rows of hutments to clear the site for the new junior high school soon to be built on N. Twentieth St. between Fifth and Sixth Avenues N.

Bids for 20 of the metal housing units are being advertised and bidding forms will be publicly opened and read on July 7 at 2 p.m. at the University business office, according to E. W. Olson, University business manager.

All bids must be for cash and must be accompanied by a certified check in an amount equal to not less than 5 percent of the total bid. The University reserves the right to reject any or all bids and award bids for the best interest of the University.

Sale of the hutments will be either on a single or group basis and the housing units must be moved from the present location within 30 days after the bids are let.

Two barracks buildings on the campus are being converted to provide 10 housing units which are scheduled to be ready for the fall term. Equipment from six of the Park Village hutments will be installed in the new units.

Construction of the new school building is expected to be started in late August or early September, Olson said.

That will be the summer study tour of the University of North Dakota Department of Geography designed primarily for the teacher who feels the need for better understanding of other parts of the country.

The tour will leave the University August 8 under the instructorship of Donald Poole of the department. It will travel by chartered bus.

Students of the tour may earn three hours of graduate or undergraduate credit in geography.
