Native American Alumni Reunion this April features presentation of two Sioux Awards

By HEATHER STEFFL

Two outstanding educators will receive the Sioux Award, the UND Alumni Association's top honor, at the Native American Recognition Luncheon during Native American Week, April 3-9.

Sioux Award honorees are Karen Gayton Swisher, '81, and Marlene Burr Ward, '84.

The awards presentation is scheduled for Wed., April 5, at noon in the UND Memorial Union Ballroom. For ticket information, turn to the Native American Week ad on page 10.

Karen Gayton Swisher

With a career that spans two decades and encompasses elementary and college levels, Karen Swisher has devoted her life to education.

Currently director of the Center for Indian Education and assistant professor of curriculum and instruction at Arizona State University, she is interested in learning styles and the public policy implications of those styles.

Born in Selfridge, N.D., Karen taught elementary school in Bloomington, Minn., Aberdeen, S.D. and Fort Yates, N.D., before earning a master's degree in elementary school administration in 1974. She then held several administrative posts, including liaison coordinator for the South Dakota public school alternative program and Huron College Outreach program.

She completed her doctorate in education at UND in 1981 and has held positions at the University of Utah and Arizona State University.

Karen is active in the American Educational Research Association's committee on role and status of minorities in educational research and development and has chaired the organizations' special interest group on American Indian/Alaskan Native education.

She and her husband, Clark, have a son and a daughter. They live in Mesa, Ariz.

Marlene Burr Ward

Marlene Burr Ward started her career in education in 1968 and has worked with all ages. Her activities have ranged from head-start programs to dropout prevention programs.

Marlene is director of curriculum and instruction in the Loveland (Ohio) City School District, and is a consultant for the Minneapolis Public Schools.

She recently wrote a children's book, The Mouse Society. Due out this spring, the book is a compilation of Indian legends passed down from her grandfather.

The Elbowoods, N.D. native received her doctorate of education administration from UND in 1984.

She and her husband, Michael, live in Cincinnati.

ALUMNI REVIEW

A Century of Alumni Tradition and Pride

Winter wonderland's wages: blizzards, blasts

The Winter of '88-'89 — for years students will tell stories about the string of weekend blizzards that dropped more than three feet of snow, and the bone-chilling front out of Alaska that brought a streak of -20 to -40 degree days and a raw wind that swept the campus. Classes were closed Feb. 1 because of the dangerous cold. Here a student braves the cold near Old Science.

We want you to share your memories during our 100th anniversary

Happy Birthday... to us!

That's right 1989 is the birthday of the Alumni Association. And it's not just any birthday — 1989 marks the UND Alumni Association Centennial.

That's a proud benchmark, and we're going to celebrate!! Throughout 1989 the Alumni Review will run stories, anecdotes, photos and trivia quizzes focusing on the Alumni Association Centennial.

But to do it right, we need your help.

We need your stories and photographs. Do you have a favorite story about your days at the University of North Dakota? Why not share it? Your memories are invaluable; we hope you'll share them with the rest of the UND family.

How about photographs? We're looking for photos we can print in the Alumni Review this year, but also photos we can keep and add to our historical collection. Photographs are valuable pieces of history we can use to document life at UND for generations to come. We would appreciate any snapshots reflecting the campus and campus life that you can send us.

$1 million Ray Duggan Endowment announced

By GAIL MEYER

A tribute to one man's father, one of the first doctors in North Dakota, has led to the establishment of a named student scholarship and loan endowment in excess of $1 million dollars within the University of North Dakota Foundation.

The Ray Duggan Scholarship Endowment, established through a charitable remainder unitrust agreement, was recently received by the UND Foundation.

The late Ray Duggan, Great Falls, Mont., was a former UND student. In 1968, he made arrangements for the UND Foundation to be the remainder beneficiary of a life income trust he established for his wife, Lillian.

Raymond Fergus Duggan was born Feb. 20, 1890, the seventh of 12 children, to Dr. Frederick and Mary Ann O'Reilly Duggan, Grand Forks. His parents, of Irish descent, migrated from Lindsay, Ontario, Canada to Grand Forks, Dakota Territory in 1880.

Frederick Duggan studied medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario and began practicing medicine in Lindsay, Ontario in 1879. He received his license to practice in the Dakota Territory on Aug. 1, 1885 (certificate #102), five years after moving to Grand Forks.

He practiced medicine in Grand Forks until his death on January 18, 1921. Dr. Duggan's medical instruments are on display at the Myra Museum, Grand Forks. His wife, Mary Ann, lived in Grand Forks with her children until her death, Dec. 9, 1928.

Ray Duggan attended St. Bernard's Academy and Central High School, Grand Forks. After graduating from high school, he enrolled in UND for the 1910-1911 academic year and began pursuing a law degree. But because of a snowball-related eye injury he received as a boy, Ray was encouraged to seek another career, one in which less reading

Income from the Ray Duggan Scholarship Endowment will be used to provide loans and scholarships to pre-medical students, medical students and medical internists at the UND School of Medicine.

Join us world-wide for Alumni Centennial fun!

By EARL STRINDEN
Executive Vice President
Alumni Association

Let's have fun during our 100th birthday year!

We are hoping a record number of alumni will participate in our activities during 1989. The plans are to make our events—Alumni Days, Homecoming, and the "around the nation" reunions—something special to remember.

Also, we want your help as we

Report from campus

develop interesting, informative and humorous articles for upcoming issues of the Alumni Review. During this birthday year, we want the members of our alumni family to nominate their favorite professor. We also want interesting and humorous anecdotes from your student days at UND (the state of limitations will cover, so it is safe to tell all!).

What family has the longest relationship with UND and the most family members who attended or graduated?

We want to know! Who do you think is the most outstanding Fighting Sioux athlete—or for the older grads, Flickertail athlete—covering this span of 100 years?

We have a great tradition of alumni achievement and service. We welcome your nominations for the outstanding alumnus or alumnae since the first graduating class in 1889. How about unique experiences? Members of our alumni family have been at both poles, have served with distinction in our military, have reached the pinnacle of corporations and professions, have been involved in community service, and have, in so many ways, made their lives count for the benefits of others.

We want to know about what you have been doing or about an uncle, cousin, pioneer grandfather or mother who were early members of the UND Alumni Association. Please don't be bashful! We are serious in wanting to hear from you. Please write to me at The UND Alumni Association, P.O. Box 8157, Grand Forks, ND 58202.

A Gift Which Lives Forever

Of all the programs which are promoted and administered within the UND Foundation, my favorite is the Named Endowment.

This also happens to be one of our most successful and fastest growing programs. We now have almost 400 special named accounts administered by the UND Foundation. These support student scholarships, faculty awards, lectureships, research, the library, and priority needs as identified annually for many of the Colleges and Departments. Each time an allocation is made from a Named Endowment, it is honoring and/or remembering the donor or a loved one and this will continue on in perpetuity.

I truly believe we all have a desire to "leave the wood pile a little higher" than what it was when we came into this world. A Named Endowment arrangement with the UND Foundation is another way of doing this. An individual can most always provide for family and still in their estate or personal financial planning establish a Named Endowment. This type of an arrangement is within everyone's reach and virtually everyone's situation.

We came from loving homes and benefited from the sacrifices of caring parents. We worked hard to build careers, took care of our families, involved ourselves in community service. And when we are gone, others should know that we, too, contributed to the ongoing building of a community and our great nation. As Shakespeare wrote: "All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players; They have their exits and their entrances. . . ." A Named Endowment is a very significant way to make sure we and our loved ones are never forgotten.

