SUMMER SESSION THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1959  NUMBER 6

City Superintendent To Address PTA At Opening Session

What does a superintendent of schools expect from a local PTA group?

This important question will perhaps be answered when the second annual PTA (Parents and Teachers Association) workshop meets at the University of North Dakota Tuesday, July 28.

"What a Superintendent Expects from a PTA" will be the title of an address by Dr. Richard E. Barnhart, superintendent of schools in Grand Forks, at the opening session in the education building auditorium at 10 a.m.

Current interest in education is expected to stimulate attendance at the workshop this year, and organizers are making plans accordingly.

In the student group planning the all-day workshop are members of three graduate classes conducted by Dr. James M. Laing, assistant professor of education at the University of North Dakota.

Economic Education Session To Study Trade Problems

The third annual Workshop in Economic Education will be held at the University of North Dakota August 10-22.

C. W. Bullard, workshop director, explained it is designed to give high school teachers in social science and business courses a better understanding of the functioning of the American economic system and of current economic problems.

Depressions, the cause of economic growth and America's responsibilities in international trade are some of the main topics which will be covered by the course.

Special problem areas to be discussed are the regulation of monopoly power, the bargaining power of trade unions and the disadvantaged groups in agriculture.

Most of the sessions will be conducted by regular members of the University's economics department. However, nationally known speakers are being brought in for three of the topics.

The workshop, sponsored jointly by the UND department of economics, the University Extension Division and the Joint Council on Economic Education, may be taken for two hours of graduate credit or for general participation.

Bullard said that a number of grants of $50 each will be available to cover tuition and the major portion of living expenses.

These expense scholarships will be made possible through the support of North Dakota banks and other business firms interested in the furthering of economic education.

Requests for more information and scholarship applications should be addressed to C. W. Bullard, director of Workshop on Economic Education, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N. D.

Bullard is an associate professor of economics at the University of North Dakota.

UND Hockey Coach Accepts Denver Professional Offer

Bob May, coach of North Dakota's national intercollegiate hockey championship team, is leaving the University.

Dr. George W. Starcher, president of UND, was notified of May's acceptance of a three-year contract as coach and general manager of the new Denver, Colo., club in the professional International Hockey League.

May told President Starcher of his decision in a telephone call from Denver, where the Sioux coach has been in conference with team officials since last Wednesday.

May will return to the University Friday. He is expected to take over his new position after August 15.

In the past two years May's team at UND have finished second and first in the National Intercollegiate Hockey championship tournament.

In 1958 the Sioux finished first in the Western Intercollegiate Hockey League, but lost the national crown in the finals of the national playoffs.

Grass Roots Opera Will Open Tonight

Starting at 7:30, the Grass Roots Singers will present two operas tonight and tomorrow night.

They are Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury," the story of a breach of promise suit, and Menotti's "The Telephone," in which a young suitor vies with "a two headed monster" for the attention of his beloved.

Performances will be given on the campus mall if weather permits or in the Education auditorium.

Science Foundation Offers Two Fellowship Programs

The Graduate School of the University of North Dakota has been informed by the National Science Foundation that the University has been selected for participation in two fellowships programs, the Cooperative Graduate Fellowship Program and the Program of Summer Fellowships for Graduate Teaching Assistants.

Candidates for the fellowships for the summer of 1960 and academic year 1960-61 will be recommended to the National Science Foundation by the Graduate School.

The University of North Dakota may recommend 10 candidates for the Cooperative Graduate Fellowships and five candidates for the Summer Fellowships for Graduate Teaching Assistants.

The Cooperative Graduate Fellowships are open to students who have demonstrated ability and special aptitude for advanced training in the sciences and who have been admitted to graduate status by the participating university they select, or who will have been admitted prior to beginning fellowship tenure.

These fellowships will be awarded in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences, including anthropology and psychology (excluding clinical psychology).

Social sciences, where they conform to accepted standards of scientific inquiry, are also acceptable fields of study.

The annual stipend for these fellowships is $2200. Fellows may not receive funds from the Foundation and the Veterans Administration concurrently.

Summer Fellowships for Graduate Teaching Assistants are open only to students who have the status of graduate students and who have had not less than one year of experience as teaching assistants.

Fellowships are awarded for study in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences.

The stipend will be $50 to $75 per week and the Foundation will also pay fees usually collected from students with graduate status. Fellows may not receive concurrent Veterans Administration payments.

The fellowships are for the summer months only and the fellow may select a period of study not less than eight weeks and no more than 12 weeks.

