ATTORNEY REMEMBRANCES IN THE NORTH DAKOTA LAW REVIEW

TED SMITH*

I. INTRODUCTION

Since statehood in 1889, about 5,478¹ attorneys have been admitted to practice law in North Dakota. As time has passed, many of these attorneys have died and the State Bar Association of North Dakota (SBAND) has memorialized some of them in the pages of the North Dakota Law Review. Additionally, some SBAND presidents have been featured during their terms in office,² and a few issues have contained dedications to people important to the University of North Dakota Law School community.

Here at the North Dakota Supreme Court Law Library, we are occasionally asked for biographical or historical information about former justices, judges, and bar leaders. We also are contacted by people seeking genealogical information about former partners, parents, grandparents, uncles, aunts, brothers, sisters, or other individuals that practiced law in North Dakota. The list I started compiling to answer these questions led me to create the indexes contained herein.

The remembrances were prepared by a SBAND “memorials” committee, presented at the SBAND annual meeting, and then placed in the North Dakota Law Review. However, the last remembrances to appear in the Law Review were in 1993.³ Now the only notice the bar takes of a member’s passing is a statement such as: “IN MEMORIAM The State Bar Association of North Dakota has contributed a $50 memorial to the North Dakota Bar Foundation in honor of Harold Anderson, Bismarck, North Dakota who passed away on May 8, 2001”⁴ or an occasional tribute in the Gavel.⁵

The remembrances in the North Dakota Law Review revealed much about the men and women who practiced law in the state. Nary a knave or scoundrel has graced the pages of the Law Review.⁶ We are reminded of our comrades killed in World War II⁷ or the Vietnam Conflict⁸ and are rightly proud of members who received the Congressional Medal of Honor,⁹ the Legion of Merit,¹⁰ and the Distinguished Flying Cross.¹¹ Justice Morris’s service as a judge in the Nuremberg Trials has been documented elsewhere;¹² but in the pages of the Law Review, we find that a North Dakota attorney served as an alternate judge at Nuremberg,¹³ as a judge in the West German courts administered by the United States government following World War II,¹⁴ and as a war crimes judge in Germany with the United States State Department.¹⁵

North Dakota attorneys have served their country in high public office and in national organizations. John Burke was the United States Treasurer,¹⁶ and James O’Connor served as Comptroller of the Currency.¹⁷

Authors and poets have graced our profession. Our ranks include a North Dakota poet laureate²² and an artist.²³ Legal authors include Roger Cooley,²⁴ Harrison Bronson,²⁵ John Lowe,²⁶ and Tom Eastman.²⁷ Writers of history or textbooks include Clyde Young²⁸ and Arnold Goplen.²⁹ Fiction writers have also been remembered; we can swell with pride as we read *The Conquest of Inez Ripley*³⁰ or Elwin Lorraine's³¹ The Neutral's Portion.³² Additionally, Siver Serumgaard translated many of the Norwegian classics into English.³³

We all know that Helen Hamilton was the first woman admitted to the American Bar Association and the first woman to graduate from the University of North Dakota School of Law.³⁴ However, only through the remembrances in the Law Review do we learn of the second woman admitted to the North Dakota State Bar Association³⁵ and of the first woman appointed as an assistant state's attorney in North Dakota.³⁶

Other noteworthy North Dakota lawyers include: Leslie Simpson, a Grigby's Rough Rider in the Spanish-American War;³⁷ Smith Stimmell, the Lawyers from our state are a hard working bunch, but their lot is not all work and no play. Frank Temple died as he finished arraigning a prisoner in district court⁴¹ and several others died at their desks or offices.⁴² Conversely, Roy Miller,⁴³ William McIntyre,⁴⁴ and James Weeks⁴⁵ died on the golf course.

The bar should resume publishing these remembrances. Future generations of lawyers will not know, nor be able to discover, the exploits of past lawyers and the legacy they left behind. Already, no written record remains to acknowledge the lives of service and to record the accomplishments of Ralph J. Erickstad⁴⁶ and Eugene A. Burdick.⁴⁷ Also, the tragic losses of beginning young lawyers, such as Kirk Eckelberry⁴⁸ and Tim McCann,⁴⁹ have not been memorialized. In future years, their children, now too young to remember their fathers, will not be able to take solace in the kind words of their fathers' peers. The passing of the small-town lawyer,⁵⁰ like the towns themselves, now goes unnoticed. Without the remembrances the books written, nom de plumes used, state and national offices held, struggles of daily practice, and services rendered by legions of attorneys may not be recorded.

II. METHODOLOGY

If both birth and death dates were listed in the Law Review, I used those dates, and unless there was an obvious error, I didn't check further. If one or both dates were missing, I continued by checking the social security death index⁵¹ and the North Dakota deaths database prepared by the North Dakota Division of Vital Records.⁵² If I had a death date, or even an approximate death date, the obituary printed in the local newspaper where the attorney had lived was a valuable resource. I checked many of these to find birth dates or to verify death dates. The microfilm files, housed at the Heritage Center Library, for most North Dakota newspapers aided this search.⁵³

Other sources that I searched included the databases maintained by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints,⁵⁴ the Minnesota Historical Society death certificate database,⁵⁵ and the California Death Indexes.⁵⁶ Information for a few names also came from Hennessy's History of North Dakota, Lounsberry's North Dakota History and People, Crawford's History of North Dakota, the Compendium of History and Biography of North Dakota, A History of Richland County,⁵⁷ The Wonder of Williams,⁵⁸ the *Historical Data Project: Pioneer Biography Files*⁵⁹ and various editions of the North Dakota Blue Book.

Dates occasionally varied between sources; death dates were the most variable and usually changed by one or two days. When this occurred, I used the date that was used in the most sources or whichever seemed most reliable.

The first table below contains a complete listing of the remembrances, dedications, and bar president features. Tables showing the listings for

The name of the North Dakota Law Review has changed over time; therefore, the volume number column indicates both the volume number and the name of the Law Review at that time. A volume number from 1-24 indicates that the cite is from the Bar Briefs. A volume number from 25-26 indicates that the cite is from the North Dakota Bar Briefs. A volume number from 27-75 indicates that the cite is from the North Dakota Law Review. And, a volume number listed as a year from 1899-1924 indicates that the cite is from the Proceedings of the North Dakota Bar Association for that year.