Please read the additional information about the Named Endowment program in this issue of the Alumni Review and contact us to discuss this program or our life income arrangements.

Please Attend—You Won't Regret It

This issue of the Alumni Review carries a listing of on- and off-campus events for 1989. Please don't miss this opportunity to be with some of the friendliest and most wonderful people one will ever meet anywhere—members of our UND family.

We are looking forward to seeing you!

LOST ALUMNI

Can you help us find them?

We are trying to get our address records in the best shape possible. We've lost contact with the people listed below. Some have not been heard from since graduation, some have moved and not sent us a forwarding address, some have married and changed their names, some might have died. We need your help. If you know where any of these people are, or if they are deceased, drop a note with address or date of death to Alumni Records Supervisor, UND Alumni Association, P.O. Box 8157, Grand Forks, ND 58202.

UND IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY INSTITUTION

Music Prof. Robert Van Voorhis, 58: Legacy of acclaim, accomplishment

Long time UND music professor and nationally acclaimed choral director Robert B. Van Voorhis died Thursday, Jan. 12, at United Hospital in Grand Forks from complications following heart surgery. He was 58.

Phil Hisey, assistant chairman of the music department, said, "He was a very popular instructor and was well loved by all the students."

Hisey, a colleague of Van Voorhis for the past 24 years, said he was a vital part of the UND music department. "He loved music, his family, the University and the students. He was always enthusiastic and the students responded in kind."

Van Voorhis came to UND in 1960 as a music instructor. He was promoted to assistant professor in 1964 and by 1976 moved up to full professorship.

Robert Van Voorhis' musical roots go back to high school days in Chadron, Neb., recalled Richard Zieska, a student who took two classes from him.

"He told us stories in class about being in high school starting out in a jazz ensemble," Zieska said. "He told how they didn't get any respect because jazz was considered 'Black music.'"

Van Voorhis received his bachelors degree in music from the University of Nebraska in 1952. From 1952 to 1954 he served in the Army and played in the 317th Army Band, Camp Crowder, Mo. He returned to the University of Nebraska in 1954 and received a masters degree in music education.

Karla Hensrud, who works in the music department at UND, said Van Voorhis was "a very energetic man and fun to talk to."

"He made students feel they had a fighting chance," she said. "He made you feel like you were part of the crowd."

Van Voorhis was director of the jazz choirs, instructor of advanced conducting and instructor of music appreciation. He was the director of the UND Choral Union for 18 years, director of the Varsity Winds Concert Band for eight, and associate director of bands for 18.

In 1987 he directed the UND Jazz Choir to first place in the first Music Fest USA in Chicago.

In 1966, Van Voorhis' booklet of four sacred music selections was published.

Hisey said Van Voorhis—"Mr. V." to his friends and students—was always encouraging people to try harder. "He was a vital part of the department," he said. "An incredible professor who made tremendous contributions to the University."

Earl Strinden, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association and the UND Foundation said, "Robert Van Voorhis, in his dedicated service to UND, touched so many lives in a beneficial way. He will be greatly missed by his many colleagues and friends."

A memorial fund has been established within the UND Foundation in memory of Van Voorhis. Gifts to this fund can be sent to the Robert Van Voorhis Memorial Fund, c/o the UND Foundation, Box 8157, Grand Forks, N.D. 58202.

Alumnus, colleagues are proof of quality of N.D. chemistry programs' training level

By VIRGIL MOBERG

Dr. Francis Randall made his mark in the world as an industrial chemist. But the Racine, Wis. resident hasn't forgotten how he got there.

Randall grew up in a fourth generation Dickinson, N.D. family and came to the University of North Dakota after high school in 1963. He studied under Dr. A. W. Johnson and followed the chemistry department's renowned professor to the University of Saskatchewan. Randall continued to work on the research problem he'd started at UND and returned to North Dakota with Johnson two years and a master's degree later.

Randall left UND with a Ph.D. in 1970 to take a position at the Johnson Wax research facility in Racine. To his surprise, when he arrived he was introduced to several other chemists who attended UND and North Dakota State University.

"We've always had pretty good ties with the University," Randall said. Between the two Red River Valley universities, there are approximately 10 alumni at Johnson Wax. "Over the years there have been many opportunities for interaction between the company and this state."

Randall endorsed UND's chemistry education as a good program for training people that are going into industrial chemistry. "UND can compete with graduates from so-called big name schools," he said.

Francis Randall, '70

Mild-mannered Randall is a senior research associate in the physical chemistry section. He now specializes in basic studies but has worked in several research groups over the course of 19 years with Johnson Wax.

Product development is naturally a big concern at Johnson Wax. "I've worked mainly in coatings and detergents," said the chemist who almost majored in music and French horn and enjoys attending the Chicago and Milwaukee symphonies.

The experienced chemist also enjoys working with student interns: "They have an enthusiasm that people lose. It's always interesting to talk to people about how chemistry is actually used."

Randall tries to give back something to his field by working for the local sections of the American Chemistry Society and the Society for Applied Spectroscopy. "There is concern in the ACS about attracting students into science in general and chemistry in particular. There are not the numbers of the quality of students they'd like," he said.

In terms of American chemistry being able to compete internationally, Randall concurred that chemistry is holding its own but needs talented young people. Students have many more options in science now. "Computer science draws many," he said.

Randall says he hopes to work in industrial chemistry for another 20 years. But, reflecting on his childhood home, Randall said he sometimes thinks it would be interesting to go back to a place like Dickinson to teach.

'89-91 budget is in spotlight

By DAVE VORLAND

As this issue of the Alumni Review was going to press, the University of North Dakota was analyzing the impact of Gov. George Sinner's 1989-1991 budget recommendations to the Legislature.

One thing seemed obvious: The governor had taken to heart the arguments of higher and primary/secondary education proponents.

Sinner's executive budget will require legislators (and the citizens in the event of a referendum) to vote either for curtailed spending for all levels of education, or for targeted increases and new revenue to pay for them.

If enacted, say UND officials, the executive budget would deal with higher education's most critical problems, and lay a foundation for addressing other needs when the state's economy shows further improvement.

But, these same observers say, if Sinner's budget is approved only in part, the result could be disaster.

Essentially, the governor has presented two budgets.

The first "base" budget would fund higher education at 95 percent of its 1987-89 appropriation. A second "enhancement budget," to be voted on separately and requiring tax increases and a large boost in tuition, would restore some of the cuts and would focus new dollars in selected areas.

The governor's self-titled "Excellence in education and economic development" package has a price tag of $80 million. Some $40 million would go to elementary and secondary education, $35 million to higher education, and $5 million to economic development.

How the scenario would work is best illustrated in the governor's proposed pay increase package for faculty and staff.

The governor's base budget would provide a 5 percent increase for faculty and staff for the first year of the new biennium, and a 4 percent increase for staff, but not faculty, in the second year.

The separate enhancement budget would provide an additional 4.3 percent for faculty in the first year of the biennium, bringing the total for 1989-90 to 9.3 percent. It would also grant 9.3 percent for faculty in the second year.

Thus, Sinner's budget invites higher education to continue the argument that paying competitive salaries to keep faculty in place is an investment North Dakotans can be convinced to support, even in difficult economic times. Primary and secondary education advocates will need to make similar arguments to assure the approval of their portion of the enhancement budget.

Where would the money come from? In part from the pockets of students. At UND, the enhancement package calls for a $250-per-year increase in tuition, up 20 percent.

The rest of the money would come from Sinner's tax and revenue restructuring package, which, besides covering the "excellence" budget, is intended to correct the overall funding shortfall that has plagued the state during the present biennium.

