UND's Man-in-the-Sea Is Deep Subject

MAN-IN-THE-SEA FACILITY: This is the intricate, sophisticated facility named "Man-in-the-Sea" at UND. The component is 40-feet long, 20-feet wide and 9-feet high and is part of one of the world's largest and most advanced research projects to explore the possibilities of prolonged life under the sea.

One of the world's largest and most advanced research projects to explore the possibilities of prolonged life under the sea was dedicated on November 30, 1973, at the University of North Dakota.

The $2 million project traces its beginnings to 1966 when teachers in the UND College of Engineering and the UND School of Medicine cooperated to build a small pressure chamber for research, with funding from the Office of Naval Research beginning in 1968.

The prime aim of the Man-in-the-Sea project is research into the effects of submersion at depths to 1,320 feet. It is the only laboratory in the free world capable of studies of long-term effects of high pressure on the reproduction, nutritional needs and general health of test animals.

The Man-in-the-Sea facility has a major component that measures 40 feet long, 20 feet wide and 9 feet high; it occupies a 12-room suite in Upson Hall as well as six rooms in the Medical Science Building. Research from the project, which is staffed by UND faculty and students, has produced nearly 80 scholarly papers, dissertations and theses.

The project is directed by Thomas Akers, who notes that man is just beginning to explore the possibility of prolonged life under the seas. He estimates that construction of the Man-in-the-Sea facilities by private industry would cost between $15 and $20 million; by incorporating the design and construction as part of the over-all research and the training of staff members and students, the total cost was held to about $2 million.

Chairmen Named Development Campaign Shows Surge

The 1973-74 UND Development Fund campaign is gaining momentum as it approaches the mid-way mark, according to Webster Pullen, national chairman.

More than half the state chairmen have accepted responsibilities to oversee campaigns within their areas, and more than 700 UND alumni have already made contributions during the current campaign.

"We appreciate the very loyal support of our alumni and University friends," stated Pullen, "and I am confident that many will make contributions in the form of a special Christmas gift to their Alma Mater."

State chairmen for 1973-74 include:

Alaska—Mrs. Gary Oines (Coralyn Caldis, '69), Petersburg; Arizona—Arnold G. Kirkness, '28, Sun City; Arkansas—Walter E. Greene, '67, Fayetteville; California—Mrs. Kenneth Zuckerman (Margaret Stuart, '39), Palos Verdes; Colorado—Jim R. Carrigan, '53, Boulder; Connecticut—Arthur E. Winter, '65, Farmington; Georgia—Harvey W. Holm, '65, Athens; Idaho—Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Higdem, '55 (Mary Simmet, '57), Caldwell;

Illinois—B. Thomas Rodgers, '50, Barrington; Indiana—Carroll D. Gullekson, '50, Anderson; Louisiana—Ronald L. Clements, '55, New Orleans; Maine—Thomas L. Asplund, '70, Caribou; Maryland—Donald E. Squires, ex '35, Chevy Chase; Massachusetts—Jack Gillig, '48, Sudbury; Minnesota—Mrs. Kenneth Schumacher (Irene Konig, '54), Edina; Missouri—James M. Williams, '50, St. Joseph;

Montana—Thomas Nielson, '62, Havre; Nevada—Richard K. Peterson, '60, Las Vegas; New Hampshire—Mrs. Giles Low II (Eileen Boyer, '61), Plymouth; New Jersey—Norman H. Cruse, '60, Middletown; New York—Fraser P. Welk Foundation Gives $4,000 Music Scholarship

The University of North Dakota has received a $4,000 grant from the Lawrence Welk Foundation, according to J. Lloyd Stone, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association.

Stone said that the money will be used for music scholarships.

A native of Strasburg, Welk returned to UND in October to lecture to a history class and direct the UND band as a visiting professor of the popular arts.

In 1959 Welk was presented the UND Alumni Distinguished Service Citation in recognition of his achievements and loyalty to North Dakota. He has also received the Rough Rider Award, the

REPORT from the CAMPUS

By J. LLOYD STONE

Suddenly it's December! This fall has sped so quickly that it is difficult to realize that the year is soon ending. In fact, the whole year has been busy.

