Four outstanding alumni to receive spring Sioux Awards

The UND Alumni Association will recognize four distinguished individuals with its highest honor, the Sioux Award, as part of the Alumni Days '99 celebration May 26-28. Recipients are:

• Dr. Ella Jane Oyer earned her bachelor's degree from UND in 1946. She received her master's degree from Ohio State University in 1959 and completed her Ph.D. from Michigan State University in 1969. The Forman, N.D., native began teaching at Michigan State University in the Department of Family and Child Ecology in 1960. Dr. Oyer has presented numerous papers on family related issues and her special interest, gerontology, at conferences across the U.S. and around the world. She is co-author of a book entitled "Aging and Communication," as well as numerous other articles and papers on the subject of aging and the aged. Dr. Oyer and her husband Herbert raised one child.

• Dr. Verrill J. Fischer earned his bachelor's degree in medicine from UND in 1935 and his medical degree from Rush Medical School in Chicago in 1937. Originally from Alice, N.D., Dr. Fischer served as a physician in several North Dakota and Minnesota communities before joining the Army Medical Corps in 1942. He jumped with paratroopers onto French soil on D-day, June 6, 1944, and was discharged in 1945 with the rank of Major. He returned to his home state and formed a medical partnership, the Medical Arts Clinic, in Minot. More than 40 years later this practice has grown into a state-of-the-art facility with a staff of 280, including 48 physicians. Following retirement in 1984, he taught at the UND Family Practice Residency program in Minot for nine years. Along with his dedication to medicine, Dr. Fischer has been active in his community, volunteering in a number of civic organizations. He and his wife Ruth raised four children.

• Edward J. Harloff, born and raised in Warroad, Minn., graduated from UND in 1949 with a bachelor's degree in commerce. His studies were interrupted by World War II. Harloff served in the Marine Corps from 1942 to 1945 and received a purple heart. Since 1960, Harloff has been owner and operator of Harloff BMW/Chevrolet in Encinitas, Calif. Along with his involvement in many professional organizations, Harloff has also been active in his community and many civic organizations. He and his wife Barbara raised three children.

• Wilbur Gehrke, a native of Crosby, N.D., earned his bachelor's degree in commerce from UND in 1939. He served in the Marines as a Captain from 1942 to 1946 and earned a Navy Cross, the second highest Marine Corps medal for valor, and three purple hearts. Now residing in Santa Rosa, Calif., he owns Gehrke Land, Inc., and has had a long and distinguished career in real estate. Gehrke has been recognized with numerous awards in his field and has served as a dedicated and active member in his community. Gehrke and his late wife Thelma raised three children.

Winnie Jones adds $1 million to endowment

Winnie Jones, '37

Winnifred "Winnie" (Hughes) Jones made testamentary arrangements to provide more than $1 million to the University of North Dakota Foundation. In 1992, Winnie funded a unitrust within the UND Foundation with a gift of real estate valued at almost $500,000. The endowment established with these gifts is valued at more than $1.5 million and funds priority projects at UND, including support for scholarships.

A Lakota, N.D., native, Winnie earned her bachelor's degree in education, with a major in home economics, from UND in 1937. She worked as a schoolteacher for six years before earning a degree in physical therapy from the Mayo Clinic School of Physical Medicine. Winnie worked as a physical therapist for 25 years.

In 1946, Winnie married John Paul "Jack" Jones in Minneapolis. The couple moved to California where Jack was a successful architect who designed many homes in the Manhattan Beach

The Cable Pottery years

The grand opening of the Cable Years Pottery retrospective show will be held during the 1999 Alumni Days. The Golden Anniversary show is a tribute to Margaret Kelly Cable's 38 years at the University and her retirement in 1949.

The show, sponsored by the UND Alumni Association and Foundation, will be held in two locations — the North Dakota Museum of Art on the UND campus and the Empire Arts Center in downtown Grand Forks.