Generating the most discussion are a proposed half-cent increase in the sales tax (up to 6 percent from 5.5 percent) and a revision of the income tax table to generate one-third more revenue by setting rates at 3 to 8 percent of taxable income (North Dakota income taxes now are calculated as a percent of federal tax liability).

The next stop for UND is the Senate appropriations committee, which is initiating action on the higher education bill. The Senate's revisions to Sinner's budget will reach the State House of Representatives in late February.

Meet your 1988-89 class chairs

The Alumni Association of the University of North Dakota has a proud tradition of alumni service and achievement. Since its organization by the first UND graduating class on June 13, 1889, the alumni have been reaching back in appreciation to continue the ongoing building of a fine university.

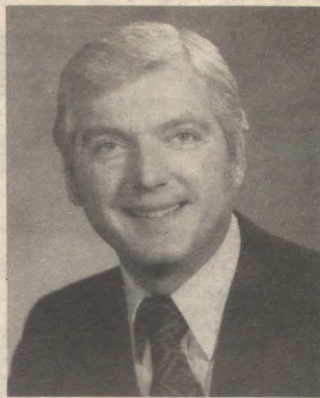

I am proud and pleased to introduce the class representatives for the 1988-89 UND Foundation Annual Sustaining Drive. These special members of our alumni family have agreed to continue this "unbroken chain of loyalty" by encouraging every member of our Association to support the University of North Dakota.

We are all needed in order for quality educational opportunities to be available for the students of today and for the future. Please join with other loyal and dedicated members of our UND alumni family in making our century birthday year unprecedented in alumni loyalty and appreciation for an alma mater.

Sincerely,

Franklin J. Bavendick, '52
Alumni Association President

1920 and Before

Helen Fowler Urness was a teacher in North Dakota until 1918, when she moved to California to raise her family. The Michigan, N.D. native graduated from UND with a teaching certificate in 1916. She now lives in San Rafael, Calif. She has enjoyed traveling to Europe, and gardening, especially flowers.

1921-1924

Clara Nygaard Johnson was certified by the Library of Congress as a literary and music Braille transcriber. She also has Brailled music for the North Dakota School for the Blind in Grand Forks. A Grand Forks native, Clara graduated from UND with a bachelor's degree in 1923. She was a member of Delta Zeta, Sigma Alpha Iota (eventually becoming National Historian, 1959-62, and a province vice president, 1962-65), Pi Lambda Theta, Dacotah Playmakers, Glee Club and the UND Choir. She enjoys traveling, especially to Norway and Europe. Clara lives in Grand Forks. She has two children and five grandchildren.

1925

Marie Elvick Murray graduated from UND with a bachelor's degree in music education and was a principal at Webster, N.D. for one year. She taught music at Lisbon, N.D. and was music supervisor for eight schools in Mattoon, Ill. until 1930. A Nelson County, N.D. native, she has enjoyed teaching and playing the piano. Marie has four daughters and lives in Burlington, Iowa.

1926

B. Elwood Fahl retired as professor of chemistry from St. Marys College of Maryland in 1969. The Devils Lake, N.D. native graduated from UND with a master's degree in chemistry and education. He and his wife, Alice Vary Fahl, also a 1926 UND graduate, have traveled throughout the western world. They live in Albuquerque, N.M. They have two sons, one daughter and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

1927

Darrol E. Davis is retired from the Richmond (Calif.) Unified School District. The Montpelier, N.D. native graduated from UND with a bachelor's degree in liberal arts. Darrol started his teaching career in Kensal, N.D., where he taught one year. He also taught at Harlem, Mont., Clarkdale, Ariz., and 11 and a half years at the Preston School for Boys in Ione, Calif. He and his wife, Frances Ruth Sibole Davis, live in Richmond. They have two sons, nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

1928

Emily Squires Wabeke, a Grand Forks native, is retired with her husband, Bert, and living in Alexandria, Va. Her father, Vernon P. Squires, was the dean of the College of Liberal Arts from 1914 to 1930. Emily received her bachelor's degree from UND and her master's degree from Brown University. She taught English for ten years before raising her family. She traveled extensively with her husband, a Foreign Service Officer, making homes in Holland, Germany and Turkey. Her daughter, son-in-law and three grandsons live in Mt. Vernon, Ohio. Though her health is now frail, Emily enjoys reading, her correspondence, and membership in a German study group.

Alumni Days celebration has Centennial flavor

Classes of '29, '34, '39 featured

Greet old friends, make new friends, visit familiar places and relive the good times at Alumni Days '89, May 24-26.

1989 is the year to return to the University! We will be celebrating two Centennial Birthdays this year—the state of North Dakota and the University of North Dakota Alumni Association. Yes, it has been 100 years since those first eight graduates signed their names to "the Roll of Honors."

These two centennials will enhance the atmosphere as our featured classes—1929, 1934, and 1939—get together to celebrate their 60, 55, and 50-year class reunions.

The three-day reunion calls for many exciting events including tours, receptions, luncheons and banquets.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. on Wednesday. The registration desk will be at Swanson Hall which will serve as reunion headquarters. This attractive building is adjacent to the Memorial Union where most Alumni Days meals will be served.

Activities get underway on Wednesday with an open house at the J. Lloyd Stone Alumni Center (the old President's Home). The "Get Reacquainted Dinner" will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Memorial Union Ballroom. Immediately following the dinner, there will be a Cabaret Mixer in the Swanson Concourse. This will be your chance to visit with friends and reminisce and remember the '30s while listening to music, eating popcorn and watching films about UND during the 1930's.

Thursday's events include a tour of the campus with a special performance and class pictures at the Chester Fritz Auditorium, a luncheon cruise on the Dakota Queen Riverboat and visiting with President and Mrs. Clifford at their home on Yale Drive. The highlight of the day will be our annual Sioux Awards Banquet at the Westward Ho. The banquet will be extra special since it will also serve as our Centennial Birthday Party.

The third day of the reunion, Friday, will be more relaxed. Activities scheduled are a memorial service for our departed classmates, tour of the Center for Aerospace Sciences, and a Farewell Luncheon.

The School of Law, School of Medicine, School of Communication (Speech/Journalism), School of Engineering and Mines, and the Accounting Department will also host special reunion recognition breakfasts for the featured years.

The Law School classes of 1948 and 1949, and the 1934 Mechanical Engineers and Diakoff scholars will have special gatherings Friday evening.

Mark your calendar now for May 24-26 and join us at UND for Alumni Days '89 as we celebrate 100 years of alumni tradition and pride.

Call your friends and classmates and encourage them to join you at the University campus. This is your opportunity to relive the past UND, view the present UND, and dream about the future UND. See you on campus, May 24-26.

For more information regarding Alumni Days '89, contact the Alumni Office at 701-777-2611 (in state) or 1-800-543-8764 (out of state).

Duggan endowment

was required.

After leaving UND, Ray worked as a plumber's apprentice and steam fitter. He left Grand Forks in 1914 for Great Falls, Mont. and began a plumbing contractor business. It was in Great Falls he met and married Lillian Van Vick.

Lillian Van Vick Duggan, born in Jamestown, N.D. in 1899, moved to Chinook, Mont. in 1920 to live with friends. Shortly after her arrival, she took a secretarial job in Great Falls where she took up residence. It was at this point she and Ray were introduced by friends. The couple were married in Great Falls Feb. 14, 1927.

Together they established Duggan Plumbing and Heating. After many years in the contracting profession, Ray and Lillian founded Montana Wholesale Supply, a wholesale plumbing and equipment company.