One of the most significant meetings of the year was held on the campus in November, when a two-day conference explored the utilization of lignite and the role it plays in the land use of North Dakota and its economic development and population patterns.

Lignite is becoming of increased significance because of the energy crisis, and North Dakota is fortunate to have one-fourth of the nation's coal reserves. It may well play an important role in helping America solve the energy shortage that now exists.

I can remember back to the days when lignite was considered somewhat of an "ugly duckling" in the field of fuels. Today it stands tall in a time of need.

—UND—

Late in November it was announced that UND President Tom Clifford has been elected a director of the Bush Foundation of St. Paul. This is indeed a prestigious group, and the selection is a wonderful tribute to President Clifford. I know the Bush Foundation will benefit from the advice

ALUMNI REVIEW

University of North Dakota

The University of North Dakota Alumni Review is published monthly except February and July, by the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N.D. 58201, for alumni and former students of the University of North Dakota in the interests of the University. Second-class postage paid at Grand Forks, N.D. 58201. Address correction forms should be sent to the University of North Dakota Alumni Review, Grand Forks, N.D. 58201.

Another of the men who helped shape the destiny of the University is gone. Edward W. Olson died November 8, 1973, after 22 years of service as a UND administrator. Mr. Olson served as business manager from 1948 to 1965 and then became chief fiscal officer for the Student Financial Aids Office until his retirement in 1970.

The Fargo Forum published an interesting article recently which featured two new health cookbooks written by Dorothy Revell (Mrs. Gene), therapeutic dietician.

The former Dorothy Tomkins, '33, has written several cookbooks relating to diatetic control of diabetes, cholesterol, triglycerides and hypoglycemia. She attended the Sixth International Congress of Dietetics in Hannover, Germany, and is a real authority in her field. Dorothy and her husband Gene are very loyal friends of UND. Gene is a former member of the Alumni Board of Directors, and you'll find both of them in regular attendance at UND reunions and functions.

Many air travelers who picked up the October issue of the "TWA Ambassador" found special interest in a feature story entitled "Kup."

It told the story of Irving Kupcinet and his career as a football quarterback, sports writer, and now Chicago's top columnist and television host.

The story, complete with color photos, underscores the success of "Kup's Show," which is now in its 15th year on television and has won 11 Chicago Emmies and the prestigious Peabody Award.

Kup attended Northwestern University for two years, then transferred to UND where he starred in football and graduated with the class of 1934. He played on the 1935 College All-Star team, and had a professional career ended when he broke a shoulder playing quarterback for the Philadelphia Eagles.

For the one and one-half million members of the Elks Lodge who read the October "Elks Magazine," there was an in-depth look at Lawrence Welk's personal views about the success of his unique "family plan" in business.

The story describes the operations of the Welk plan, how it has been so successful with his "musical family," and how a comparable plan could work to solve many of the social and economic problems which affect our country.

"Sharing is the key to the family plan," says Welk, and the story gives examples of the part it has played in his career.

Along those lines, I received a letter recently from Lawrence Welk, which states:

"Dear Lloyd:

I received the copy of "Sharing the Business," and I just want to tell you I think it is the most valuable book I have ever read. It comes so close to my philosophy that I actually picked up the phone and called Frank Lunding in Chicago. I will be forever grateful to you for making this connection.

Warmest regards,
Lawrence"

Frank Lunding, who wrote "Sharing the Business," is one of the great graduates of UND who has had outstanding success in his career; he, too, is a former member of the UND Alumni Board.

UND Night with Lawrence Welk will be held January 26 at the Hollywood Palladium, with Judge Ed O'Connor doing his usual marvelous job on arrangements. It has become one of the best attended reunions, and if you are near Los Angeles in January, you'll find it a most enjoyable affair.

—UND—

As I mentioned in the opening sentence of this column, "Suddenly it's December!"

