ALUMNI REVIEW

Two new buildings serve students

Sports Center addition, Aerospace Sciences structure open

By Bette Crothers

The addition to the Hyslop Sports Center and the Center for Aerospace Sciences have two important points in common: the new buildings are impressive and both are needed by UND students.

The original fieldhouse was constructed in 1951, when UND's enrollment was 2,369; enrollment today surpasses 11,000. People are more interested in physical fitness, too. The number of physical education class sections has grown threefold, even now that phy ed is not mandatory. UND's aviation program also has grown from 12 students when it was established just 13 years ago to 2,900 students in the Center's courses today.

The addition to the Hyslop Sports Center will be dedicated at 2 p.m. Friday, March 2, and the Center for Aerospace Sciences will be dedicated at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 7. Both events will include open houses and tours.

The addition to the Hyslop Sports Center will be for virtually every UND student for physical education and recreation. (The only exception is competitive swimming.)

"The single most important justification for the new building is, simply put, the fact that our students need it," UND President Thomas Clifford said in a letter to legislators when the University requested the funding for the building.

The 1981 Legislature authorized $6 million for the project.

The six-level addition, designed by Harrie and Kennedy Architects of Grand Forks, is on the south side of the fieldhouse and matches the design and brick of the first facility.

The addition is massive — 131,000 square feet of space, which is about 12,000 feet more than the original building. The addition will have more room for recreation, while more space in the fieldhouse is used for seating. The addition's main floor includes one multipurpose room that can be used for tennis, basketball and volleyball courts; a 50-meter, eight-lane swimming pool; a steam bath-sauna-jacuzzi area; and a seminar room and two classrooms.

Containing 131,000 square feet, this new addition more than doubles the space available in UND's Hyslop Sports Center.

The second floor includes more locker rooms, faculty offices and a gallery overlooking the pool.

The features on the third floor are a dance studio and martial arts room. Twelve racquetball-handball courts are on the fifth floor. An observation corridor on the sixth floor overlooks the courts.

The new Center for Aerospace Sciences is the result of student as well as national needs. With the strike by air

Accounting firm contributes to Centennial Campaign

Eide Helmeke & Co. includes many UND graduates

The partners of Eide Helmeke & Co. have made an eight-year payment pledge of $100,000 and deferred gifts totaling $45,000 to the University of North Dakota Foundation in response to the UND Centennial Campaign.

The $100,000 will establish the Eide Helmeke & Co. Endowment. The $45,000 is in the form of individual partner deferred gifts. Darold D. Rath, managing partner, and Dale Boelz, senior partner, presented the donations to UND president Thomas Clifford and Earl Strinden, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association and Foundation, at the firm's annual meeting held recently in Fargo.

Income from the Eide Helmeke &

Co. Endowment will be for student scholarships, faculty enhancement and other priority needs for strengthening the accounting education program at the University.

"This Centennial gift will add even more luster to one of the University's outstanding academic units, the Department of Accounting and Business Law," Strinden said. "The department's graduates also are among the most loyal of UND alumni. We deeply appreciate this magnificent gesture by Eide Helmeke & Co. and their fine professional partners, most of whom studied at UND."

The gifts were bestowed as "an indication of each partner's gratitude to UND and its accounting program," Rath said. "Twenty of our 26 partners graduated from the University. This representation of alumni stresses the dramatic impact the University has had on our firm. Furthermore, its success certainly is an indicator of the quality of education each of us, and so many of our staff, received while there. It is with

Report from campus

By Earl Strinden Alumni Assoc. Executive V-P

Two alumni promoted to key University posts

Congratulations to Gordon Henry, '66, and John Odegard, '66, for their recent promotions to key administrative posts at the University. Gordon was named vice president for student affairs, and John was named dean of the new Center for Aerospace Sciences. Gordon has been serving UND as associate dean of students and director of the Memorial Union, while John has been most instrumental in building UND's aviation education program into one of the largest and finest in the nation.

We are proud and pleased to have these two members of our alumni family join the administrative team at UND. Both Gordon and John have worked closely with the Alumni Association and we look forward to continuing this relationship.

Two new facilities are equally impressive

When alumni and friends return to the campus this year, they may tour two new facilities: the addition to the Hyslop Sports Center and the new Center for Aerospace Sciences. I have been to many college and university campuses across this nation, but few compare to UND in attractiveness, consistency of building design and orderliness. Obviously, this is a result of good decisions, which, in turn, are a product of sound, long-range planning.

The addition to the Hyslop Sports Center, funded with a $6 million legislative appropriation, is one of the finest indoor recreational and physical education facilities in the region. Unlike athletic facilities recently constructed at many other campuses, the Hyslop addition is not for spectator sports, but to be used by every student for recreation, physical fitness, intramural activities and courses for credit.

The Center for Aerospace Sciences, built with federal funds, is an equally impressive facility. The rapidly expanding aviation program has moved from the over-crowded Gamble Hall to the west edge of the campus. The College of Business and Public Administration now has more space in Gamble Hall for its growing enrollment.

This center for aviation and aviation-related studies will assure that UND will continue to have the premier aviation education program in the nation as well as to enhance its reputation as a leading center internationally for weather modification research.

We can all be proud about what is happening at UND. We look forward to adding these two impressive facilities to the itinerary for visiting alumni and friends.

Centennial cookbook is available to alumni

The UND Centennial Cookbook was one of the projects commemorating the Centennial. The recipes were compiled by the Office of University Relations and University Apartments with assistance by the University Press and Word Processing. UND students, staff, faculty, and alumni contributed the recipes.

The attractive books are identified as the "UND Centennial Cookbook" and include pictures of several campus landmarks.

The cookbooks can be purchased for $6 each from the Office of University Apartments, #2 Stanford Road. For mail orders, please enclose an additional $1 and send your order to the Office of University Apartments, P. O. Box 115, University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58202. Checks should be made out to the University of North Dakota.

Founders Day officially closes Centennial

We are nearing the end of UND's Centennial year. Thanks to a loyal and dedicated alumni family, all of the Centennial activities were very successful. I truly believe the benefits of the Centennial for UND and the Alumni Association will carry on for many years.

