Enrollment May Top Record High

While total enrollment figures had not been completed by the Registrar's office at the time the STUDENT went to press Thursday, it was believed that total summer registration would top the 1,601 record set at the 1961 session.

During the eight-week summer session, 297 courses are being offered with an additional forty in each of the two four-week sessions. Dr. C. J. Hamre, graduate school dean, is director of the summer session.

The summer session offers courses for graduate students, undergraduates, high school graduates and gifted high school juniors.

Three special programs are being held during the summer session for high school students. Running through August 10 is the biology research program, under which six high school students are participating in scientific research with UND faculty members.

The pre-collegiate science-mathematics program also runs through the entire summer session. In this program 34 high school students of superior ability are attending classes and taking part in research and projects beyond the scope normally available in high school curriculums.

The final program for high school students finds gifted juniors accepted for regular UND classwork. Their work counts on University credit but they must complete high school before actually enrolling at the University as a college student.

Of special interest to teachers are courses in counseling and guidance.

Welcome to the Campus - - -

An official welcome to UND Summer Session students was extended by Dr. George W. Starcher, president of the University, and Dean C. J. Hamre, Session director.

DR. STARCHER

We welcome all of our summer school students and faculty to what may prove to be a record summer session. More important than size is the quality, the wide variety of interests represented and the seriousness of purpose throughout the student body.

Whether you are enrolling for the first time or are continuing work already started, we want all of you to know that you are expected to have an active part in the life of the University. A varied and interesting program is available to you and we hope you can take full advantage of the opportunities that are yours this summer.

May you find what you want here, achieve the goals you have set for yourselves, and find real pleasure in your work this summer.

DEAN HAMRE

I am very happy to have this opportunity to welcome students to this summer session for 1963. We have arranged for the summer session an academic program that we believe will meet the needs of many students. We also have arranged a series of special events to make their summer session interesting and pleasant. We hope that all who have come to this summer session will find the work profitable and their stay on our campus pleasant.

'Monumental' Old Main Site Is Busy Again

By MARY ANN ROSTBERG

The gaping space, that had played host to Old Main since 1883, between Twamley and Merrifield is presently being leveled for the erection of a monument dedicated to Old Main, UND's first and oldest building. Demolition was completed in May.

The monument, according to designer Stanley Johnson of the University Art Department will cover a cement filled area of 40 by 60 feet. A 16-foot high sculpture, perched upon four legs, will be raised in the center. The sculpture will consist of a steel sphere 7 feet in diameter, representing the earth, overlaid with brass and bronze encompassing a constantly burning gas flame, symbolic of the burning light of knowledge. A plaque, commemorating Old Main and listing the former presidents, will stand between the four legs.

The entire 1600-pound monument, including six granite tables and granite benches, will be surrounded by a 30-inch high wall of fieldstone. Completion is to be reached this fall.

Air ROTC Cadets Attend Summer Camp

By RALPH MOLINARO

Seven senior Air Force ROTC cadets are spending four weeks of intensive training at Schilling Air Force Base, Kan. The first session of summer camps began Monday and will continue until July 13.

Cadets attending the first session are Ronald B. Begg, James H. Greshik, Clements Martin, John D. Mund, Kenneth S. Roberts, Terrance E. Severson and Douglas A. Wigness.

The second summer camp session will be at Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., July 28 through August 24. Thirteen cadets who will attend this session are: Glenn A. Belcher, John D. Edburg, Anthony D. Gervino, William A. Harris, Bryan G. Hawley, Robert J. Hovey, Martin J. Lynch, James P. Malone, Thomas E. Myhre, William T. Potter, James E. Preston, Joseph F. Zahradka and Leonard D. Zolondek.

Purposes of the summer camps are to increase enthusiasm and desire to consider the Air Force as a career, develop a better understanding of the Air Force mission and increase cadet proficiency in essential areas of junior officer training.

No 'Ski' Course

'New Union' Takes Shape

That "mountain" of dirt just east of the Student Union isn't going to be a new ski course for UND winter sports enthusiasts.

The "hill" is the result of excavation for the $1,200,000 addition to the Union, upon which work is well underway.

Dean L. Witcher and Co. of Minneapolis has been awarded the general contract for the addition with a bid of $678,460. Low bidders on other contracts were: air conditioning and ventilating, C. L. Linfoot Co., East Grand Forks, $131,900; electrical, G. M. Electric, Grand Forks, $118,972; plumbing and heating, Grady's Plumbing and Heating

Co., Grand Forks, $87,333; and elevator, Otis Elevator Co., Minneapolis, $20,266.

The addition will adjoin the east wall of original Union building on the east portion of the campus. It is designed for a university of 7,000 students, about 2,500 more than the existing regular term enrollment. Financing will be through self-liquidating bonds, paid off by student service fees.

Plans call for completion of the building by September, 1964. The present building will remain open until June, 1964, when a three-month remodeling project will complete the construction program.

200 Sessionites At Open House

By BARBARA KIEL

More than 200 summer sessionites "kicked up their heels" Monday night as the Student Union opened its doors for the first social event of the summer term.

Surrounded by sounds of the nine piece G and K orchestra, the students, varying in age from the high school group to the postgraduate, swung to both popular and old standard tunes.

They sat at the red and white checker tableclothed tables as they met new acquaintances.

The dance, free of charge, was sponsored entirely by the Union.

By JOAN CHRISTENSON

A major event on the campus summer schedule comes Tuesday evening when the annual all-University Hamburger Fry will be held on the Coulee Bank. Serving will continue from 5:15 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

The Summer Session Committee, sponsoring the event, has set the cost of the complete picnic supper at $1 for adults and 75 cents for children. This is a change from the former announced price of 50 cents per person.

Supervised games and activities are planned for the entire family. All students and faculty are invited.

200 Hear Lecture On N. D.s 'Beauty'

Dr. S. O. Kolstoe, professor emeritus of Valley City State Teachers College now employed by the North Dakota State Game and Fish Department, presented a lecture on "The Beauty Spots of North Dakota" Thursday night.

Dr. B. L. Wills of the Geography Department introduced Dr. Kolstoe to the audience of 200 in the new Burtness Theatre.

Dr. Kolstoe spoke in a poetic narrative manner while showing picturesque slides of North Dakota taken during the four seasons.

He said, "the most striking thing about North Dakota is the vastness of the praries." He urged everyone to take time to "reflect, for beauty can't be appreciated on the run."

"We should thank God for this legacy by enjoying the beauty of North Dakota," he added.

Dr. Herbert Albrecht, president of NDSU, also attended.

Invitations to the conference were sent by telegram to all presidents of land-grant colleges and state universities.

Dr. Starcher served as chairman of the North Dakota State Advisory Committee to the United States Commission on Civil Rights from its organization in 1958 until 1961.

The participants in the institute toured the NASA tracking facility north of East Grand Forks, Minn.; and the Grand Forks Air Base. They also flew to Fargo in a C-47 where they toured the North Dakota Air National Guard facilities, the Wing Headquarters of the North Dakota Civil Air Patrol, and the Hector Field Control Tower.