The firm grew in size and Ray gained a reputation as one of Great Falls's business leaders. He expanded into banking and farming. A private man by nature, Ray was looked upon as a community leader and humanitarian.

Ray's interest in helping others began soon after his arrival in Great Falls. He would often make personal loans to friends so they could buy homes. For 20 years he was associated with Mountain States Building and Loan Association, as vice president and director, and was for 16 years the director of Montana Bank and Trust Company, now a First Interstate Bank.

The farmer in Ray came out when he and Lillian bought a spread near Fairfield, Mont. where he worked the land and harvested hay.

After the couple retired, they sold their plumbing business and Fairfield farm and purchased a smaller farm, "The Duggan One Horse Ranch," near Great Falls.

Ray, a fourth-degree member of the Knights of Columbus, died May 24, 1968. He was 78. Lillian continued to live in Great Falls, spending her retired years traveling, collecting antiques and enjoying her horses on the "One-Horse Ranch." She died August 16, 1988, at the age of 89.

Income from the Ray Duggan Scholarship Endowment will be used to provide loans and scholarships to pre-medical students, medical students and medical internists at the UND School of Medicine. These funds may be used to cover the cost of books, tuition or other educational expenses, including room and board.

Dr. Edwin James, dean of the School of Medicine, said the Ray Duggan Scholarship Endowment will have a tremendous impact on the medical school and its students for years to come: "This is one of the nicest things that has happened to the UND medical school. The cost of tuition has more than doubled and the projected tuition for one year is $8,000. This endowment will make it possible for financially strapped students to receive a medical education."

According to James, an estimated 30-35 students will benefit from the endowment each year with many more students able to receive an undergraduate pre-med degree, thanks to this funding.

Earl Strinden, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association and the UND Foundation said, "This is another example of an individual reaching back in appreciation and expressing a strong faith in the future. Ray Duggan never forgot his roots in North Dakota and what it meant to have loving and caring parents. This endowment will, in perpetuity, honor and remember Ray and Lillian Duggan and Ray's pioneer father and mother."

"Ray Duggan's thoughtfulness and generosity will have a significant beneficial impact on the university for years. By helping outstanding students to become medical doctors, he will be benefiting countless others beyond this campus. There is no way of estimating the future good which will come from this contribution."

Holiday visitor

One of the many friends and alumni who stopped by the Alumni Office for a visit this past holiday season was Hazel McMaster, '14, Grand Forks. Hazel is one of the first in a long line of loyal UND supporters.

His field's a natural for blind computer programmer at UND

Vision, not sight, is the key

By HEATHER STEFFL

Blindness may be considered a handicap but Elmer Morlock, '61, a computer programmer at the University of North Dakota, doesn't let it dampen his zest for life. This is a man, who at 35, took up judo for a hobby.

Wearing earphones so the mechanical voice of his computer reader won't distract others, Elmer is often bent over a personal computer in his office in Upton II, evaluating computer programs.

A wall hanging over his desk contains a saying that could be called his philosophy of life: "Not he who lacks sight, but he who lacks vision is blind."

On the opposite wall of his office, color screams from three posters: a peacock, Garfield the cat, and Garfield's sidekick, Odie. The posters were created by his artistic 13-year-old niece.

Elmer has worked in the computer center at UND for more than 20 years and his interest in computers isn't waning. This is understandable, considering what the computer has done for him and other handicapped people.

"Computers are a godsend to the handicapped," he said. "Computers allow the handicapped to have equal access to information. Before, you had to have someone read it to you and there was a time lag. Now there is faster access."

A user services consultant at the UND Computer Center, Elmer describes his job as an administration support position. "If they have problems with programs, I help find them," he said. He also helps with computer purchasing by matching the client's computer needs with the appropriate software and hardware.

Aside from administration support, Elmer's work also affects students. He has, for example, written lab sheets for the computer learning lab. Disabled students have also benefited from programs he has adapted which make it easier for them to understand their computer readers, machines which convert letters into phonetic sounds. He also evaluates programs for use by disabled students.

Clearly, Elmer is in a position where people often seek his advice and assistance. That he has reached such a position is testimony to his independence, determination and intelligence.

Elmer was born in Carrington, N.D. in 1937. Both he and his twin brother have a rare hereditary condition that results in retina detachment. Because of this, he had partial vision in only one eye until the age of nine, when he became totally blind. Compounding this handicap was a severe cleft palate which made it difficult for him to communicate with anyone but his twin, Albert.

At the North Dakota School for the Blind, then in Bathgate, N.D., Elmer learned to read Braille and worked to improve his speaking ability. He graduated in 1957.

Then he attended UND, graduating in 1961 with a bachelor's of philosophy in social work with a minor in secondary education.

Studying was very time consuming. Although he took notes in Braille, textbooks in Braille were hard to come by. "Sometimes the class would end before the material ever came."

In order to "read" textbooks, Elmer relied on tape recorders: "We (he and Albert) used the 'portable ones'—they must have weighed 30 pounds," he chuckled. "As freshmen we had readers, and arranging a time to get together was always difficult. It got much easier when we could send a recorder home with them."

Elmer thrives on new opportunities. His lively curiosity and an accident of timing led to his computer career.

He had planned to pursue a graduate degree in social work, but arrived in Minneapolis too late to register for classes. The computer industry was just starting to blossom when he heard about a computer school in Pittsburgh designed especially for the blind.

He graduated from the six month program at The Computer Systems Institute in 1965, and worked for the state of Minnesota before landing a programming job at UND in 1968.

He and Satin, his seeing-eye-dog, were no sooner installed in the computer center when he was put in charge of computerizing the ordering and purchasing at the Chester Fritz Library.

Satin and Elmer were a regular sight on campus and about town. Elmer was used to getting around with a cane, but Satin became his ears as well as his eyes. "I 'bumped' into a car one time—didn't hear it coming, and that's when I got Satin."

Elmer lost Satin to old age in 1972. He hasn't replaced her, he said, because his hearing aid and cane are adequate substitutes.

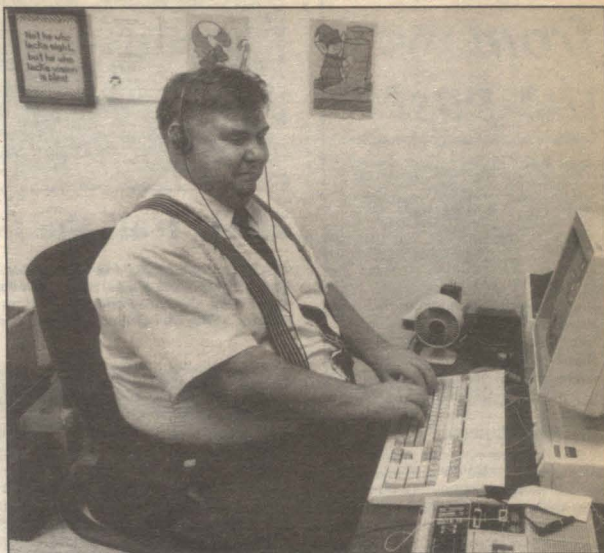

As independent as ever, he takes the city bus, exercises at the YMCA and keeps up his own apartment. "I used to own a home but it took too much time," he said. Joking about his cooking abilities, he said, "If the smoke alarm goes off I call it (the entree) 'rare.'"

Since coming to Grand Forks, Elmer has been very active in the community, and his activities have touched many. For example, he has been involved in the Big Brother program since 1969, first as a big brother, then as director. In the early 1970s he was involved in Toastmasters, and was voted Outstanding Handicapped Citizen of North Dakota in 1975.