It is not possible to mention the names of the volunteers who helped in so many ways or the thousands of alumni who were involved and participated in the reunions and other activities, but you know who you are, and we want you to know how much we appreciate what you did to make this a very special and historic year for UND.

The Founders Day Banquet on Feb. 23 — marking the 101st anniversary of the establishment of UND — officially ends the Centennial year. This does not end the spirit or the challenges and opportunities, however. The Centennial year for UND, the alumni staff, and our alumni is not the ending, but the beginning of a renewed commitment to the excellence and the ongoing growth and development of this great University.

Poem records feelings about student days at UND

During the year we have received more mail than usual. The letters from you, the alumni, were sincerely appreciated. I wish it had been possible to print all of the birthday messages and remembrances of student days at UND.

A few weeks ago, we received a letter from Jerry Lucas, who attended UND in 1972. His father was a UND faculty member. In his letter, Jerry said he would not be able to attend any of the Centennial events, but he "felt moved to record some feelings about my time at UND." Here is Jerry's poem titled "UND Memories."

UND Memories

Through the hallowed ancient halls of Babcock, Montgomery, and Old Science
From Gamble, Merrifield to Abbott and Laird
Spills out the Knowledge and wisdom from northern plains.

In and out of Selke, Gillette and Johnstone, Fulton halls
From "Old Chester's" Library and the recesses of the Student Center
Amble the precious cargo in the minds of students.

On the field and in the stands of old Memorial Stadium on the court in the fieldhouse
Or the ice sheet at the "winter palace"
Athletes and fans working together for honor.

Blanketed in snow with biting bitter cold
Fresh green of spring and the babbling Coulee Aroma of flowers and new mowed grass in summer
Browning grass, nipping air, noisy crowds in fall
Sights and sounds on the Mall.

Home Ec and Medicine
Broadcasting and Computers
Geology and the Arts
Nursing, Science and Education
Engineering and the Law
Frats, Sororities and ROTC
Deans and Professors.

Memories of home and growing up
Friends and times gone by
All recalled and recapped
By one simple phrase —
Alumni of UND.

Errors in December issue are corrected

We try to prevent errors in the Alumni Review, but bad information which we receive sometimes slips through. A most sincere apology to Mrs. Byron E. Fahl (Alice M. Vary, '26), whose name, by mistake, appeared in the "In Memoriam" listing in the December issue. A letter from B. Elwood Fahl pointed out our embarrassing error. We are pleased and relieved to make this correction, and to report that Alice is, as described by her husband, "a right sprightly octogenarian." Our apologies to Elwood and Alice, and thank you for understanding.

Also an apology to John E. Howard, '39, & '41, of Eugene, Ore., who suffered the embarrassment of a similar mistake. We are happy to report he is alive and well.

LOST ALUMNI

Can you help us find them?

We are trying to get our address records in the best shape possible. We've lost contact with the people listed below. Some have not been heard from since graduation, some have moved and not sent us a forwarding address, some have married and changed their names, some may have died, or if they are deceased, drop a note with address or date of death to Alumni Records Supervisor, UND Alumni Association, P.O. Box 8157, University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58202.

Persons are listed by last known name, year graduated and hometown.

UND IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY INSTITUTION

Dozen alumni are core of first UND Hong Kong reunion

By Marilyn and Jack Hagerty

Each morning in Hong Kong, Kendall Mellem rides a crowded bus to Repulse Bay, where she teaches high school English at the International School.

Her husband, an environmental engineer, rides the Star Ferry to his office on the Kowloon Peninsula.

With briefcase in hand, Carol Hagerty, an American lawyer, pushes her way on to a double-decker tram to her office in the Central District.

They are a few of the dozen or so University of North Dakota alumni living in Hong Kong. They compared notes on their lives and work there when they met Nov. 19 for the first-ever reunion of UND alumni in Hong Kong.

UND alumni joined several staff members of the Asian Wall Street Journal at Queen's Pier. They boarded a junk for Lam Island and a seafood dinner — prawns, lobster, oysters, squid — served family-style from a Lazy Susan in the center of a large table. The sole reunion decoration was a sign bearing the inscription "Let's Go Sioux."

Beware the Ides of March!

Friends, parents and alumni, lend me your ears.

Beware the ides of March (in other words, March 15). Julius Caesar didn't listen, and he got stuck! Now is the time to act if you want to make sure that someone you care about doesn't get stuck, too.

March 15 is an important deadline for anyone planning to attend UND this fall. That's when applications for financial aid should be in to get top consideration. Nearly seven out of 10 UND students get some aid through scholarships, grants, loans or work. The money's there, but you have to get in touch.

Yon students have a lean and hungry look. Help them out! You can call toll-free for the necessary application forms: from within North Dakota, 800-732-4375; from outside the state, 800-437-5379. Or mail the coupon below to UND's Enrollment Services Office, Box 8135 University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58202. And act fast — the ides of March draw near!

About half of the UND alumni in Hong Kong are American expatriates. Like the UND benefactor the late Chester Fritz, they live there because they see life in this exciting Asian harbor city as an adventure; they believe Asia is in the forefront of the development and opportunity in the world today — the place where things are happening.

The other alumni are Chinese who studied at UND and eventually returned

Hockey tourney win sparks Alaska party

When Darl Kvasager heard the Sioux hockey team would be playing in Anchorage, Alaska, he decided "to live up to the games and provide audible support." His makeshift band would be "of the quality, but perhaps not the quantity," of the pep band he played trumpet for when he was a UND student in the 1960s.

So when the Fighting Sioux exploded onto the ice for the First Interstate Classic tournament early last month in Anchorage, eight UND alumni and about 15 of their friends and children played the familiar fight songs "Stand Up and Cheer" and "Fight on Sioux" to record crowds at the 6,500-seat Sullivan Stadium.

"The team came 3,000 miles to play hockey in front of strangers in unfamiliar surroundings," Kvasager, '69, said in an Anchorage Times article. "We just wanted to do something that would help get their spirits up."