Plan to join the celebration highlighting the beauty and distinction of Cable years pottery. Following the opening during Alumni Days, the show will travel within the region and state.

For more information about this piece, see POTTERY, Page 3.

Alumni enjoy special gatherings around the nation

Thank you to all of our volunteers who arranged winter and spring alumni reunion gatherings around the nation. After being on the road attending a number of events over the past many weeks, I am again reminded of the strong bond which exists among those who proudly are members of the UND alumni family. An increasing number of alumni associations have curtailed off-campus alumni events because of a lack of interest. While this has been happening elsewhere, the UND Alumni Association has been expanding our off-campus activities, including the very successful football and hockey parties. The younger alumni especially enjoy meeting and visiting and watching the Fighting Sioux by satellite feed. If there is not an event in your area and you would like one and would be willing to work on the arrangements, please let us know.

Reuben Aasland, '26, was at our gathering at the Balboa Club in Newport Beach, and Karleen Rosaen, '27, was with us at our gathering in Tucson. They exemplify loyalty and dedication to this University and serve as wonderful role models for the more recent graduates.

J. Lloyd Stone asked me to bring his greetings to the friends I meet along the way. Whenever we are together, Lloyd is interested in visiting about the University of North Dakota and members of our alumni family. It seems almost impossible, but it has been over 25 years since Lloyd retired as executive vice president of the UND Alumni Association. Lloyd has an apartment at 41505 Carlotta Drive, #118, in Palm Desert, California 92211. He is in good health. I am sorry to report Grace Stone's health has deteriorated, and it is necessary for Grace to be in a special care facility.

Lloyd and Grace Stone, through their many years of service to this University and the Alumni Association, epitomize devotion and dedication to a University.

Our congratulations to four outstanding individuals who will be receiving Sioux Awards during Alumni Days in May. Ella Jane Oyer, '46, now of Punta Gorda, Florida; Dr. Verrill J. Fischer, '35, now living in Fargo; Ed Harloff,

'49, from Encinitas, California; and Wilbur Gehrke, '39, Santa Rosa, California, are truly builders of UND's proud tradition of alumni achievement, service and loyalty. It will be a very special night on Thursday, May 27, when we present the Alumni Association's highest honor to these distinguished members of our alumni family.

Please do make your plans to be with us for Alumni Days. Of all of our successful events, Alumni Days is special because returning alumni can stay in very nice dormitory accommodations. Swanson Hall is really exceptional and is connected by tunnel to the Student Union where many of our lunches and activities are held. This beautiful campus is especially appealing in the spring-time. UND is in between commencement and the beginning of summer school, so the alumni have our full attention and have the campus to themselves. The staff attempts to make Alumni Days as close as possible to being on a wonderful cruise. Alumni Days is scheduled on the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday prior to Memorial Day to accommodate the travel plans of alumni who combine a visit to UND with a trip back to the old home town or the country church and cemetery.

The vase on the front cover is in the collection of Dr. George and Karin Look. The couple has roots in the Midwest, but no ties to North Dakota or the University, with the exception of their admiration and love of pottery made by the UND ceramics department headed by Margaret Kelly Cable from 1910 to 1949. Their interest lies particularly in the pottery which Cable, other instructors and students created during the first two decades of the ceramics department. Dr. and Mrs. Look, who reside in Alexandria, Va., visited Grand Forks and the University of North Dakota for the first time last May and were very impressed by the pottery collection.

The Looks recognized a need to create a complete and permanent record of the pottery in the collections and donated $5,000 to fund the creation of that record. The work of cataloging the collection has been started under the direction of UND Professor Donald Miller. Dr. and Mrs. Look hope their assistance helps preserve these treasures, which are both part of a much larger American art pottery aesthetic of the early 20th century and an essential part of North Dakota's cultural heritage for the 21st century.

area. Jack died at a young age and left Winnie to manage on her own. Winnie acquired and managed substantial real estate holdings and became a successful businesswoman.