Many of his other activities directly benefit disabled people. For example, as a member, treasurer, and president of the North Dakota Association of the Blind, he has prepared and conducted motivational classes for the NDAB summer camp.

His most recent project involves a computer user group called VIACT (Visually Impaired Adult Computer Technical Group). He and Betty Bender, of the North Dakota School for the Blind, saw a need for a group which involves both visually impaired and dyslectic individuals. Elmer is the group's technical advisor.

According to Elmer, disabled individuals often lack basic knowledge about adaptive equipment for computers. "I try to teach them the right questions to ask salespeople so they can get equipment that meets their needs and their employer's needs. Employers don't always know."

Blind since the age of nine, UND computer programmer Elmer Morlock, '61, works at his specially adapted computer.

The group currently has 10 members and he hopes to expand it to include handicapped high school students and their parents.

What does a man with so many interests plan to do in the future? Elmer said he may take up other things eventually, but felt that computer technology changes rapidly enough to offer something new and interesting. "I will be in the computer field for years to come."

Alumnus' book on Glacier Park is available by mail

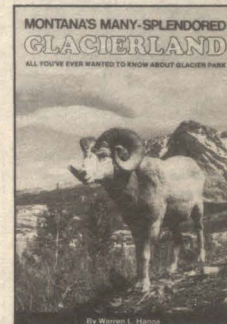

In a recent Glacier Park Foundation publication, Glacier National Park paid tribute to the late Warren L. Hanna, '17. Hanna served as the first president of the University of North Dakota Foundation and wrote several books, his most notable being Montana's Many-Splendored Glacierland.

David C. Andrews wrote, "In the course of his 89 years, Warren L. Hanna surely heeded the wisdom in that phrase ('Life is too short to waste') for he achieved in his allotted days on this earth at least twice what the ordinary man does."

Enchanted by the beauty of Glacier National Park, Hanna began a life-long love affair with the park, returning every summer to visit. Another UND alumnus taken by Glacier's beauty was Mel Ruder, '37, '42, providing many of the breathtaking photographs for Hanna's book.

Before his death, Hanna assigned all rights for Montana's Many-Splendored Glacierland to the UND Foundation. The 215 page book is in its second printing and available by mail to any of our alumni family interested in finding out about Glacier National Park. Please use the coupon on the bottom of this page to order your copy of Montana's Many-Splendored Glacierland.

Profiles from the past

Carl Ben Eielson, '21

Carl Ben Eielson, famed aviator and explorer, piloted the first airplane to cross the Arctic Ocean. The historic flight was made in April 1928 with Australian explorer Herbert Wilkins, organizer of the expedition.

The pair flew 2,200 miles from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitsbergen, an island in the Arctic Ocean. In December 1928, Eielson and Wilkins made the first air explorations of Antarctica and charted several unknown islands near the Antarctic Peninsula.

Born in Hatton, N.D., in 1897, Eielson attended UND from 1914 to 1917. He left UND and became a pilot in the U.S. Army Air Service in 1918. In 1920 he returned to UND and received a bachelor of arts degree in 1921. He went to Fairbanks, Alaska, in 1922 to serve as a high school principal. While in Fairbanks, he founded a commercial air service and set up the first airmail route to serve Alaska in 1924.

Eielson died Nov. 9, 1929, while attempting to rescue passengers and cargo from an ice-bound vessel off the coast of Siberia. He was 32.

Edward K. Thompson, '27

A native of St. Thomas, N.D., Edward K. Thompson became one of the University of North Dakota's most illustrious journalists and one of the top editors in the nation.

Characterized by his peers and colleagues as having a "silver tongue with a never-ending vocabulary," Thompson is the former editor of Life magazine who came out of retirement in 1968 to work for the U.S. Department of State in Washington, D.C. Shortly thereafter, the Smithsonian Institute called him on to establish a new magazine.

In 1973, the Henry medal, the Smithsonian's highest award, was bestowed on Thompson for founding The Smithsonian magazine. His many honors include an honorary Doctor of Humanities from UND, the Legion of Merit and the Order of the British Empire, and the North Dakota Theodore Roosevelt Rough Rider Award. He was named the National Press Photographers Editor of the Year in 1967, and was inducted into the Publishing Hall of Fame in 1987. The UND Alumni Association presented Thompson with the Sioux Award in 1987.

Thompson and his wife, Lee, reside in Mahopac, N.Y.

Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here (but we're not exactly sure which gang, so we're seeking your assistance!)

Does this photograph look familiar to you? If it does, please let us know. All we have to go on is a notation on the back which suggests that the photo was taken in the early 1920s. That seems likely, judging from the older male faces, perhaps veterans of World War I. Also, Clarence Perkins (47th from the right, first row) came to UND in 1920 to head the newly formed department of European history. In the background are Montgomery Hall and Old Science. The Roaring '20s was a difficult period for the University of North Dakota. By the late 1920s, North Dakota was starting to feel the first waves of the Great Depression, which crippled the nation in the 1930s. The hard financial times had their effect on UND, but alumni pride and tradition helped carry the University through the tough times.

One way for a young man to beat the tough times of the 1930s and still get an education was to live in Camp Depression at UND. Some 40 men lived and studied in ten discarded Great Northern Railroad cabooses on campus, working about campus to pay for their rent.

In honor of the 100th anniversary of the Alumni Association in 1989, the Alumni Review is presenting a four-part look at the Alumni Association, from inception to present, and at the alumni who have contributed significantly to our past.

This second article in the series looks at the second quarter century of the University of North Dakota's unique Alumni Association history.

By GAIL MEYER

The first 25 years of the Alumni Association were years of pride and allegiance, but with limited alumni programming and activity. The quest for education, coupled with the organization of the Alumni Association, ensured the growing number of alumni a sense of identity. However, the growing pains experienced during the first 25 years would pale in contrast to the times endured by the alumni of the University of North Dakota's second quarter century.

1917 and World War I saw UND suffering an 11 percent drop in student numbers. Despite declining enrollment, the campus was alive with patriotism. Military training for male students was reinstated with 45 percent of all men on campus enrolling for the eight week program. Then came the call for all men to serve in active duty. In all, 329 undergraduates served in WWI with a total of 43 students and former students losing their lives.

By the fall of 1918, the majority of the students had enlisted in the service, leaving a sparsely populated campus. It was then UND contracted with the federal government to provide vocational and officer training to military personnel. This program was forced to cease before it really got started when on Oct. 9, 1918, UND was quarantined due to a nationwide flu epidemic. In all, more than 3,000 Grand Forks residents were struck with this flu, including 320 of the 470 enrolled in the government project. Of the 320, 29 died, six in one tragic day. The quarantine was lifted about a week before the war came to an end.

Despite the tremendous setback suffered by UND and its alumni, the push was on to re-establish the good times and restore the strong feelings of alumni pride and tradition.

The allegiance and loyalty expressed during the war was still strong on campus, and students and alumni became involved in plans to construct a fitting war memorial.

The Alumni Association expressed a strong desire to fund a project to honor those alumni who died in World War I, and proposed the building of a memorial student union.

However, due to disagreements between the faculty and President Kane, topped by the economic collapse in 1920, plans for the union were put on hold.

Meanwhile, no other UND activity provided a greater source of student and alumni support than athletics. Sports on campus were changing from games of exercise and pleasure for students, to games of entertainment for sports-minded alumni.