And, for the staff of the Alumni Office, for my able right-hand man Earl Strinden, and for the Alumni Board of Directors, I wish you a Merry Christmas and a New Year bright with promise and peace for all mankind.

UND Alumni Days Scheduled May 23-24

The 1974 Alumni Days has been scheduled for May 23-24 on the UND campus with Walter Klick, '24, of Hebron as general chairman. The classes of 1924 and 1934 will be recognized at 50-year and 40-year reunions.

The Alumni Days agenda will include the presentation of Sioux Awards at a May 23 banquet, a golden reunion brunch, campus tours, group reunions and other features.

On-campus rooms in the Wilkerson complex can be reserved for alumni returnees.

Special reunions are being planned for fraternities, sororities and graduating classes in law, medicine and engineering. Details will be outlined in future issues of the Alumni Review.

Koppenhaver Honored

A foundation has been established by the North Dakota State Society of Certified Public Accountants in honor of R. D. Koppenhaver, UND professor of accounting. Interest from the foundation will be used to help candidates defray the cost of taking CPA examinations. Koppenhaver joined the UND faculty in 1935 and was chairman of the accounting department from 1940 to 1971.

Establish Boen Literary Fund

The UND English department has established a trust fund in honor of the late Gladys Boen, assistant professor emeritus of English, with proceeds used to provide literary prizes to UND students.

Miss Boen taught English at UND from 1953 until her retirement in 1972, and held a bachelor and masters degree from UND.

Annual prizes will be awarded to students whose fiction, poetry or non-fiction prose is considered outstanding. Trustees have been named who will annually appoint an awards committee, administer the fund and award prizes.

Interested persons can make inquiries or contributions to the Gladys Boen Literary Awards Fund, c/o UND Development Fund, Box 8157, University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58201.

Libby Collection Increases

The Orin G. Libby Manuscript Collection at UND has doubled in size during the past six years, according to Daniel F. Rylance, Libby curator.

The historical collection was begun in 1950 and holds personal papers, letters and manuscripts of 209 prominent North Dakota politicians, educators, authors, public figures and organizations. The materials occupy about 3,000 lineal feet of space in the Chester Fritz Library.

The collection is named in honor of Orin G. Libby, who taught at UND from 1902 to 1945 and is known as "the father of North Dakota history." The papers of 12 former North Dakota governors are in the collection because many were UND alumni and because the University has graduate programs where the papers can be used frequently.

The collection accepts any correspondence or records concerning Northern Great Plains history; persons wishing to deposit papers or other materials should contact Rylance at UND.

U Veteran Coach Honored

UND's Louis Bogan is one of three 1973 recipients of the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Honor Awards.

A native of Grand Forks, Bogan played all-state basketball for Grand Forks Central high school and was an outstanding guard for the UND Sioux basketball teams. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from UND.

After serving as UND freshman basketball coach, Bogan was varsity basketball coach for 11 seasons, winning NCC championships in 1954 and 1955.

Bogan resigned that post in 1962 to become director of the men's basic physical education program, a position he presently holds. He also coaches the UND varsity golf team.

He has been an evaluator of NCC basketball officials since the start of the program and is a past state president of the North Dakota Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. He is married to the former Helen Stephens, who was a UND student and cheerleader. They have seven children.

Marv Helling, former UND football coach, who is assistant executive director of the Minnesota State High School League, was featured speaker at the presentation banquet.

University Computer Aids in Operation of North Dakota Dairy Farm

Glenn Endrud, '67, has joined his brother in a dairy operation near Buxton, N.D., and is using his engineering principles learned at UND in a type of "computerized farming."

He was the recipient of an engineering scholarship at UND from Nodak Rural Electric Cooperative in Grand Forks. Glenn and his brother Lowell are partners in a dairy business that was featured in a recent article in the "Nodak Neighbor," RFC publication.

NEW YORK CITY ALUMNI REUNION: key people at the November 2, 1973, meeting of UND alumni in New York City were, l to r, Lambert Huppeler, host; Earl Strinden, alumni director; and Don Steiner, reunion chairman.