These fellowships are available only through the office of the Dean of the Graduate School. Application material may be obtained at that office.

Completed applications for the Cooperative Graduate Fellowships must be filed in the Office of the Dean of the University of North Dakota Graduate School no later than November 6, 1959.

Applications for the 1960 Summer Fellowships for Graduate Teaching Assistantships must be filed in the office of the Dean before December 11, 1959. Applications for both fellowships will be examined by the University of North Dakota Graduate Committee and forwarded together with the recommendation of the Committee, to the National Science Foundation.

Both Fellowships will be awarded by the National Science Foundation on March 15, 1960.

Album of University Band Music Is Released

An album of band music dedicated to Prof. John E. Howard, University of North Dakota band director who retires this summer, has been released.

The album, entitled "The University of North Dakota Band in Concert," features selections performed under Howard's baton at the 1958 and 1959 annual downtown concerts sponsored by the Grand Forks Rotary Club.

HOWARD

Dean M. L. Cushman of the UND College of Education, in a tribute to Howard on the album jacket, says the record was produced "to recognize an organization that has for so long provided a cultural enrichment for its students, the University Concert Band, and to recognize the 32 years of devoted service by the band's director."

Dean Cushman also tells of the growth of the band under Howard's direction:

"In 1927 when Mr. Howard came to the University from Minot there were only 33 student members. For many years the band practiced in the attic of Woodworth Hall; their uniforms were World War I style, ROTC outfits complete with puttees, but the reputation of the band grew and except for the period of World War II their number has never been below 100 members.

When Woodworth Hall burned in 1949 with the loss of both its music and many instruments, the band moved to the women's gymnasium until the completion of the new education building in 1955. During these 32 years more than 2,000 students have played under Mr. Howard's direction."

The 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  r.p.m. long-play record features on one side "Ides of March" (Moore), "March from the 1st Suite in E Flat" (Holst), "Jubilees Concert March" (Kenny), "Mighty Mite" (Messang), and "Fairest of the Fair" (Sousa). Side two includes "Coat of Arms" (Kenny), "Montmarte" (Haydn Wood), "Emblem of Unity" (Richards), "University of North Dakota" (Carl King), and "Dakota Fantasy" (Yoder).

"Dakota Fantasy" was written by Paul Yoder, a graduate of UND and Howard's first student assistant, in recognition of Howard, the band and the 75th Anniversary of the University.

Myron Curry, director of KFJM broadcasting service at UND, edited the original tape recordings.

The album is available at the University Bookstore for $3.25, according to Milton F. Wennerstrom, bookstore manager.

Men's Education Group Initiates

Phi Delta Kappa, honorary fraternity for men in education, initiated 18 new members Monday.

The initiates are Noel C. Hoffman, Montevideo, Minn.; Marvin D. Fremming, Minneapolis, Minn.; Robert A. Hidstrom, Hancock, Minn.; Everett McKay, Luverne; Michael R. Safratowich, Hebron;

Leonard R. Potter, Rogers; A. M. Willert, Erie; C. C. Sundell, Hankinson; Clifford Waltens, Grand Forks; V. K. Espereth, Jamestown; Nick Hanten, Jr., Henderson, Minn.;

Merrill Berg, Mohall; Donald E. Larson, Williston; G. W. Grekke, Kennedy, Minn.; Fred C. Raniele, Keewatin, Minn.; Charles R. Walbert, Flaxton; Ronald Luttschwager, Larimore, and James Zacha, Wheatland.

An initiation banquet was Wednesday evening in connection with the Administrator's workshop. Mrs. Don Miller, Grand Forks soprano, sang.

Monday, July 27, Myron Denbrook, Grand Forks architect, will speak at the Phi Delta Kappa meeting at 7:30 p.m. He will discuss modern school construction, dwelling on the latest designs and trends.

After his speech, he will answer questions by members of the school planning class at UND.

Science Institute To Hear Physicist

Dr. Frank Verbrugge, professor of physics at the University of Minnesota and secretary of the American Association of Physics Teachers, will speak at the Medical Science auditorium Thursday at 1:30 p.m., as a part of the Summer Science Institute program.

This institute has been devoted to a high school physics course, as developed by the Physical Science Study Committee. Dr. Verbrugge, in a talk Wednesday, directed attention to the work of the committee and the physics course as it is being developed. On Thursday, he will explain laboratory and demonstration apparatus used in the course.