Paul Davis, a law graduate from Dickinson, Penn., appeared on campus in 1919 as the new coach for the Flickertails. Despite his record, there was an increasing demand fueled by alumni to hire a "professional" coach. Within a few years Davis left his coaching duties and assumed a new position as athletic director.

Clem Leitch was appointed basketball coach and shortly afterward the newly organized Flickertail Club—formed to raise money for a new stadium—set out to raise $3,000 to hire a football coach.

Subsequent quarrels regarding the appointment of a new coach ended with the hiring of C.A. West, the "wonder coach" of South Dakota State, and his former star, Clyde "Buck" Starbeck.

Under the tutelage of West and Leitch, athletics at UND grew stronger and more popular. A few of the stars under their direction include: Glenn "Red Rabbit" Jarrett, '31, three-sport star named to the New York Herald-Tribune All American Team as halfback; Stuart MacMillan, '31, who the late C.D. Locken, Grand Forks Herald sports writer, referred to as "North Dakota's greatest football center" during his era covering UND sports (1913-the early '60s); Frederick "Fritz" Pollard, '39, football standout and bronze medalist in the high hurdles at the 1936 Summer Olympics in Berlin, Germany; Horace "Hoss" Johnson, '39, all-around athlete who led UND to a third straight NCIAC track championship; Emmet Birk, '37, and Bob Finnegan, '37, basketball standouts leading UND to four straight NCIAC championships.

UND athletic teams were flourishing with national competition and victories, and the alumni numbers were increasing and spreading to other states. The need for more formalized alumni programming was becoming obvious.

With only a part-time secretary and little financial support, the Alumni Association was ill-equipped to handle even basic record keeping for the steadily increasing number of graduates. Individual alumni began suggesting the need for a strong association as well as arguing the merits of the $2.50 association dues levied a graduate.

At their regular June meeting in 1925, the alumni proposed and adopted the following change in the constitution: "Any person who has at any time matriculated in any department of the University may become an associate member of the Alumni Association. Associate members shall not be allowed to vote or hold office in this association."

Although the change was viewed as a compromise, several alumni accused the association of being "exclusive and undemocratic." Strong alumni support of athletics was obvious when the Alumni Association began a drive to raise $500,000 to construct the long awaited alumni war memorial. The project: University Memorial Field, a complex to include a memorial stadium, gymnasium and athletic field.

The intent of the Association was to honor the 43 alumni who died in World War I and President Webster Merrifield, whose drive and determination added so much to UND.

The first step toward reaching this goal was organizing a memorial board. Those serving on the board were: Dr. M.B. Ruud, '07, president of the Alumni Association; Walter Schloesser, '13, former president of the Alumni Association; James W. Wilkerson, business manager of UND; Phillip Bangs, '13, attorney, Grand Forks; Fred Goodman, president of Northwestern Trust Company, Grand Forks; Arthur Netcher, '09, banker and attorney, Fessenden, N.D.; and John Hancock, '03, Jewel Tea Company, New York. Paul Samuelson, '23 was named director of the drive, but was replaced two years later by Jack Stewart, '25.

Announcement of the fund-raising drive appeared in the first issue of the Alumni Magazine, resurrected in June 1925. Great significance was placed on the importance of the alumni publication. "A successful magazine will mean a bigger, better and stronger Alumni Association."

The years following 1925 proved difficult for UND and the entire state as the first waves of the Great Depression started to rock North Dakota. Support from alumni slipped mainly to emotion and by the spring of 1931, a year and a half after the stock market crash devastated Wall Street, finances of the Association were strained. Frank Webb, secretary of the Association, announced the Association was $1,200 in debt. Of 4,000 graduates and 9,000 former students, less than 5 percent, or 800, had contributed to UND. Pledges for the Memorial Stadium dwindled. With the stadium built and debts to be settled, the memorial board felt they had no other recourse but to retain a local law firm to collect unfulfilled pledges. This move caused a good deal of ill will.

Despite hard times, alumni ties continued to surge with the growing number of alumni organizations springing up across the nation. UND Alumni Chapters were formed in New York City, Minot, N.D., Seattle, Bismarck-Mandan, Fargo, Chicago, Los Angeles, Washington D.C., Detroit, Portland, Ore. and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The alumni actively debated over changing UND's symbol from "Flickertail" to the "Sioux." The topic was discussed vigorously at Alumni Association board meetings. Support for the change came from the Alumni Office with secretary Frank Webb saying the name Flickertail "hampered publicity for the University against larger universities." Coach C.A. "Jack" West concurred.

The 1930s also brought harder times for the already economically strapped students. Professors' salaries were cut as UND struggled along with the nation to survive.

The slow process of recovering from the Depression began. Enrollment increased and UND played host to President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1937 and Crown Prince Olaf of Norway in 1939.

The second 25 years produced many distinguished alumni. To name just a few: Fred Aandahl, '21, North Dakota governor and member of Congress; Richard Blackburn Black, '26, Rear Admiral in the U.S. Naval Reserve and member of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition; Jack Stewart, '29, owner of the Camelback Inn, Phoenix, Ariz.; Bill Durbin, '30, orthopedic surgeon; J. Lloyd Stone, '30, former executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association; Thomas Barger, '31, former president of Aramco, Arabian-American Oil Company; Frank Stinchfield, '32, orthopedic surgeon and educator; D.J. Robertson, '33, long time dean at UND; Irv Kupcinet, '35, TV and radio personality and long time columnist for the Chicago Sun Times; John E. Davis, '35, North Dakota governor; Mel Ruder, '37, respected journalist and Pulitzer Prize winner; Elton Ringsak Sr., '37, highly decorated WWII veteran and long-time North Dakota legislator; and Mildred Burns Johnson, '39, one of the first women to practice law in North Dakota and former member of the Board of Higher Education.

It's here! The Alumni Centennial Trivia Quiz!

Okay, Trivia Buffs — here's your chance to test your knowledge.

As a part of the UND Alumni Association Centennial Celebration, the Alumni Review is sponsoring the UND Alumni Centennial Trivia Quiz.

Each issue of the Alumni Review will carry an installment of the quiz. We're hoping you'll look for it and participate. How do you play? Simple:

Print your name, address and the issue (this is the February/March issue) on a sheet of paper and write down the answers to the questions below. Be sure to number your answers. Write "Bonus" next to any question answers, and list them under the appropriate question number.

Then send your answers to UND Alumni Centennial Trivia Quiz, P.O. Box 8157, Grand Forks, N.D. 58202. The ten finalists with the most correct answers will be announced in the first issue of 1990.

UND Alumni Centennial Trivia Quiz 1

- 1—The Class of 1889 was UND's first graduating class. How many students picked up diplomas during the first commencement?
- 2—Graduation dates have changed over the last 100 years. What day did the Class of 1889 graduate? (Hint: This is also the birthday of the Alumni Association.)
- 3—What famous UND graduate was once known as the "World's Greatest Wheat Farmer"? (Bonus: What year did he graduate?)
- 4—Many UND graduates have worked for the Jewel Tea Company. Who was the UND graduate who started the company?
- 5—Who was selected as UND's top athlete of the first half century?
- 6—Who was the Hoopler farmer (the former UND football star who became a North Dakota governor) who named his twin daughters after the University? (Bonus question: What did he name the twins?)

7—The Constitution of the Alumni Association, modeled after the U.S. Constitution, was written immediately after the first graduation ceremony and was adopted nearly a year later. Where is this document preserved today?

8—Chester Fritz was one of UND's most loyal benefactors, donating large sums for the construction of the Chester Fritz Library and the Chester Fritz Auditorium. In what North Dakota town was Chester Fritz born?