"Winnie Jones was a unique individual and a wonderful member of the UND alumni family," said UND Foundation Executive Vice President Earl Strinden. "She was a self-reliant, enterprising achiever with a strong sensitivity and concern for others. Her outstanding success and notable accomplishments are a tribute to her work ethic, business judgment and dedication to personal high standards."

Winnie's concern and compassion for others was displayed through her involvement and support in many organizations, including Goodwill Industries of Southern California, Meals on Wheels, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, City of Hope, Recording for the Blind, the Arthritis Foundation of Southern California, the Los Angeles Mission, United Rescue Mission and South Coast Platonic Gardens. She was given the responsibility of establishing a burn unit in a local hospital and, for many years, provided funds to secure Seeing Eye Dogs for blind individuals. Winnie died in January 1999.

'67 grad's company leads nation in temporary labor market

By Angie Lueck

According to 1967 UND graduate and entrepreneur Glenn Welstad, the concept of his multi-million dollar, international company is nothing new. Welstad is chief executive officer of a company called Labor Ready. The concept of his business stems from 1890s union halls, where workers reported on a daily basis before being sent to a job site. Labor Ready is the nation's leading provider of temporary manual labor to the light industrial and small business markets.

Welstad grew up in the Upham, N.D., area and transferred to the University of North Dakota in 1963. He came to UND because he heard the University of North Dakota had a reputation of having an outstanding business college. "At that time, I heard Tom Clifford was in charge of setting up UND's college of business and did a good job. He set it up well."

Besides choosing UND for its fine educational qualities, Welstad remembers UND's beautiful campus. "I just remember how pretty the campus looked and how big it seemed. At that time there were probably 5,000 to 6,000 students," he recalled, "but it didn't take long for it to feel like home."

In 1967 Welstad graduated from UND with a bachelor's degree in business administration. He spent more than 15 years in the restaurant business until he decided to take early retirement. Welstad moved to Arizona in 1984, where he and his wife Donna spent five years until he decided he was bored and too young to retire. So in 1989, he took a chance and started Labor Ready. It was one of the best decisions he has ever made. Welstad attributes his success to timing. "Timing is everything. We opened our first office in 1989, a time when the industry was looking to move away from permanent employment," Welstad stated.

Welstad and his company have come a long way. Labor Ready, which provides temporary manual labor mostly to construction, light industrial and small business customers, is based out of Tacoma, Wash., and operates more than 550 offices in 46 states, Puerto Rico and Canada.

Glenn Welstad, '67

Plans are underway to expand services overseas with an office in Manchester, England. Welstad also sees his company opening offices in the Australia and New Zealand markets in the near future.

Besides Labor Ready's geographical growth, Welstad reported the company has done extremely well financially. Labor Ready reached a milestone in October when it switched from a NASDAQ company to one listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Welstad was asked to ring the opening bell the day his company switched markets. "It was a very exciting experience. Everything from the dull roar before the opening to all the commotion and activity that went on after the market opened," commented Welstad. Only 3,000 companies are on the New York Stock Exchange. "I was able to watch the first shares of the company's stocks being traded. It was very exciting!"

Labor Ready ended the 1998 year with $606 million in revenues, an 81% increase over the previous year. These outstanding marks are not a stopping point for Welstad and his company. Their objective for the year 2000 is to reach $1 billion in revenue and have a dispatch office in every metropolitan area across the country. There is no doubt in Welstad's mind that Labor Ready will continue its tremendous success. "As I see it, there are between 2,000 and 2,500 offices in the U.S. market to fill; and with the offices we have open now, we are only a quarter of the way there."

Law graduate helps win $59 million disability suit

By Angie Lueck

John Wilborn, '87, '90, knows hard work pays off. Wilborn is an attorney at Surrano and Massey, P.C. in Phoenix, Ariz. Surrano, who was lead council, and Wilborn won what is believed to be the largest monetary award for a single individual plaintiff in a bad-faith disability insurance case.

