Non Traditional No More A Program Overview

- Non Traditional No More (NTNM) is a Western Interstate Commission on Higher Education (WICHE) project funded by the Lumina Foundation in partnership with five states, including North Dakota, designed to identify individuals with existing college credit but no degree and bring those "stop-outs" back to campuses to complete their degrees
 - Arkansas, Colorado, Nevada, New Jersey and South Dakota have been part of the project for one year. North Dakota was recently selected as a sixth state.
 - The project is being conducted with two main strategies: 1) Identifying Ready Adults and 2) Building a Path to College Success
 1. Mine state data systems in an effort to identify their "ready adults" who have completed some college credit but have not completed a degree
 2. To develop comprehensive strategies and identify current gaps in academic affairs, data systems, financial aid, student support services and communications as necessary to make reaching out to the "ready adult" population possible.
- The first NTNM meeting in North Dakota, held in October, 2010, was hosted by Valley City State University and led by WICHE staff members.
 - Fifty-eight representatives from NDUS institutions attended and these representatives were divided into five groups: Student Services (Dr. Alice Hoffert), Financial Aid (Robin Holden), Academic Affairs (Dr. Philip Parnell), Data and Communications.
 - Each group was charged with identifying barriers that could hinder ready adults' return to and success in the college/university classroom
 - More than 30 potential barriers were identified in the five groups
 - Examples:
 - lack of a common prior learning assessment strategy
 - campus resource allocation
 - multiple points of data collection
 - access to financial aid and scholarships
 - Follow-on efforts will target solutions for these barriers.
 - Each group is continuing discussion via email and will meet again at a future date.

For more information about the Non Traditional No More project, please contact Dr. Munski (7-4591) or Dr. Parnell (7-2291).

Credit by Exam

Due to discussion at the NDUS level, including the Academic Affairs Council, regarding credit for prior learning, it was suggested that UND be explicit rather than implicit in how credit is awarded for prior learning. The committee discussed the concept and suggested wording to be added to page 33 of the 2009-2011, Undergraduate and Graduate Academic Catalog, section heading, Special Examinations for Credit, paragraph three.

Current wording is as follows:

Students may apply to take challenge or validating examinations to establish credit in University of North Dakota courses that correspond to work taken at institutions that are not regionally accredited, or for courses in which they have superior preparation or knowledge gained through independent study.

Proposed wording (underlined> is as follows:

Students may apply to take challenge or validating examinations to establish credit in University of North Dakota courses that correspond to work taken at institutions that are not regionally accredited, or for courses in which they have superior preparation or knowledge gained through prior learning or independent study.