Charmer Picks Charm

Picking out a good luck charm for her trip to Atlantic City is North Dakota's candidate for Miss America, Miss Claudia Gullickson of Grand Forks (right). Last year's Miss North Dakota, Helen Korfhage of Grand Forks, helps her select a mascot at the bookstore on the University of North Dakota campus where both beauties are students in medical technology. Miss Gullickson will leave September 1 to participate in pageant festivities September 7-12. Her chaperone will be Mrs. Jane Gray Smith, Bismarck, director of contestants at the Miss North Dakota contest in June. Since winning her title, the new queen has had a busy schedule, including appearances at Winnipeg, Duluth, Mandan and Medora.

Softball League Leaders To Play Off Next Week

The top four softball league teams will play off next week on Tuesday and Thursday. On Thursday the finals will be played.

The top four at the start of this week were: Keynotes, 6-1; Theta Chi, 6-1; Budge Hall, 6-1, and Queen City, 5-2.

The standings of the other teams: Vets, 3-4; Guidance, 3-4; Linguistic Institute, 3-4; Medics, 2-5; Bek No. 1, 1-6, and Bek No. 2, 0-7.

TRACK GREAT VISITS

Lt. Colonel Morrell R. Sexton, University of North Dakota track great from 1936 through 1940, recently visited at UND. Col. Sexton has been transferred to Germany.

16 ON HONOR ROLL

Sixteen University of North Dakota football players attained B average grades or better during the second semester of the 1958-59 academic year. Four of the honor students earned A averages during the same period.

Worth Quoting . . .

Washington is inhabited by human beings with normal human traits; and therefore it wearies of impersonal themes and issues and finds relief in the spectacle of a personality as an issue.

The spring spectacle has been a three-ring extravaganza, featuring Mrs. Clare Luce, Mr. Lewis Strauss, and the thirty-three-year-old Ogden Reid, whom the President has nominated as ambassador to Israel.

Young Mr. Reid, who became boss for a time of the New York Herald Tribune when his family owned it, appears to have done the homework necessary, in terms of witness-chair tactics.

There has been a certain elevation of eyebrows over Senator Fulbright's insistence on going back to Mr. Reid's college report cards—many highly successful men were indifferent scholars—but Fulbright wants the record and the very young do not possess much record

Philosophically Speaking . . .

What is the main element in the character of certain people that causes them to become fanatics in some movement, whether religious or political?

Eric Hoffer, in his recent book, "The True Believer," says it is selfishness:

"The inordinately selfish are particularly susceptible to frustration. The more selfish a person, the more poignant his disappointments. It is the inordinately selfish, therefore, who are likely to be the most persuasive champions of selflessness.

The fiercest fanatics are often selfish people who were forced, by innate shortcomings or external circumstances, to lose faith in their own selves. They separate the excellent instrument of their selfishness from their ineffectual selves and attach it to the service of some holy cause. And though it be a faith of love and humility they adopt, they can be neither loving nor humble."

beyond their university accomplishments or lack thereof.

If Mr. Reid cannot help his inexperience, neither can Mr. Fulbright; both must make do with the material at hand. And Fulbright has deliberately adopted a new policy on diplomatic appointments. In his mind, it is not up to the committee to prove that the witness is not qualified; it is up to the witness to prove that he is.

Fulbright has accumulated a considerable weariness with amateur diplomats acting in the name of the United States, and there is a second consideration involved in this particular case, beyond the nature of the personality; it is the nature of the country to which he would be accredited.

Israel is a very special case. It is not only important in itself, as an extra-ordinary experiment in pre-fabricated nation making, as a political sovereignty built overnight on a religious and humanitarian base. It is also one of the causes of and factors in the extremely dangerous tension in the Near East.

And this happens to be a period when the United States ought to be trying to move into a new political and moral relationship with Israel if it wishes to anticipate events. We have not yet reached the stage of dealing with Israel in cool detachment, with our own long-range interests uppermost in our minds, any more than we have—to use a reverse example—with Red China. Toward both we still act out of emotional motivations, even though the emotions are so different.

It is no longer a fruitful question to ask whether the establishment of Israel was one of the history's greatest errors, as some western statesmen privately believe; but it remains a fruitful question whether the United States can any longer treat Israel as an appealing orphan we have adopted and toward which we have an endless moral obligation.

Certainly there are Israelis who would like an end to this abnormal relationship, for their own dignity; indeed, their leaders have acted toward us with the coolest sovereign detachment, as when they struck against Egypt in 1956 without warning us. Wise Israelis know they cannot have it both ways; not many American men of affairs seem to realize this, save the most professional of our diplomats.