A Grand Forks native, Wilborn knew he would go to the University of North Dakota. He earned his bachelor's degree in history in 1987 and went on to receive his juris doctorate three years later. "I graduated from law school with 57 other people," stated Wilborn. Classroom size was a difference Wilborn found beneficial. "Most of the people I work with graduated with 200-300 people."

In 1994 Wilborn began working on a case which would end up granting his client, Ronald Diamond, more than $59 million.

The suit began when Diamond, a dentist, was forced to sell his practice in 1990 after suffering from carpal tunnel. A few months later, Diamond's insurance agency, General American Life Insurance, stated he was ineligible to receive benefits, claiming the disability was not genuine. After some research, Diamond's attorneys realized he was not alone. Fifty-seven other disabled people nationwide had been put on a secret "hit list" compiled by General American Life Insurance officials.

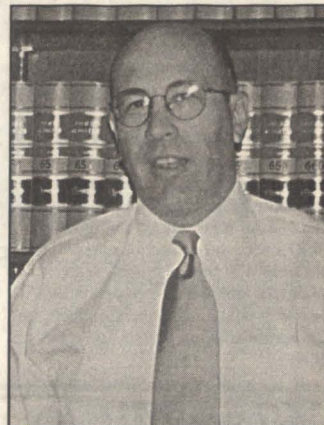

The attorneys proved in court the company created this list with the sole purpose of defrauding certain policyholders, those with $100,000 or more in benefit reserves, in order to recover losses accrued by General American's disability insurance division. This division was losing $40 to $60 million.

Wilborn, who handled the pre-trial motions, motions during trial, evidence issues, jury instructions, preparing the witnesses and preparation of examination of witnesses, said the decision to take Diamond's case was clear. "We take cases like these simply because they are unfair," he said. The attorneys were in for more than four years of work. Evidence for the case was limited because General American instructed its officials to keep everything at an "informal" level, i.e. "nothing in writing or in a memo" in the event that litigation should ever develop. Regardless, Wilborn, Surrano and his associates were able to obtain more than 70,000 files with the help of information disclosed in a previous case, plus information from other attorneys across the country. "The paperwork alone filled up more than one whole side of the courtroom," remarked Wilborn.

Once all the information was in their hands, the attorneys prepared their case by cataloging each document on disk and creating a final presentation. "We wanted to make sure we had everything covered in case the defense objected, we had everything right there and could bring it up on the computer," Wilborn said.

All their work paid off when the jury agreed in favor of Diamond and awarded him more than $968,000 in compensatory damages and $58 million in punitive damages. Punitive damages to General American Insurance Company served as punishment. "When a corporation does something illegal, we can't put them in jail. You can't put a whole corporation in jail, so we hit them in the pocketbook," Wilborn said. "It's our way of telling them that this is wrong and not to do it again."

The story has been featured on "ABC World News Tonight with Peter Jennings" and will be featured on the news program "20/20."

'81 graduate appointed to State Cabinet

By Julie Passa

Growing up, Cynthia (Lindquist) Mala, '81, learned to make all her efforts count. The daughter of white and American Indian parents, she discovered at a young age she would have to work extra hard to overcome the gap between her contrasting Norwegian-Dakotah ancestry.

Cynthia grew up on what is now known as the Spirit Lake Nation near Devils Lake only to move to her "second home," Grand Forks, at the age of 12. After high school, she attended UND where she earned a bachelor of arts degree in Indian studies and English. She went on to receive a master's degree in public administration from the University of South Dakota at Vermillion in 1988.

In her adult years, Cynthia has accomplished all her career goals and then some.

She has been appointed executive director of the North Dakota Indian Affairs Commission. During her days as a student, Cynthia recalls hosting the director of that time as a speaker at UND. She adds, "I never dreamed I would end up in this role." She has many goals for her new position, including better communication between American Indians and the state government, educating the non-American Indian community about untrue stereotypes, as well as boosting funding for health programs.