But one band member was neither alumni or a child of one or, for that

Who are these alumni, where did they come from and what are they doing in Hong Kong? Here's a few notes:

Kendell Mellem, '71, grew up in Minot, N.D., and her husband, Jim,

'71, in Grand Forks. They met as students at UND in the late 1960s. After two years with the U.S. Army in Germany to fulfill Jim's ROTC obligations, the Mellems settled in Kansas City, Mo. When the architectural and engineering (see HONG KONG, page 8) matter, particularly fond of UND, especially after the Sioux beat the University of Alaska, Anchorage, 3-2 for the championship and ended UAA's 29-game winning streak.

That trumpet player is Brian Porter, an UAA graduate and the city's chief of police, but he's also Kvasager's friend, so he agreed to play with the band.

During one night of the eight-team tournament, a newspaper photographer snapped a picture of the band and asked for Porter's name. He answered, "Kvernphazzen." Kvasager speculated that Porter was trying to avoid public scrutiny.

"We never expected to fool anyone, especially the editor and publisher of the Anchorage Times," Kvasager said.

But sure enough, the photo and a caption with the bogus identification ran in two editions of the newspaper. A day later a tongue-in-cheek editorial read, in part, "Journalists don't like to be hoodwinked."

At the next Anchorage Rotary meeting, the club president fined Porter, the city editor and the editor/publisher of the Anchorage Times $25 each for perpetrating a hoax on the good people (see ALASKA, page 8)

Darl Kvasager, '69, right, and Brian Porter — or is it Brian Kvernphazzen — play in the UND alumni pep band that was organized for the First Interstate Classic Hockey Tournament Jan. 5-8 in Anchorage, Alaska.

Foundation news

Len and Ceil Marti Scholarship for Physical Education

The Len and Ceil Marti Scholarship for Physical Education has been established within the University of North Dakota Foundation by the late Len Marti and his wife, Ceil.

Len served for 30 years at UND, including 12 years as head of the men's physical education department and 18 years as the athletic director and chairman of the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Scholarships will be awarded on an annual basis to a sophomore, junior or senior majoring in physical education who has a sound academic record. Financial need will be considered, and preference will be given to varsity athletes.

"We are so very grateful to the Marti family for establishing this scholarship in honor and memory of Len," Earl Strinden, executive vice president of the Foundation, said. "He was a most significant part of the athletic department and of the entire University. The Marti family enjoyed a close and friendly relationship with UND and we are thankful that this close bond will be continued. We are honored to include Len and Ceil as charter members of the UND Presidents Club."

Anyone wishing to contribute to this scholarship fund may designate their gift to the Len and Ceil Marti Scholarship.

City of Grand Forks Endowment

The city of Grand Forks has contributed $10,000 to the Foundation's Centennial Campaign for an annual research grant. The interest from the endowment will provide an annual stipend for a faculty member to conduct research that will benefit the city of Grand Forks. The endowment will become part of the University's overall Centennial Endowment.

"This is another example of the close relationship that exists between the city of Grand Forks and the University of North Dakota," Strinden said. "This investment by the city of Grand Forks in research at UND will strengthen the University and also help to solve or avoid problems for the city."

Idean M. Locken Annuity Fund

Idean "Dean" Locken, a Lakota, N.D., attorney, is providing for the establishment of the Lucille Bagne Locken Memorial Scholarship Endowment through a $10,000 gift-annuity agreement. The contribution will honor and remember Lucille, '48, who taught in Klotten, New Rockford and Devils Lake, N.D.

Scholarships will be awarded to UND sophomores who are majoring in elementary education. Preference will be given to students from Lakota or Nelson counties. Scholastic attainment, financial need, attitude and the recipient's interest in a teaching career will also be considered.

Dean, a native of Klotten, graduated from UND in 1940 with a degree in commerce and later received his law degree from the University of Montana. While at UND, he was a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. In recent years, he has been active as a member of the "Committee of One Hundred," the UND Alumni Association and Foundation's advisory group, and a volunteer leader in the UND $25 million Centennial Campaign.

"We are very grateful for this generous support and encouragement," Strinden said. "Providing scholarships for our students is an excellent means of growth for UND. We're proud to have Dean as a loyal member of our alumni family."

Havig Medical Scholarship in Surgery

The Havig Medical Scholarship in Surgery has been established within the Foundation through an initial contribution of $1,000 from Dr. Terrance A. Havig, '63, of Naples, Fla.

He plans to give $1,000 annually for 10 years.

The scholarship will be awarded to a third-year medical student who excels in the field of surgery.

Dr. Havig wrote, "I have fond memories of Grand Forks and the University of North Dakota. You appear to be doing an excellent job."

Strinden said, "We appreciate so very much this generous gift which allows us to continue to enrich the lives of students. Opportunities such as these are very important to the growth and development of our University and future leaders."

Stoltz Life Estate Arrangement

Emil Stoltz, '42, and his wife, Audrey, of Joliet, Ill., have contributed their interest in two quarters of land in Morton County, N. D., to the Foundation under a life estate arrangement, which eventually will benefit the Ben G. Gustafson Scholarship Endowment.

The Stoltzes established the Gustafson Scholarship Endowment for UND chemistry students in 1980. Ben Gustafson, who died in 1982, taught chemistry before becoming UND's continuing education administrator.

The Stoltz land gift is appraised at about $34,000, Strinden said. The Stoltzes will continue to receive the income from the land for life, and will benefit immediately from a substantial tax deduction.

Emil, a native of Mandan, N.D., earned his B.S. in chemistry. He worked for DuPont, U.S. Rubber, and eventually the Blockson Chemical Co., all in Joliet. In 1956, when the Olin Corp. purchased Blockson Chemical Co., he continued with Olin, holding such positions as manager of project engineering, manager of quality assurance and assistant plant manager. Emil retired in 1977. Audrey is an accountant.

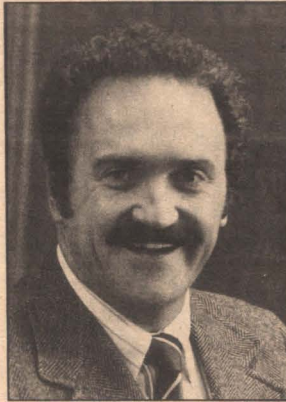

Meet your class chairs: profiles listed

It is my pleasure to introduce the chairmen for the University of North Dakota's 1983-84 Annual Sustaining Fund Drive. These people have volunteered their time and efforts to help us achieve — and, we hope, surpass — our Sustaining Fund goals of $600,000 from 9,000 alumni and friends.