Earl Strinden gave an up-to-date on UND/73 at the fall meeting of the New York City area alumni on November 2 at the Union League Club.

Don Steiner was chairman for the reunion, with a pre-party social hour hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Huppeler.

Among those registered were:

Laura C. Christianson, '32; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Geiger, '48; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Childers (Marcia Howland, '67); Dr. Gwen J. Byrners, '48; Dr. and Mrs. Clarence D. O'Connor, '21; Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Huppeler, '32;

Gary Maddock, '63; Norm and Marie Cruse, '60; Jeffrey Leo, '73; Loreen Ledahl, '72; Larry and Vivian Lubenow, '58; Cpt. and Mrs. Bruce A. Lindsay, '68 (Jeanne R. Monteith, '68); Frederick and Claudette Varricchio, '64;

Dr. and Mrs. George Talbert, '41; Philip and Janet Schmidt, '64; Don and Marilyn Steiner, '57; Fraser Paul and Rosemary Seitel, '70; Edward R. Carrough, '58; James and Florence Peterson, '41; Larry Aasen, '47; David and Marge Rognlie, '56 (Marjorie Letness, '56); and Earl S. Strinden, '58.

Fund for Blind Programmer

Efforts are being made to provide an electronic device for Elmer Morlock, '61, a blind computer programmer at UND, with a goal of $5,000 to purchase the machine and train Morlock in its use.

The device, called an Optacon, picks up visual information from a printed page and converts the information into different touch sensations in the user's hand. With it, Morlock would be able to read ordinary printed material without the aid of braille texts, tape recordings or volunteer readers.

As part of the fund raising effort benefit dances and other entertainment are planned on the campus. Alumni wishing to share in the project can make contributions through the UND Development Fund, designating their gift to be used for the Morlock Optacon Fund.

A long-time resident of Grand Forks, Morlock is a graduate of the State School for the Blind and UND; he has been on the UND Computer Center staff since 1968.

There are several other innovative techniques in the dairy operation that reflect their engineering knowledge, including an automatic feeding system, an automatic barn cleaning system and other automated equipment.

Grand Forks Firm Helps Purchase Editing Machine

The Grand Forks Seed Co. is giving financial assistance to the UND journalism department in its purchase of an electronic editing machine costing $12,900.

The Grand Forks Seed Co. is giving a $6,850 grant made possible through a Dow Chemical Company marketing award which was won by the firm. Three of the executives of the firm—Dick, Bob and Pete Smith—are all UND alumni and loyal supporters of the University.

The machine will be installed in time for journalism students to use it during the spring semester and will be one of only six comparable units in use by colleges in the nation. The machine enables a reporter to type a story on the keyboard, and the story appears electronically on a screen resembling a television tube, enabling editing, deletions and insertions being done instantly as the story is being written.

Earl Strinden, UND alumni director, said: "We have had very loyal support from the Grand Forks Seed Co. and from other people in the private sector who are giving great help to the University."

Upper Midwest Gains Physical Therapists

The Upper Midwest has gained nearly 40 physical therapists as the result of a six-year-old program at UND.

The University's physical therapy department, the only one between Minneapolis and Seattle, was established in 1967 to fill a need for professional physical therapists in the region.

Of the 55 therapists graduated to date, there are 23 practicing in North Dakota, 13 in Minnesota and two in South Dakota. Physical therapy is the treatment of disabilities caused by stroke and other conditions, and consists of heat, electricity, ultrasound, water, massage and exercise.

ASSISTANT NAMED

Douglas D. Crockett, a 1969 UND graduate, has been named assistant archivist at the Chester Fritz Library at the University. After serving in the U.S. Army for two years as a linguist, Crockett taught in Tennessee and lived for one year in South America.

PROFESSOR RESIGNS

Dr. Russell H. Wilson, professor of physiology and pharmacology at UND for the past seven years, has become a clinical associate professor at Southwestern Medical School in Dallas.