9—Who was UND's first dean of medicine?

10—What UND graduate was North Dakota's first and only presidential candidate? (Bonus: What two major political positions did he hold during his career?)

Profiles from the past

Ronald N. Davies, '27

A native of Crookston, Minn., Ronald Davies earned an A.B. from UND in 1927 and an L.L.B. from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. in 1930.

Davies started his distinguished legal career in 1930 in Grand Forks, where he served as municipal judge from 1931-40.

In 1955, Davies was named a U.S. District Judge based out of Fargo. Serving in this capacity in 1957, Davies made a historic decision—ordering the integration of the Little Rock, Ark., Central High School. The ruling, considered by many to be a landmark decision in racial integration, met such violent opposition that President Eisenhower had to order federal troops into Little Rock to enforce Judge Davies' decision—a decision which was later upheld by the U.S. Court of Appeals.

In 1971, Davies was promoted to Senior U.S. District Judge.

A former board member of the UND Alumni Association and 1979 Sioux Award recipient, Davies and his wife, Mildred, live in Fargo.

Paul V. Yoder, '30

Paul V. Yoder is recognized as one of the most productive and talented arrangers and composers of band music in the nation.

Yoder's interest in music began in junior high and developed while he played in the pit orchestra for the local theater's silent movies and vaudeville acts.

Yoder moved to Grand Forks in 1918 and graduated from UND in 1920 with a bachelor of arts degree in music. After teaching junior and senior high music, he went on to write band method books. Songs arranged by Yoder include "Relax," "Shrine of Democracy," "Steppin' Out," and "Firehouse Special." It was while he was a student at UND, Yoder arranged UND's traditional fight songs: "Stand Up and Cheer," "Fight on Sioux," "The Fire You North Dakota U," and "The Cornhill King." In 1958, UND presented him with an honorary doctorate of music, and in 1985, the UND Alumni Association presented him with the Sioux Award.

Retired, Yoder currently resides in Hendersonville, N.C.

Wisconsin's Beautiful Lake Country...

An Exciting Place For A UND Alumni Centennial Reunion!

June 16-18, 1989

Beautiful Door County, Wisconsin, is one of those special places that looks as if it had been painted by an artist! Our second alumni gathering here promises to be an outstanding event. Join us for a weekend of fun and exciting activities as we celebrate the 100th Birthday of the Alumni Association. We have reserved a block of rooms at the Landmark Resort in Egg Harbor. To make reservations, call 414-868-3205 and identify yourself as part of our UND group to receive the special rate.

Please make your reservations by May 16, 1989.

Find out who else is in town by joining us Friday for a "get-reacquainted" cash bar and social from 8 to 10 p.m. You'll have many enjoyable activities to choose from on Saturday, but we think you'll agree that the highlight will be the authentic UND Door County Fish Boil at 6 p.m. ($16/adult, $8/child 10 years and under). The evening will conclude with a special Alumni Association Birthday Celebration. The good times and fellowship continue Sunday at 10:30 a.m. with a breakfast buffet ($10/adult, $5/child 10 years and under).

Further weekend activities are being planned. Stay tuned for more details. We look forward to seeing you there!

This is the setting for a wonderful weekend especially for our alumni and friends. Yes, being a UND Alum has its privileges. Make your reservations now and join us in Door County, June 16-18.

Please send a check for $16/adult and $8/child 10 years and under for the Door County Fish Boil and $10/adult and $5/child 10 years and under for the Sunday Breakfast, made payable to UND Door County Weekend, P.O. Box 8157, Grand Forks, ND 58202.

Providing a Gift Which Will Live Forever

Ruth, '30, and Gunder Legvold

Ruth and Gunder Legvold, Thief River Falls, Minn., have established a Named Endowment within the UND Foundation as their way of saying "thank you" to the University of North Dakota -- "their University."

This special account, to be held in perpetuity, will be funded with the charitable remainder of a life income arrangement plus a testamentary provision in Ruth and Gunder's wills. Only earnings on the endowment will be distributed each year for student scholarship assistance. Generations from now, outstanding young people will continue to benefit from the unselfish loyalty of these distinguished members of our Alumni family.

To discuss how you, too, can provide "A Gift Which Will Live Forever," please return this coupon or call 1-800-543-8764 (outside North Dakota), or 777-2611 (within North Dakota). All contacts will remain confidential and there is no obligation.

Thank you, Ruth and Gunder!

Please return coupon to: UND Foundation/P.O. Box 8157/Grand Forks, ND 58202

Several sports at peak, others at outset

By DOUG SKIPPER

The University of North Dakota hockey team is in its stretch run for an NCAA playoff appearance this month.

The Sioux hope to hit the top of their game by the time the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs begin on Feb. 25-27. First round series will be played at the home arenas of the league's top four teams.

The WCHA Final Four Tournament will be played in St. Paul, Sunday and Monday, March 5-6. NCAA Playoffs begin March 17-18, and the Final Four will be back at the St. Paul Civic Center the weekend of March 24-26.

Two keys to UND's play will be goaltender Chris Dickson and center Brent Bobyck. Dickson, the sophomore from Vancouver, British Columbia, bounced back from an early season slump and Bobyck, the junior from Regina, Saskatchewan, returned from an injury, to help lead UND's charge that began at the end of December.

The Sioux served notice of things to come by upsetting top-ranked Michigan State and then soundly defeated three eastern teams.

Basketball

A tip of the hat goes to Fighting Sioux Basketball Coaches Rich Glas and Gene Roebuck. UND swept a women's-men's doubleheader from North Dakota State in mid-January, defeating nationally-ranked Bison squads in each game.

Senior center Colleen Chaske, Oberon, N.D., and junior guard Durene Heisler, Devils Lake, N.D., have been the big guns for the Sioux. Both enjoyed outstanding outings as UND downed the nation's top-ranked team.

Guard play was the key to the Fighting Sioux men's team's win over NDSU. Junior guard Mike Boschee and freshman guard Matt Wilke combined for 59 points in that one. Boschee, a walk-on from Valley City, N.D. three years ago, has emerged into one of the top backcourt players in the North Central Conference. Wilke, the talented basketball-baseball player from Beaver Dam, Wis. may be the league's top newcomer.

Center Tom Ahrendt is the squad's lone senior.

The Sioux have become one of the nation's top teams from 3-point range.

Wrestling

The Fighting Sioux wrestling team also owns a win over NDSU this year, and UND was ranked second in the nation in January.

Two-time national champion Kory Mosher has been out of action with a knee injury. Junior Tim Briggs, El Cajon, Calif., senior Wayne Engebretson, Williston, N.D., junior Dale Herbst, Forseton, Minn., and sophomore Jair Toedter, Perham, Minn., have combined to give the Sioux one of the Final Fives in college wrestling.

UND is scheduled to host the NCAA Championships on Sunday, Feb. 19.

Swimming, Track, Football

Swim Coach Mike Stromberg already boasts of several national qualifiers. The Sioux hosted the NCAA Championship Meet, Feb. 16-18, starting the day after the Alumni Review went to press.

Three All-America's, including two-time national champion Norm McGee, return to lead the Sioux men's track team as it begins its indoor season under Coach Mike Grandall.

McGee is a two-time NCAA Division II sprint champion, and is joined by All-America pole vaulter Jon Wrzesinski and All-America shot putter Stever Burian, Bismarck.

Dick Clay's Sioux women's squad has also started indoor competition.