So the real question about Mr. Reid does not have too much to do with his record in private life; it does not even have much to do with his success in his cram course on Israeli history and culture. It has much more to do with his grasp of United States policy and interests in that dangerous part of the world. It will not be his job to represent the interests of Israel to the United States, but the interests of the United States to Israel. It is a common failing of enthusiastic amateur diplomats to perform in reverse. That is not a mistake Israel's own diplomats abroad are guilty of making.

Mr. Reid might take as his model in this respect the Israeli ambassador here, Mr. Eban, who now returns to Israel. Mr. Eban has performed as Mr. Reid's mentor in terms of Israeli life and culture. When the protege has to deal with Mr. Eban as Israeli foreign minister, which Eban is soon to be, it will be well if the student has learned some of the teacher's toughness and shrewdness; if not, some think, the match should be cancelled in advance by the authorities charged with protecting the young and frail, and by those charged with protecting American Interests abroad.

—Eric Sevareid (From a broadcast over CBS radio) in the Reporter.

Contributions Wanted

The Dakota Student invites contributions in the form of news stories, notices, or letters to the editor. These may be brought to room No. 5, Merrifield Hall or to the University Press, or may be addressed to The Dakota Student and left at the faculty exchange on the main floor of Old Main.

Girls in the division of nursing are told of the benefits of a career in the services by, left to right, Capt. Mary Tonne, air force; Miss Margaret F. Heyse, director of the UND division of nursing; Lt. Com., Frances Alymn, navy, and Capt. Wanda Droze, army.

Student Nurses Given Facts on Military Careers

The benefits, prestige and adventure to be found in a nursing career in the military services were presented to students of nursing at a panel in room 114 at Merrifield Hall Thursday afternoon.

Miss Margaret F. Heyse, director of the UND division of nursing, headed the panel. Representatives from the services, Capt. Mary Tonne, air force; Lt. Com. Frances Alymn, navy, and Capt. Wanda Droze, army, took turns in speaking for their branches of service.

There were also movies which brought out the various aspects of life in a service nursing career. When an officer had finished her speech, a movie on life in the service which she represented was shown.

Safety Instructors' Training Course Set At Fieldhouse Pool

A 15-hour training course for prospective Red Cross water safety instructors will begin July 27 at 7 p.m. in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse, according to Dr. John Quaday of the department of athletics and physical education.

All class sessions are scheduled for the fieldhouse pool. Initial registration is scheduled for room 315 in the fieldhouse. Classes will be held nightly from 7 to 10 Monday, July 27 through Friday, July 31.

Warren Flower, field representative for this area, will conduct the five-day session.

To be eligible for enrollment at the school, Mr. Flower has emphasized several requirements, which must be positively met:

The student must have reached his eighteenth birthday. The student must have successfully met senior life saving requirements and his certificate must be current.

Also listed as a definite requirement by Quaday was that all prospective students must have successfully completed part I of the Red Cross water safety instructor's course. The course taught by Flower here is part II. Part I must be conducted by local Red Cross authorized personnel.

Interested prospective students are encouraged to inquire at the local Red Cross chapter office concerning opportunities for enrolling in part I of the instructor's course.

Local water safety chairmen have repeatedly emphasized how important it is to take advantage of this service. There is no charge for part II of the course.

Pi Lambda Theta Holds Initiation For 19 Members

Nineteen new members were initiated into Pi Lambda Theta, honorary society for women in education, at ceremonies in the Education building, last week.

Those initiated were Stella Aanrud, Jamestown; Sister Benedict Beehler, Minot; Doris Bierwagen, Elgin; Mayme Carlson, Bemidji; Verona Cover, Belcourt; Dona Frost, Jerseyville, Ill.; Mrs. JoAnn Harrington and Carol Hefta, both of Mayville;

Mrs. Anne Nicholson, Elbow Lake, Minn.; Mrs. Dorothy Richter, Valley City; Rosella Wagner, Fisher; Carole Torkelson, Grafton; Mrs. Sarah Gruwell, Dorothy Krueger, Diane Indridson, Geraldine Onstad, Doris Onstad, Marlys Smith and Dr. Ruth Woolschlager, all of Grand Forks.

At a dinner at the Ryan Hotel following the initiation Dr. Jesse Graham, a visiting professor of business education from the University of Southern California spoke on the responsibilities of women in education. She was introduced by Shirley Warcup.

Ginger Johnson, president of the organization, served as master of ceremonies at the dinner and Karen Trydahl played a piano selection as entertainment.