The Sustaining Drive has already produced almost 60 percent of our stated dollar goal and 50 percent of the number of contributors within the first six months. With your help and the help of the loyal alumni listed here, we are confident UND's proud tradition of private support will continue as we move into our second century of teaching, research and service.

Thank you!

James Kaek, '63
President, UND Alumni Association
National Chairman, 1983-84 Annual Sustaining Fund Drive

Hospitals. Paul also has had several medical articles published and is a member of the American Academy of Family Physicians. He was a UND Sioux Award recipient in 1966 and was inducted into the UND Athletic Hall of Fame in 1976. He was the North Dakota State Amateur Golf Champion five times, the Minnesota State Public Links Champion in 1938, and is a charter member of the North Dakota Golfers Hall of Fame. Last year, Paul was selected to "Who's Who in California."

1935

George McKinnon is president of McKinnon Co. Inc. in Grand Forks. He earned a B.S. from UND in 1935. He and his wife, Ellen (Bell), '35, have been active in the UND Centennial celebration and are longtime members of the annual Homecoming Committee. George and Ellen enjoy travel, both for business and pleasure. They have three children.

1936

Dr. D. Wade Robinson received degrees from UND in 1936 and 1937, and was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. He earned his M.D. from Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., in 1939. After capture along with thousands of Allied troops in the Philippines, he served the American prisoners of war as a medical officer for more than three years. He was forced to walk on the infamous Bataan Death March. Because of this valor, along with Wade's many professional and civic accomplishments, the UND Alumni Association honored him in 1983 with the Sioux Award, which recognizes personal and professional achievement. Wade is practicing obstetrics and gynecology in Spokane, Wash., where he lives with his wife, Dorothy. His father, Dr. J. W. Robinson, '01, and his brother John Paul, '32, also attended UND.

1937

E. E. "Gully" Gullekson and his wife Beulah (Rom), '36, live in Foster City, Calif. Gully was valedictorian of the UND class of 1937. He is president of Gullekson Associates, a consulting firm, and a retired executive officer of Standard Oil Co. of California. Among his activities and honors, which include the UND Sioux Award, Gully is the director, treasurer and past president of the western regional group of the Society of Professional Consultants. He also chairs the energy section of the Commonwealth Club of California. His hobbies include reading, travel, woodworking and building. Beulah and Gully are members of the Bay Area, Calif., UND Centennial Campaign Committee.

1938

Vern L. Hill received a B.S. from UND in 1938. Vern was senior vice president of Henningson, Durham & Richardson in Omaha, Neb., and then a consulting engineer for the Lee A. Daly Co., Architects & Engineers, in Omaha until retirement in 1981. Most of his work for the past 20 years has been in other countries. Vern is a life member of the National Society of Professional Engineers and serves on the executive board of the Nebraska Children's Home Society.

1939

Eloise Halvorson (Johnson) has taught piano and organ in her Halvorson Music Studio since 1941, and at UND-Williston. She retired in 1982 from operating and teaching kindergarten in Williston. Eloise received a B.S. from UND and a B.A. from Wesley College in Grand Forks in 1939. She continued her education at Sherwood Music School in Chicago and became an affiliated teacher of piano and organ in 1952. In 1979, Eloise received a plaque from the Faith United Methodist Church for 40 years of service as a pianist and organist. The Williston community honored her in June for 40 years of kindergarten service to the community. Her former kindergarten students presented the program.

Morrell R. Sexton is a retired program director for the Southwest Pine and Western Apprenticeship associations in Phoenix, Ariz. He received a B.S. from UND in 1940. Morrell served 25 years in the U.S. Army in the U.S., Newfoundland, Korea, Panama, Germany, Okinawa and Greece. Morrell and his wife, Jean, have four daughters, all graduates of Arizona State University. Their son, Jeffrey, attended UND for a year before serving in the U.S. Army. He was killed in action in June 1967 in Vietnam.

Lana F. Rakow is a doctoral student in communications theory and a graduate teaching assistant in advertising, public relations and communication theory at the University of Illinois in Champaign, Ill. She is married to Tony J. Stukel, who received his B.A. from UND in 1977. Lana earned two degrees at UND: a B.A. in 1974 and an M.A. in 1977. Prior to entering the doctoral program, Lana was an assistant professor of journalism at Franklin Inc. College. From 1978-81, she was consumer/community relations coordinator for Wausau Insurance Co. in Wausau, Wis. In 1983, Lana received a national award from the Society for Collegiate Journalists for "significant contributions to collegiate journalism" and was nominated as a 1983 Outstanding Young Woman of America by a coalition of national women's organizations.

Dr. Charles L. Bridgeford has been self-employed as a dentist in Grand Forks since July 1980. His wife, Janine B. (Hanson), earned a B.S. from UND in 1979. His brother Gary also attended UND. Charles received his B.S. degree in 1975, then went to the University of Minnesota for a D.D.S. in 1980. While at UND, he played on the football team from 1971-74. He is a member of Delta Sigma Delta professional dental fraternity, Elks, Rotary, American Dental Association, and North Dakota Northeast District Dental Society.

1976

Deborah R. Neumann (Fercho) is a corporate tax accountant for Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. in Bismarck, N.D. After receiving a B.S.B.A. from UND in 1976, she worked for two years as a cost accountant for Carlson Construction, and one year as a general accountant for a radio station. Then she was employed in the finance division of the State Highway Department. Deborah is a member of AICPA and of the North Dakota Society of CPAs. She is married to Robert A., who received his B.S.B.A. from UND in 1976.

1977

Robert K. Muhs Jr. is operations planner for Northwest Orient Airlines Inc. in St. Paul, Minn. After receiving a B.S.B.A. from UND in 1977, he became a transportation agent with Northwest Airlines in Great Falls, Mont., Milwaukee, Wis., and Ft. Myers, Fla. Three years later, he became a flight dispatcher with the airlines in the Twin Cities. He recently was promoted to his present position. Three brothers and a sister also have attended UND. Bob lives in Apple Valley, Minn.