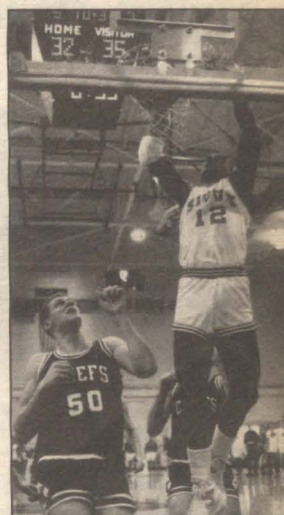

The football recruiting season is in high gear and Fighting Sioux Coach Roger Thomas hoped to have several outstanding players committed to the UND program by the time the Wednesday, Feb. 8, signing day rolled around.

Top priorities: Big offensive linemen and solid athletes at any position.

Four Sioux football standouts have earned very prestigious honors. Senior tight end Rusty Ekness, Crosby, N.D., senior safety Matt Gulseth, Brooklyn Park, Minn., and senior offensive guard Chuck Clairmont, Bismarck, were all named to the GTE-College Sports Information Directors Academic All-America Team. Gulseth and Clairmont made the first team, Ekness the second.

Gulseth also received one of 25 nationally awarded NCAA Postgraduate Scholarships.

The Sioux Boosters will host a Sports Auction and Casino Night at the Elks Club in East Grand Forks, Minn., on Tuesday, March 7. Tickets for the event are $20, and include a dinner.

UND's Solomon Ayinla, Lagos, Nigeria, slams one in for a couple of his 20 points against Morningside College. The junior forward was the high scorer in that game, but the Sioux lost 77-70. As of Feb. 6, the Sioux were 3-7 in the NCC and 8-12 overall. In hockey, UND swept the University of Minnesota-Duluth Feb. 4-5 to up its WCHA record to 17-13-1 and overall record to 19-14-1. UND's women's basketball team is 4-4 in the NCC and 16-5 overall. The Sioux wrestlers have set a UND record with six straight wins. The wrestlers are 6-0 for the season.

Albiona Nelson Foundation gift designated for priority needs

Support for UND continues to grow with the recent $25,000 Gift Annuity contribution to the UND Foundation by Mrs. Albiona Nelson, Tustin, Calif.

Born in Granite Falls, Minn., Albiona Mikkelsen Nelson received her B.S. degree in home economics from the University of Minnesota in 1928. While in college, she was a member of Mortar board, the All University Council, an honorary society for home economic majors, and she wrote for the "Gopher Countrymen."

In 1932, she married Wilford Nelson, Bemidji, Minn. Wilford graduated from UND in 1939 with a B.S. in Elementary Education. After graduation, he joined the Navy and the couple spent the next 20 years in the service. After Wilford's discharge from the Navy, the couple settled in Tustin, Calif., where he was the superintendent of the elementary schools for 20 years. He died in 1988.

A loyal friend of UND, Albiona has requested the charitable remainder of her Gift Annuity be used for priority needs at UND.

Earl Strinden, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association and UND Foundation said, "Although Albiona did not attend UND, she, like so many spouses of UND graduates, became a loyal member of our Alumni family. Albiona and Wilford deeply appreciated the education Wilford received at UND. How nice of Albiona to invest in future educational opportunities for others. She is a wonderful friend of UND."

Column will address charitable giving, financial planning questions

By DAVE MIEDEMA
Senior Development Officer

In this, and subsequent "Foundation Corner" columns, I will share some questions frequently received from members of our Alumni family regarding charitable giving. Plus, we will provide financial and tax planning tips you may find helpful.

Question: I own several shares of highly appreciated stock in a small company about to be acquired by a larger corporation. All stock holders have received a tender offer for their outstanding shares. The offering price is acceptable; however, if I sell, my capital gains tax liability will be exorbitant. Would there be advantages for me to donate this stock directly to the University of North Dakota Foundation?

Absolutely! In fact, gifts of appreciated property, including stock and other securities, are often the most "tax-wise," "lowest-cost" gifts an individual can make.

Whether you are making a direct gift of appreciated stock in a company about to be taken over, or a gift of some other appreciated asset, you will enjoy a double tax benefit. First: you receive a charitable contribution deduction for the full fair market value of the donated property; and second:

Foundation Corner

you avoid paying capital gains tax on the appreciation of your property.

A gift of appreciated property may also be used to fund an income arrangement such as a Charitable Gift Annuity. This giving method offers substantial tax advantages while most often increasing a donor's income. The Charitable Gift Annuity is as easy to secure as investing in a certificate of deposit. Simply notify our office for a personalized example of how a Charitable Gift Annuity can fit within your financial plans.

I often hear about alumni who have set up Named Endowments with the UND Foundation. I understand what an endowment is, but I would like to know more about the size of the gift required to establish a Named Endowment.

A gift of $10,000 or more to the UND Foundation can establish a Named Endowment. Smaller amounts can also create the fund, along with the donor's pledge of additional direct or deferred gifts. Also, the remainder of a life income arrangement with the UND Foundation can be used to establish a Named Endowment. Often coined as "A Gift Which Lives Forever," a Named Endowment provides a wonderful way to support priority projects of your choice at the University of North Dakota.

I invite you to contact us with questions you may have on charitable giving. Also, to receive information on how you can save taxes while making a gift to the University of North Dakota Foundation, please write or give us a call and request our complimentary booklet, "Minimizing Your Income Taxes."

Recent alumni donation supports UND nursing, engineering project

By GAIL MEYER

A recent $50,000 funding by Gaymar Industries, Inc. to the University of North Dakota Foundation is paving the way toward providing relief and healing for bedridden patients.

The money is for a joint research project between UND's School of Nursing and School of Engineering and Mines.

Gaymar Industries, headquartered in Marilyn presently serves as vice president of Gaymar Industries and Medisearch. She is also president of their real estate division, Whitney Lands. She is a member of the Alumni Association and Foundation Board of Directors.

In 1977, the Alumni Association presented John with UND's highest honor, the Sioux Award, recognizing his outstanding career accomplishments. At the time, he asked that the award also be for Marilyn because of the key role she has played in their success.

The gift from Gaymar Industries will assist in the research and development of pressure sensitive pads for the relief and alleviation of bed sores, often encountered by bedridden patients.

According to Dr. Lois Merrill, dean of UND's School of Nursing, the joint research project is helping more than those confined to beds.

"We hope this initial funding will lead to the development of a nursing center of research excellence at UND. When we think of research we think of cures, but there is an increasing need for more research directed toward the living and disabled. We need to alleviate problems for the bedridden and this is very much a nursing concern."

The first phase of this joint research is with the School of Nursing. "Nurses are needed in the area of research for the ill because they can tell you what's right and what's wrong for the patient," Merrill said.

This approach fits nicely with the School of Engineering and Mines' role in this project. Don Mathsen, assistant dean of the School of Engineering and Mines, said, "This is definitely a multi-disciplinary effort. Our part right now is to let nursing determine how this and other similar products are used or prescribed and how they are applied to the patient.

"After that initial year, problems might arise which require engineering involvement. This may mean monitoring pressure (between the patient and pad) or design recommendations."

Mathsen described the pressure pads as "high tech air mattresses."

Of Gaymar Industries' gift, Earl Strinden, executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association and the UND Foundation said, "John and Marilyn Whitney are leaders in the important field of patient care. The research dollars provided by their company to UND are not only in recognition of their alma mater but will stimulate student and faculty ideas and involvement in a vast potential of human need. We are most grateful to John and Marilyn for providing these research opportunities to the University of North Dakota."

The Whitney's reside in Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico and Nantucket, Mass. They have four children.