A daughter Mary is a 1972 UND graduate now attending SMU, while a son John plans to attend UND.

ABM WORKERS AT UND

Military and civilian defense workers at the Safeguard antiballistic missile sites in northeastern North Dakota are among UND's newest part-time students. Nearly 70 persons are enrolled in four evening courses taught at Langdon by commuting UND professors. The program developed after surveys by the U.S. Army and private contractors revealed high interest in taking college-level courses at night.

PUBLISHES BOOK

Arthur L. "Arch" Monroe '51, has published a book "The Lighter Side of the Law." It contains amusing incidents in the practice of law as related by prominent attorneys. Copies are $1.95 each and may be obtained by writing Monroe House, P.O. Box 1423, Grand Forks, ND 58201.

PUBLISHES CINEMA BOOK

Dr. Donald W. McCaffrey, UND professor of English, has written a third major book on American film comedy titled "The Golden Age of Sound Comedy: Comic Films and Comedians of the Thirties."

He has written two previous books on American comedians and has been on the UND faculty since 1960.

David Presthus, '69, was honored as "Airman of the Quarter" at the Spangdahlem Germany AFB, where he is a staff sergeant in the personnel office.

Foreign Studies Expanded at U

The University of North Dakota is beginning participation in several national programs that will make it easier for students to earn credits toward their UND degrees while studying in foreign countries.

Foreign study and travel, particularly during the summer, has greatly increased in popularity among American college students. Under the new plan, the four programs specializing in international education for students are sponsored by New York State University, Wisconsin State, Brigham Young, and the Institute of European studies; the first UND students under the new plan are expected to go abroad during the spring of 1974.

Several hundred UND students have studied and traveled abroad in recent years through summer programs such as Experiment in International Living, "Europe 73," and through the Arneberg, Honve, Sons of Norway language and Max Kade scholarship programs. "Europe 74" is now in the planning stages, with several UND departments intending to offer field study programs for UND credit from May 14 to June 14 in conjunction with a charter flight.

Be A Hero

Help With U Alumni Energy Crisis

You can help with the energy crisis by being kind to Florence.

Who is Florence?

She is a very capable woman who has a big job; she is manager of the records and mailing portion of the Alumni Office, and she has approximately 40,000 names that are her responsibility. These are the names of UND alumni, former students and University friends who are part of an ever-growing list.

Florence and the student part-time workers use a lot of energy keeping track of the names and addresses, and they have come up with a system which could save postage and "woman power."

The records staff is tagging each alum's address plate as that person makes a contribution to the 1973-74 Development Fund campaign. The tagged plates will not be sent further fund raising mailings during the present campaign. Alumni Reviews and the President's letter will go through as usual.

How can you help?

1. If you haven't done so already, make your contribution now to the 1973-74 Development Fund. Your name will be placed on the Honor Roll list for publication next summer. You will not receive any additional campaign mailings—you'll be saving the Alumni Office postage and printing costs.

2. Check your current address as shown on this issue of the Alumni Review. If you have moved, if there are misspellings, or if anything is not accurate, please let us know. The Post Office has become much stricter, and each undelivered piece of mail costs us 10¢.

Thanks for doing your bit to help with the energy crisis. Florence thanks you, too!

SEASON'S GREETINGS TO:

Interested in a Spring Tour?

Plans have been formulated for a UND Alumni-sponsored special "Round the World" tour in March, 1974, and indications are that is filling fast.

For the past 12 years the Alumni Association has planned and sponsored tours for UND alumni and friends, and the excursions have proven very popular.

Alumni interested in details on the 30-day Round the World tour should contact the UND Alumni Office, P.O. Box 8157, University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58201.

KODAK GRANT

The University of North Dakota is one of more than 300 colleges and universities who share in educational grants given by Eastman Kodak Company this year. UND is one of 118 four-year publicly supported schools who shared in a $344,500 grant.

Richard Nierling, M.D., '29, has been appointed a new trustee of Jamestown College. He is associated with the Jamestown Medical Clinic.