1978

Kent B. Cronquist and his wife, Carrie, live in Gilby, N.D. He is self-employed in farming and tax planning. After receiving his B.A. in 1978 from UND, Kent earned a J.D. in 1982 from Gonzaga University School of Law. He received an L.L.M. degree in 1983 from the University of Florida. Kent is a member of the American Bar Association and the Washington State Bar Association. Carrie, a former University of Florida student, is attending UND.

1979

Gail S. Hand (Stewart) is a reporter for the Grand Forks Herald. She graduated with a B.A. from UND in 1979. Her husband, James S., received a J.D. from the UND School of Law in 1980. Gail was a member of Phi Beta Kappa while at UND. She now is a member of the International Typographical Workers Union. The Hands live in Grand Forks and are expecting their first child in March.

Make 1984 your year to travel with alumni tours

Your University of North Dakota Alumni Association has again scheduled two excellent tours for alumni and friends who enjoy the good value, camaraderie and convenience of group travel. Space is limited, so why don't YOU join us today!

UND Ireland/Great Britain Tour July 11-July 26

Southern Ireland is a heartwarming medley of castles and cottages, pubs and jaunting cars, Dublin squares and Killarney Lakes. England is a green land of cathedrals, thatched villages, noble universities and London's cosmopolitan city magic. And making up the trio is Scotland, this country is a wild rugged tapestry of heathered hills, wind-ruffled lochs and the stately grace of Edinburgh.

Included are round trip air transportation from Minneapolis or Boston to Shannon, Ireland, with return from London, England, lodging for 14 nights at superior tourist class or first class hotels throughout with two persons sharing a room with private bath, full breakfast daily except during your stay in London when Continental-style breakfast will be served, a total of seven dinners including a special medieval banquet at Dalhousie Castle in Scotland and a farewell dinner in London, sightseeing and entrance fees for entire itinerary, all private motorcoach transportation with drivers, courier, etc. The cost of this tour is only $1,915 from Minneapolis or $1,699 from Boston.

Danube Passage August 8-22

Our 1984 DANUBE PASSAGE combines a four night cruise on the fabled blue Danube River with leisurely stays in the sophisticated cities of Vienna, Budapest and Wiesbaden. We think that it is a winning combination of unduplicatable adventures to share with your alumni friends.

It begins in Vienna, Austria, home of the Hapsburgs, the Strausses and unrestrained Baroque exuberance. Then on to Budapest, the "Queen of the Danube," before boarding the Austrian river steamer, THEODOR KÖRNER. All Cabins are outside with private facilities.

During your four day cruise you will visit Melk, Grein, Austria and Passau, West Germany prior to arriving in the spa city of Wiesbaden, resplendent with international flair, casinos and thermal springs. Of course, all meals prepared by a Master Austrian Chef, are included while on board ship.

Prices for this once-in-a-lifetime trip range from $2,795 to $3,195 per person from Chicago, based on double occupancy. Low cost connecting flights from Minneapolis or Grand Forks are also available.

UND was common route to Hong Kong for alums consulting firm Burns and McDonnell assigned Jim to redesign the waste-water system for the New Territories of Hong Kong, the Melles saw it as a chance to see more of the world.

The family now lives in a luxurious flat high above the harbor in the North Point section of Hong Kong Island. There they can afford a full-time amah or maid. Even the two children have careers. They are models for Hong Kong manufacturers who need "gweilo" children to advertise their export products. The term literally means "foreign devil" and is used by the Chinese to describe westerners.

Hagerty, '75, also grew up in Grand Forks. She worked with a Washington, D.C., law firm before making the move to Hong Kong. For the past two years, she has been associated with the international law firm Coudert Brothers in Hong Kong. Living there has given her the chance to travel to China, Japan, India and even Inner Mongolia.

Michael, '77, '78, and Mai Phoung Chan, '80, met at UND. He is the chief accountant for the property development and investment firm Hysan Development Co. Ltd. He was unable to attend the reunion, but would like an UND alumni chapter in Hong Kong.

Dr. Steven Scherling, '66, grew up in Fargo, N.D., and was on the UND business school faculty before moving to Asia. He will be on leave from the Chinese University in Hong Kong, where he has been for the past three years, to teach at the University of Taiwan.

Lily Wong, '67, and her late husband, Dr. Simon Wong, were married in 1962 at the UND Newman Center. She teaches at LaSalle Primary School. Their son is studying at the University of New York.

Rolfe Sobolik, '61, '66, grew up in Rolla, N.D., and now is a manager for the heavy equipment firm Donaldson, which is based in Minneapolis, Minn. His work takes him all over Asia. He lives on the Kowloon Peninsula in Hong Kong.

Kim Eileen (Bennett) Chiang, '67, can claim the award for traveling the furthest distance to make it to high school reunions in Townner, N.D. She and her husband live in Happy Valley, a district of Hong Kong.

Dr. D. Lee Askelson, '58, a retired Army colonel, is purchasing manager in Asia and the Middle East for American President Lines, the oldest American steamship company. He has been in Hong Kong for almost five years. His wife, Raschnee, is from Thailand.

"Building has slowed down here, but exports are up 20 to 25 percent for the highest percentage of business growth in Asia," Askelson said. "There are so many under-developed countries here. You can take a carload of sunglasses to China and retire. It's just that basic. They need so many things."

No matter who controls Hong Kong after the present negotiations between Britain and China, Askelson is optimistic that the business climate will prevail.

Dr. Alex Kwan, '71, also is a lecturer at Chinese University. He said UND is "right for foreign students because it's easy to know your professors. You need that." After earning a master's degree in social work from UND, he later returned to the United States and Canada to earn two more advanced degrees. Kwan and his wife, Esther, have one child and live in the little town of TaiWai, near Chinese University.

Jack Hagerty recently retired as editor of the Grand Forks Herald. Marilyn is associate editor/features for the paper. Carol Hagerty is their daughter.

these thoughts that we, as a group, say 'thank you' to UND in appreciation for the education provided by the University and the Department of Accounting."

The thought behind the gifts, according to Boelz, was to provide promising accounting students with scholarship funds and allow instructors opportunities to further their education. He expressed his gratitude to the University "for all of the fine people in our firm who have graduated from UND."

