PREFACE

The Summer Institute of Linguistics, at the University of North Dakota, herewith presents the tenth volume in its Work Papers series.

As in previous years, these materials are being made available in pre-publication form in order that those who would not otherwise have access to them might be able to make use of them.

Part I contains a variety of items. Perhaps the most important of these is the excerpt from a letter of David Thomas' which concerns linguistic writing for publication.

Part II contains texts obtained by the second-year students of this year's institute on this campus. The languages represented by these texts are: Assamese, Bengali, Cantonese, Hindi, Persian, Tagalog, and Turkish.

The reader is reminded that these materials are in pre-publication form; therefore, no public reference to them or quotation from them may be made without prior permission from the respective authors.