Lecture Topic Is A Hot Question

Dr. A. B. Garrett, professor of chemistry at Ohio State University, will lecture Monday and Tuesday, July 27-28, in the Medical Science auditorium at 1:30 p.m.

Monday his lecture will be "What Happens Between 0 Degrees Absolute and Five Billion Degrees?" and Tuesday he will speak on "Science and the Citizens of Tomorrow."

Garrett has been the author of a number of books and articles, and has been active in chemistry teacher's training and organization.

Drive carefully — an accident could make your vacation permanent.

KFJM's Programs Of Special Interest

Window on the World IV:

Monday—3:45 to 4

An interview with Harold MacMillan, British Prime Minister; a description of Britain's nuclear power plant; a talk with Roger Bannister about the value of sports or with Sir Thomas Beecham about music: these are a few of the past programs distributed as part of this series.

Each week WINDOW ON THE WORLD brings either a prominent British citizen or a description of an interesting British achievement to American audiences.

You don't have to be an Anglophile to like the programs; they are interesting to all types of audiences.

Queen of Battle:

Friday—2:00 to 2:15

Although produced by the Army, the "Queen of Battle" program series is definitely not a recruiting or enlistment show.

Largely informational or educational in nature, the sole purpose of this program series is to keep the non-military public, particularly those persons who have an interest in the military because of prior or future military service, informed on the various activities of the United States Army and particularly its reorganization and modernization.

GET YOUR ID CARDS

UND Air Cadets Win High Ratings In Training Unit

Second place in an overall encampment competition was earned by University of North Dakota Air Force ROTC cadets at Fairchild Air Force Base, Spokane, Wash.

Thirty-three colleges and universities were represented by ROTC units at the four-weeks summer training session that ended July 11.

The University of Nebraska placed first in the competition.

John R. Harty, 720 Maple Ave., Grand Forks, received the highest rating of all UND cadets. He was named the outstanding cadet of his flight and was among a group of 16 finalists competing for the outstanding cadet of the summer training unit.

Eight other UND cadets were rated in the upper one-third of the summer training unit.

They are Robert O. Heskin, 2610 University Ave., Grand Forks; Don V. Hubbard, Route 1, Mandan; Howard M. Knutson, Devils Lake; Thomas H. Koehnlein, 1023 Cherry St., Grand Forks; Scott P. Pearson, 1114 Chestnut St., Grand Forks; Clark R. Penas, Park River; Larry L. Shane, 942 Almonte Ave., Grand Forks, and Robert V. Torbenson, Enderlin.

Other UND cadets completing the summer training were John F. Dillon, 1506 Walnut St., Grand Forks; Kenneth E. Erdman, Willow City; Raymond L. Herman, Kulm; Larry J. Loritz, Hebron; Lester R. Schauer, Regent; Douglas F. Schroeder, Gladstone, and James A. Willyard, Bowbells.

All the cadets attending were from North Dakota.

Capt. Edward Klosterman, assistant professor of Air Science, UND, was on the faculty of the summer training unit.

LAS VEGAS BOUND

UND Air Force ROTC cadet Virgil A. Paggen, 602 N. First St., East Grand Forks, will depart late this month for a summer training unit at Nellis Air Force Base, Las Vegas, Nevada.

It'll Be Finished Someday

Progress is being made on the addition to the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority house at 2500 University Avenue. The addition will provide a new dining room and expansion of the kitchen, as well as seven new bedrooms. The Theta's also are expanding their living room into the area previously used for dining and are redecorating the third floor bedrooms.

High School Music Camp Elects Three Directors from UND Staff

Three UND staff members were elected directors at the annual meeting of the voting members of International High School Music Camp, Inc. in the International Peace Garden Saturday, July 4.

They are Dr. George W. Starcher, UND president; Dr. M. L. Cushman, dean of the college of education, and John E. Howard, UND band director who retired this year. Howard was a member of the staff last summer.

Starcher was elected chairman of the board, Cushman president, and Howard, treasurer.

Other elected directors were Prof. Wm. A. Euren, band director at the North Dakota Agricultural College, Fargo; Dr. Merton Utgaard, band director at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, Ill.; Prof. Marvin W. Fjeld, professor of education at Kent State University, Kent, Ohio; Fred Merrett, band director at Winnipeg Vocational School, Winnipeg, Manitoba; Dr. Vernon Watson, dentist, Dauphin, Manitoba, and John A. Stormon, a lawyer and president of International Peace Garden, Inc., Rolla, N. Dak.