The strong tone of commitment to today's students was noted at the banquet.

"The future lies with today's graduates," Clifford said. "I am proud to see the people at Eide Helmeke & Co. further their commitment to tomorrow's leaders by supporting our University with this generous endowment. It shows the quality of people that UND produces."

Eide Helmeke & Co. is a 60-year-old accounting firm with offices in Fargo, Bismarck, Minot and Dickinson, N.D.; Sioux Falls and Aberdeen, S.D.; and in Moorhead, Minn. The firm employs more than 180 people, many of whom are UND graduates. It has grown from a small, Fargo-based operation started in 1924 to its present status as one of the largest regional accounting firms in the Upper Midwest.

The firm's partners who are UND alumni are: Erv Weber, '50, Richard Spaulding, '54, Boelz, '57, Frank Kadlec, '58, Dean Knudsen, '60, Robert Peterka, '60, Robert Wiedeman, '61, Mitch Olson, '63, '65, Eldon Reinke, '63, Dennis Carson, '64, Mel Clark, '64, Matt Dahl, '65, Larry Kemnitz, '67, '68, Al Klein, '67, '70, Rath, '67, C. Richard Brammell, '68, Terry Slotsve, '68, '69, Cliff Schweitzer, '63, Robert Swank, '72, and James Thompson, '73.

Other partners are: Maynard Helmeke and Darrell Ohman (University of Minnesota), Bradley Brummond (Moorhead State University), Eric Olson (Luther College), Darrell Strivens (Northern State College), and Paul Wahnoutka (Mary College).

Senior managers who are observation partners with the firm are Lloyd Anderson (North Dakota State University), Donald Meidinger and Gary Ness (Moorhead State University) and Rod Kuhn (Mary College).

UND officials who attended the ceremony were Clifford, Strinden, Rodney Medalen, associate professor of accounting, Dr. Claire Rowe, dean of the College of Business and Public Administration, and Dr. Donald Bostrom, associate professor of accounting.

The 50-meter, eight-lane swimming pool is one feature of the addition to the Hyslop Sports Center. The building will be dedicated at 2 p.m. Friday, March 2.

traffic controllers during the summer of 1981, the shortage of trained controller tower personnel became acute, and the Federal Aviation Administration began looking at universities with aviation programs to help fill the gap.

Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., turned this situation into an opportunity for UND as well as the FAA. He procured a $4 million federal appropriation for a training facility for air traffic controllers at UND. It is the country's first academic center solely for aerospace and atmospheric studies.

The brick and concrete structure, designed by Foss Associates of Fargo, N.D., reflects the progressive UND aviation department and industry. The three-story building is on the west edge of the campus at the corner of University Avenue and Tulane Drive. It occupies more than 55,000 square feet of space. Among its special features are two large atriums, or light wells, which will provide illumination and heat, and an atmosphere (a modified planetarium) seating 200.

The ground floor includes classrooms, study rooms, a meteorological lab, a flight planning room, a student lounge and the atmosphere. The second floor includes staff offices, conference rooms, faculty lounge, flight simulator lab and computer room. More labs and classrooms are on the third floor. An open deck and observation area are on the roof, where weather balloons will be launched and atmospheric readings taken.

Even before the Center staff was settled in its new facility in January, Sen. Andrews announced that UND has received a federal grant of $2.75 million for a computer science wing for the Center.

"The new wing will give us the finest computer science facilities in the Midwest," Center Dean John Odegard said.

The wing will contain approximately 20,000 square feet of space for computer science faculty offices, computer terminals for student use, computer laboratories, aviation simulator laboratories with state-of-the-art computerized trainers and large classrooms.

The grant also will be for classroom and office furnishings for the entire facility and computer-related equipment, including computerized doppler radar to be used for the FAA research contracts.

of Anchorage, with the proviso that if they would play a song in front of the assembled Rotarians the $25 would be refunded.

During the tournament, UND alumni met for the Anchorage Area UND Centennial Party Jan. 5 at the Anchorage Westward Hilton. Special guests were UND head coach Gino Garparini, assistant coaches and the hockey team. The UND Centennial film was shown.

The Anchorage reunion chairmen were Bob, '67, and Linda (Shefveland, '66) Johnson. Committee members were Art Timm, '67, Don, '66, and Mary (Berthold, '70) DeMers, John Stenehjem, '66, Darl Kvasager and Ann Curry, '70.

Other alumni in the UND pep band were Richard Besse, '69, Ann Curry, Earl Korynta, '64, Adell McElroy, '74, Mercy Dennis, '66, Tim Vig, '82, and Claudia Meberg, '72. Other band members included Obed and Susan Nelson, Joel Lounsbury, Neil Hagland and Rachel Tweton.

Tweton, an eighth grader from Grand Forks, was visiting friends in Anchorage. She rented a trombone so she could join the outfit.

Products of old U Carney Song Contest continue as popular pep rousers of today

By SUE BERG

In the fall of 1910, E. Claude Carney, '04, was determined to establish an annual award of $50 "for some activity that will stimulate loyalty to the University."

A song contest at Amherst College in Massachusetts was the inspiration for the first Carney Song Contest in the spring of 1911.

A choregus led each class in four songs, which included the UND anthem, "Alma Mater," written by Professor John Macnie. The other songs had original compositions and lyrics that promoted school spirit. The community members who served as judges awarded choregus Terence Quirke and the junior class the $50 first prize. The Carney Song Contest was a popular success.

But soon students complained that too many spring activities interfered with practice for the contest. So the date was moved to the eve of Founders Day, Feb. 21, 1913, and the event became a Founders Day tradition.

The 1914 contest also is notable because Vera Kelsey first used the words "Odz Odz Dzi."

Several songs written during the 42 years the song contest endured are popular today. The UND version of the song "Stand Up and Cheer," is credited to Norman Nelson, '26, and Roy LaMeter, '28, who wrote lyrics for the song in 1926 and 1928, respectively.

Raymond "Aimee" Johnson, '31, wrote the winning "Fight On Sioux." He later joined Ted Fiorito's orchestra.

Throughout the years, the rules and contest categories changed as classes grew, but the songfest remained one of the most popular activities on campus for decades. Classes would place hokey ads in the Dakota Student encouraging attendance at practice.

