THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH DAKOTA SCHOOL OF MEDICINE,

founded in 1905, was a two-year school of basic medical science until 1973 when the North Dakota Legislature approved initiation of a four-year curriculum leading to the Doctor of Medicine degree.

The UND School of Medicine offers a statewide, university-based, community-integrated medical education program which places an emphasis on primary care. Practicing physicians throughout the state make up the majority of the faculty.

The first two years of medical education are provided at the UND campus in Grand Forks, third year in hospitals in Fargo and Bismarck, and fourth year in clinical rotations at Grand Forks, Minot, Bismarck and Fargo. Two transitional components of the curriculum, Phases III and V (after the second and fourth years, respectively), are provided in 28 other communities in North Dakota. Medical students also have the opportunity to experience medical training in other parts of the country and even the world.

In recent years, the school has developed and initiated a combined M.D./Ph.D. degree which permits the student to pursue a terminal degree in one of the basic science disciplines while earning the doctor of medicine degree.

The UND School of Medicine also offers postgraduate, residency training in family medicine, internal medicine, general surgery and psychiatry, and a one-year transitional program.

The educational program also includes graduate study in medical technology and physical therapy as well as the basic sciences of anatomy and cell biology, biochemistry and molecular biology, microbiology and immunology, pharmacology and toxicology, and physiology. Undergraduate study is offered in cytotechnology, athletic training and medical technology.

In its role of service to the people of North Dakota, the School of Medicine fulfills the dictum of Senate Bill 2401, enacted March 18, 1973, which reads: "It is hereby declared to be the intent of the forty-third legislative assembly that the State of North Dakota, through its Board of Higher Education, provide for a comprehensive program of medical education leading to a doctor of medicine degree."

NOW BEING ADMITTED to the profession of medicine and dedicating my life to service, upon my honor and before God, I freely make these promises:

I will carry out that regimen which, according to my power and discernment, shall be for the benefit of my patients; I will keep them from harm and wrong. To none will I give a deadly drug, even if solicited, nor offer counsel to such an end. I will maintain the utmost respect for human life.

I will respect and show gratitude to my deserving teachers, and in as far as reasonably I can, shall teach the science and art of medicine by precept, lecture and other modes of instruction to those who are worthy.

My own life and my professional practice I will keep guiltless and right. Even under threat I will not use my knowledge contrary to moral law.

I will keep silence regarding that which, within or without my practice, I shall see or hear in the lives of others which should not be made public, holding such things unsuitable to be spoken.

When skill or knowledge greater than mine will benefit my patient, I will seek assistance or advice, nor will I refuse my aid or my counsel to other physicians.

I will not permit considerations of race, religion, nationality, party politics, social standing or financial circumstances to interfere with my attending my patient.

I will maintain the honor and noble traditions of the medical profession and forward its highest ideals.

As long as I shall keep these promises inviolate, may I continue the practice of my profession and be respected for all time. Should I violate them, may the reverse be my lot.

RECESSIONAL

“Voluntary on the UND Alma Mater”
Arranged and performed by James Gurney

Note: This ceremony will be broadcast over UND-TV (Channel 3 on Grand Forks cable system, TCI of North Dakota) at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 9 and 8 p.m., Wednesday, May 10.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Edward T. Schafer, North Dakota's 30th governor, was born to Harold and Marian Schafer in 1946 at Bismarck. He attended local elementary and junior high schools, and began working at age 14 in the mail room of the Gold Seal Company, founded by his father.

After earning a degree in business administration in 1969 at the University of North Dakota, he went on to the University of Denver where he received a master of business administration (MBA) degree in 1970.

He returned to the family business, this time, on the East Coast where he worked in several management divisions until his election as company president in 1978. During the next seven years, he presided over a 42 percent increase in sales, and saw the company's net worth triple.

As a candidate for governor of North Dakota in 1992, he sought and won the office emphasizing a philosophy of tax reduction, economic development and "rightsizing" government to fit the needs of North Dakotans.

On December 15, 1992, he was inaugurated as the 29th person to hold the governor's office (the late Governor William Langer was elected to non-consecutive terms in 1932 and 1936). As governor, he oversees a state budget of $3 billion with 18,000 employees.

In his governorship, he also serves as chairman of several state boards and commissions, including the Board of Pardons, Land Board, Emergency Commission, Industrial Commission, State Board of Equalization and Water Commission.

He is a member of the National Governors' Association task force on state management, welfare reform leadership team, and committee on economic development and commerce. He is the lead governor of the Western Governors' Association for border issues involving the U.S. and Canada and serves as vice chairman of the Midwest Governors' Association.

Governor Schafer and his wife, Nancy Jones Schafer, have four children: Tom Schafer, 29; Ellie Sue Schafer, 26; Eric Jones, 19, and Kari Jones, 16.