Utgaard was elected vice president and Fjeld was elected secretary.

Elected members of the executive committee were Utgaard, Howard and Merrett.

Elected voting members were William Raaen, Maddock, N. Dak.; A. E. Brox, Crosby, N. Dak.; Richard Jelliffe, Muncie, Ind., and Robert Thilgen, Windom, Minn. All of these are directors of high school bands.

In 1960 the camp will be held between June 26 and July 27, with three weekly camp sessions, the same as this year. The directors stressed the need of additional dormitory housing for 75 girls.

The report this year showed 419 students and 19 directors enrolled, or a total enrollment of 438, as compared with 414 last year.

Aerospace Workshop Opens Today

The fourth Aerospace Education Workshop, held in conjunction with the Administrator's Conference Workshop, takes place July 23-25 at the University of North Dakota.

The objective of this program is to help teachers develop in youth basic aviation knowledge, skills and general attitudes required of them in this Aerospace Age. Well qualified personnel will conduct classes and demonstrations covering concepts of weather, power for aircraft, navigation, military and other aspects of aviation.

There will be a flight to Minneapolis to study at first hand the North Central Air Defense Command.

Field trips to the Grand Forks Air Base and Minneapolis will cover modern applications of teaching procedures and materials, radar, communications, traffic control, weather, jet mechanics school, rocket engine training, test firings and display of modern aircraft and equipment.

School administrators, counselors, teachers of mathematics, physics, chemistry, biological sciences, earth sciences, government, economics, sociology, geography, literature, vocational courses and elementary school teachers will find this workshop useful in gaining knowledge of aviation and space and enriching the total school program.

The director is Dr. M. L. Cushman, dean of the college of education, and the assistant director is Capt. Garland D. Bridges, U.S.A.F., assistant professor of air science.

The total cost, including $5 for registration, is estimated to be $30-$35.

Registration is on Thursday, July 23, at 8:30-10 a.m. in the Education Building. The first 60 who apply will be accepted for this workshop.

Hamre Addresses Guidance Institute

Speaking to the Guidance Institute students on Monday was Dean C. J. Hamre, acting director of the summer session.

His subject was requirements for scientific workers.

The women participants of the Guidance Institute, which is a program designed to improve guidance and counseling of high school and college students, gave a coffee hour Monday afternoon at Hancock hall for all the Institute workers.

On Tuesday, Grand Forks superintendent of schools, Dr. Richard E. Barnhart, spoke to the Institute on the organization and administration of guidance programs.

Effective Guidance and testing and counseling techniques for counselors in North Dakota secondary schools are emphasized in the Institute courses.

The Institute is supported by funds from the National Defense Education Act. Director of the program is Dr. Paul F. Munger, associate professor of psychology at UND.

Aviation Education Council Head to Speak

Dr. Evan Evans, who will address the Aerospace Education Workshop at UND at 11 a.m. Friday, July 24, has been executive director of the National Aviation Education Council, Washington, D. C., since September, 1955.

A native of Missouri, he has degrees from Baker University at Baldwin, Kans., and the graduate school of the University of Chicago. He served schools in Kansas for 35 years beginning in 1920.

He was at one time president of the Kansas State Teachers Association, and was chairman of the Kansas Commission on Aviation Education from the time it was organized (in 1942) until he left Kansas in 1955.

He taught graduate work in both the Pittsburg and Emporia State Teachers Colleges in Kansas; Kansas State College, and at Southwestern College. He directed summer workshops at the State Teachers College in Pittsburg and in Kansas City University.

Dr. Evans also was a member of the commission that wrote the 1950

Yearbook for the American Association of School Administrators, titled "Public Relations for America's Schools."

He is the author of one book, HOME ROOMS, and many articles in the American School Board Journal, Kansas Teacher, and other professional magazines.

In 1950, he was a member of the European Flying Classroom, sponsored by Michigan State University and in 1958, with Mrs. Evans, he toured Europe for six weeks by air. On that trip, he addressed the Centro per lo Sviluppo dei Trasporti Aerei in Rome.

His present work touches any area that will make teachers more aware of the curriculum enrichment features of aviation materials. He assists industries interested in aviation education, and urges publication of more books in the field of aviation, and the inclusion of aviation material in new series of arithmetics, reader, science, geographies, and other books. He is convinced that teachers who take advantage of the enthusiasm boys and girls have for aviation and space, and who incorporate these ideas and materials into existing curricula, will teach reading, arithmetic, science, geography, and other subjects, faster and better.