Like the rules, the selection of judges wasn't the same each year. The judges for the 1935 contest were former UND choregi and Carney.

Carney (now deceased) also attended what would be the last contest in 1952. He was semi-retired from his law practice in Minneapolis, Minn.

The junior class, led by Bill Arnold, won the song contest that year. Marlys Jacobsen and Donald Paul won best original song for "Voice of UND." D. Jerome Tweton, now chairman of the UND History Department, contributed his composition, "Our NDU."

A year later, despite student government efforts to enlist choregi, no juniors or seniors had applied for the positions by February. Professor Hywel C. Rowland, contest director for 27 years, announced that the tradition of the Carney Song Contest would be broken.

Although the Carney contest ended 30 years ago, the sororities and fraternities sponsor a similar contest, the Greek Sing. Sororities and fraternities sing UND and Greek songs on the banks of the English Coulee during Homecoming. The contest is an offshoot of the Interfraternity Sing, which began in 1934.

The Carney Song Contest was one of the most popular activities on campus for decades. Because the competition pitted classes against each other, students placed ads in the Dakota Student urging classmates to attend practice. These ads appeared in 1944.

Remember when

By SUSAN BERG

February 1934

The highlights of the 51st Founder's Day celebration were the Carney Song Contest, a luncheon and the basketball series between the Sioux and the Ag College (now North Dakota State University). Classes were canceled for the day.

Choreus Lucille Coghlan led the senior class to its second consecutive win in the Carney contest. Marlen Loehke, Muri Fodness and Jack Turner were the choregi for the junior, sophomore and freshman classes, respectively.

George Feinstein, Lucille Coghlan and Virginia Best placed first, second and third, respectively, in the original song contest for the seniors. Leon Settle placed first for the juniors. Matrix, the honorary women's journalism group, was allowed to publish the "Axe," a "scandal mongering sheet" that was banned two years prior, the Dakota Student reported. The "Axe" was renamed the "Lily."

The Chi Omega sorority was quarantined after an outbreak of scarlet fever.

February 1944

The Spinster Skip theme was "Divine Comedy" by Dante. Gabriel and his Hellcats (actually George Schuh and his band) provided the music. Ann Howell was president of Mortar Board, which sponsored the annual semi-formal affair in the UND Armory. The women picked up their dates and presented them with "warsaps." Dick Goller of Barracks 16 was crowned Dream Man. Patterson Talley and Jim Schunck were the attendants.

Laura Jane Robart led the senior class to victory in the Carney Song Contest. She also won $10 for the best musical composition. Lorraine Johnson, Dorothy Erickson and Alan Liberman led the junior, sophomore, and freshman classes, respectively.

UND observed the World Day of Prayer, Sunday, Feb. 20.

Sigma Alpha Iota, a national honorary music fraternity, sponsored the SAI Victory Bond Show. People who bought bonds received tickets to the musical talent show which involved UND, the Grand Forks community and local schools.

February 1954

The Goose, a campus humor magazine managed by Irv Letofsky and Bob Wheeler, enticed readers with lines such as "You'll laugh so hard you'll cry" and "Only a lousy quarter." The duo promised "the tops in college humor."

Ruby McKenzie, the University registrar, announced 44 mid-year graduates.

Francois Delzer won the Most Horrible I.D. Mug Contest. Bob Anderson accused Delzer of bribing the judges with a $20 bill. John VonRueden and Ted Sherats also were nominated. The contestants had the dubious honor of having the mug shots pictured in the Dakota Student.

"Louie the Leper" Hoverson was declared 1954 Ugly Man at the Lettermen's dance. Penny voting brought him victory. Robert White won for best untrimmed beard and Ronald Kuehse won for best trimmed beard in the Beard Bust Contest.

For the first time in 17 years, the Sioux cagers won the North Central Conference title, sharing it with the NDAC Bison.

February 1964

The oil paintings of Calvin Carr, Theodore Shertars, Pierre Jorgensen and Kathryn Buhaug were displayed in the Chester Fritz Library's art gallery on campus.

Mike Hendrickson won the 1964 Ugly Man contest.

The UND Sioux and the NDSU Bison basketball teams played their last four-game series, ending a tradition dating to the 1921-22 academic year. During those 42 years, UND swept all four games five times; NDSU swept the series twice. They split the last series. (The rivalry continues as a two-game series.)

A surprised President George Starcher was presented a cake during the Founder's Day celebration, marking his 10th anniversary as president of UND.

Blue Key sponsored the annual King Kold Carnival, selecting three finalists to compete for Queen Aurora. An all-campus male vote gave the title to Mary Waind. Keith Anderson, master of ceremonies for the talent pageant, entertained with wacky jokes, impersonations and a striptease, the Daotach annual reported. A broomball tournament was held instead of the snow sculpture contest for the second consecutive year because of a lack of snow.

Penny Ferguson was elected Queen of Hearts of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

February 1974

Women faculty, staff and students established a women's center with resources and programs for women. Mortar Board sponsored the conference "The Women's Movement: For Women and Men Only."

President Tom Clifford was guest narrator for "A Lincoln Portrait," a musical presented by the Grand Forks Symphony, which was conducted by Jack Miller.

Henry Tomasek became dean of the College of Human Resources Development.

The members of the women's basketball team were RaeAnn Moe, Sheila Halper, Margaret "Pete" Peterson, Laralie Higginson and Kirsten Hanson. Nancy Demmers was the coach.

The second annual Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon raised almost $20,000. Jean Haley and Clint Koble raised $1,800, making them winners of an all-expenses-paid trip to Las Vegas to work at the national Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy Telethon.

The Kegs drive-in restaurant's special was three Sloppy Joes for $1.

Even cold can't conquer fashion (of sorts) for U students during wicked winters

By LOIS BONGARD

On a typical winter day in Grand Forks the temperature is well below zero and students are wrapped in parkas and mukluks, right? Although that image may warm parents' hearts, the real campus fashion scene is closer to Bikini

Proper winter protection often incurs a degree of anonymity.

Beach. Style isn't put on ice at UND during the winter.

Despite the warning that a person with a bare head may lose one-fifth of his or her body heat, caps are virtually obsolete, coats are purchased for cut not warmth, and footwear is impractical for North Dakota's toe-freezing weather. Hearty Midwesterners they may be, but Vanity, UND student is they name.

"Hats mess up my hair," Denise Schmieg, a UND senior in social work, said. "Earmuffs keep my ears warm without making me look like a gack."

The coats are wool, goose down, leather, covering everything down to the waist, knees or calves, but are they warm?

"I chose my coat because I liked the style," Sharon Dockter, a UND senior in management, said. "I didn't think it was going to be warm enough, but I liked the color."

Maybe there isn't a coat on the market warm enough to survive the dreaded walk to class when the wind chill is 52 degrees below zero.

Although those sidewalks can be packed with snow and ice, few students wear snow boots; snow boots are what your mother made you wear when you still had to obey her. Instead, students wear anything from pumps to penny loafers. Why wear high heels on a cold winter day?

"Because it looks nice and fashionable . . . and I didn't have anything else to wear," Liz Best, a UND senior in nursing, said.

Do they pay for their vanity?

Guy Schwartz, a UND December graduate in engineering, said, "I can remember walking to class when the wind chill was 80 degrees below without a scarf or a hat, and I frost bit my nose."

Your ears can't get cold when they're protected by a fluffy friend, as Kari Lenarz, a junior from Plymouth, Minn., demonstrates.

LEFT: Even a minus-30 wind chill won't impede the student who's determined to cross the campus as quickly as possible.

BELOW: When confronting the crisp campus wind, you can cover up — or ignore it.

U icers enter 'second season' with sights aimed at playoffs

It's called the second season. The first season in UND hockey is a mix of Western Collegiate Hockey Association games and non-league contests, but the second season is all WCHA — always intense, always exciting.

As the Alumni Review goes to press, the Sioux enter this "second season" in second place in the WCHA with a 14-5-1 record. The University of Minnesota-Duluth is first, the University of Minnesota is third, and Wisconsin is fourth. Denver and Colorado College are tied for fifth.

If the Sioux can hold on to first or second place, they will play on home ice in the WCHA post-season play-offs, which will be held Feb. 24-25, March 2-3 and March 9-10. Ticket information will be available from the UND Athletic Ticket Office, (701) 777-2236.

If the Sioux win the play-offs, they would automatically qualify for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I quarter-final round. The NCAA Hockey Committee decides which other teams will play in these games at sites to be named. Quarter-final round victors then would become the Final Four for the NCAA Division I Semi-Finals March 22-24 at Lake Placid, N.Y.

The Sioux wound up their "first season" as champions of the eight-team First Inter-State Classic in Anchorage, Alaska.

Three major events remain on Centennial celebration schedule

Three February events will close the official observance of the University's Centennial. The UND Foundation's $25 million Centennial Campaign, however, will continue through the year and into 1985. The final campus events are:

• Feb. 16-18, a three-day Centennial technical fair and symposium titled "Technology for a New Century," free and open to the public, at the UND Memorial Union.

• Feb. 23, at 1 p.m., the Centennial Convocation at the Chester Fritz Auditorium, free and open to the public, featuring Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

• Also on Feb. 23, at 7 p.m., in the UND Memorial Union, the traditional Founders Day Banquet, this year marking the 101st anniversary of the establishment of UND and officially ending the Centennial year. Information on tickets is available from the UND President's Office, telephone (701) 777-2121.

News briefs

Gordon Henry, associate dean of students and director of the University of North Dakota Memorial Union, was appointed UND vice president for student affairs, effective Feb. 1.

The State Board of Higher Education confirmed Henry's appointment Jan. 13. He replaces William Bryan, who resigned in early 1983. Lillian Elsinga, associate dean of students, served as interim vice president during the just concluded nationwide search.

Henry, 43, will serve as one of four UND vice presidents, who report to President Thomas J. Clifford. He will manage a division serving more than 11,000 students and consisting of more than 90 employees and a budget of $2.9 million. Major units include the Dean of Students Office, Student Health Service, Counseling Center, Career Planning and Placement Center, UND Memorial Union, Office of Enrollment Services and Office of Native American Programs.

A native of Westhope, N.D., Henry holds a B.S. in physical education from Minot State College and the M.S. and Ed.D. in counseling and guidance from UND. In 1979-80, he completed a year of post-doctoral studies in higher education at Arizona State University.

Henry taught science and served as head basketball coach at Tioga, N.D., High School from 1962-65. He began his career with UND in 1965 as a dormitory head resident, became assistant dean of men in 1969 and associate dean for student development in 1972. He served as interim dean for student development in 1977-79. Following his return from leave in 1980, he was appointed director of the UND Memorial Union in addition to his title of associate dean of students.

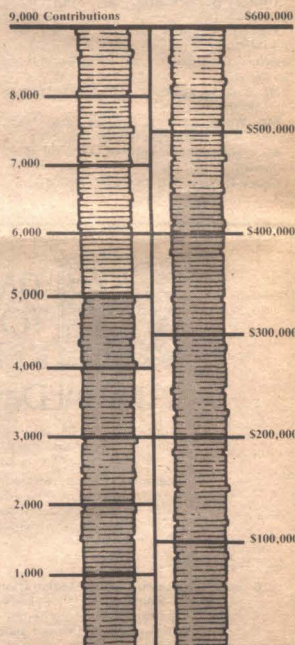

Besides his administrative duties, Henry holds academic rank as an assistant professor of counseling and guidance and has served as a member of the graduate faculty and of the University Senate.

Henry and his wife, Pat, have three children, David, 14, Judy, 11, and Michael, 9.

Why not attend the summer session at UND in 1984?

Every year the warm weather attracts many "summer only" students to the UND campus for undergraduate or graduate courses, conferences, institutes or workshops. Dates for the regular summer session are June 11 to Aug. 3. Shorter courses and programs also are offered. For a free copy of the "Summer Session Bulletin/Time Schedule," write to the Office of Summer Sessions, Box 8026, University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58202.

1983-1984 SUSTAINING FUND GOALS

As of Jan. 31, 1984, the annual UND Sustaining Fund Drive had received $437,297.87 from 5,103 contributors, compared to $316,478.40 from 3,800 contributors by the same time last year.