Her previous professional experiences have also provided her with immense pride. Cynthia's first step into her profession began with her position as health director/planner for the Spirit Lake Tribe in 1982. Particularly, she is most proud of writing and developing the Northern Plains Healthy Start program which has impacted more than 2,500 American Indian women and their families. Healthy Start is a grant project aimed at reducing high infant deaths in selected communities. The Northern Plains project spans 19 American Indian communities in a four-state area and provides prenatal assessments and services. She was also associate professor at the Center for Rural Health at UND School of Medicine and Health Sciences. She spent two and a half years in Washington, D.C., serving as the senior advisor to the director of Indian Health Services.

Considering her unique blend of heritage, Cynthia wrestled with her Norwegian-Dakotah and Indian stereotypes all her life. As a child, she learned the traditional Indian way of life on the Spirit Lake Nation Reservation. She says, "My success is based on those young days on the reservation." She is spiritually bound by that heritage and has returned to the traditional ways; she's a pipe carrier and a sun dancer, both age-old ways of the culture.

Reflecting on her time at UND, she says, "My liberal arts training and background from UND has proven invaluable as my professional career has taken hold." She adds it was the support and encouragement afforded to her during those struggling undergraduate days at UND she remembers and appreciates. "It instilled in me the goodness of people and that we can accomplish our dreams."

Cynthia has moved back to Bismarck where she continues to raise her youngest daughter. She is the mother of three, ages 28, 21, and 12, and grandmother of two.

'33 grad publishes book on healthy eating

Gene, '33, and Dorothy, '33, (Tompkins) Revell visited the UND Alumni Association and presented Earl Strinden with a copy of Dorothy's new book on healthy eating, Food Tips for a Healthy Lifestyle. Dorothy, a dietitian of 45 years, was recently included in the "2000 Outstanding Scientists of the 20th Century" in honor of her outstanding contributions in the field of medicine. Dorothy and Gene live in Fargo.

Nursing fond memories of UND

Submitted by Carlitta R. Armour

Carlitta is a registered nurse and freelance writer. She has three sons and lives in Bakersfield, Calif.

As an 18-year-old mother of two toddlers and wife to a Grand Forks Air Force Base Sergeant, the University of North Dakota was at first as foreign to me as a Somalian in Siberia. An aspiring music major at the time I entered UND in the fall of 1978, I had no idea of what college life would be like, only that there was a burning desire to continue my education. After the shock of a less than desirable GPA that first semester, I was determined to prove myself worthy. Yet, were it not for some very fine, committed teachers and caring counselors, I am not sure I could have succeeded.

There was English professor, Sandy Donaldson, who expressed genuine confidence in my writing abilities, providing me with a grade of "A" in English 100. Then there was Jace Cuny, a Native American counselor, patiently listening to every academic or financial woe, always ready to give a gentle nudge or pat on the back.

Even more enveloping was being a member of the Black Student Union, our own campus house. I remember the cushiony soft couches, television in the den, the upstairs meeting room, frequented by our BSU President, William White, and the African caretakers Joseph and Jane. It was a cozy warm retreat to escape the cold, harsh North Dakota winter season. The BSU also provided us with the opportunity to meet some of the most influential people in the world. We dined with 60 Minutes correspondent Ed Bradley, former friend and confidante to Martin Luther King, Jr., and met Era Bell Thompson, herself a UND alumna, who was then the international editor for Ebony magazine.

The University of North Dakota was, and still is, all that and more. Nevermind the awesome beauty of the campus with its English Coulee and historic buildings. However, just getting to the campus could itself be a harrowing experience traveling on the ice-slicked highway from the Air Force Base 14 miles away. Attending classes was an experience like no other. How does one explain what it's like to go to an early morning swimming class and then walk across campus in 20-degree weather to child psychology class? How can an inner city youth admit to developing a new love for Classical and Baroque music as a direct result of attending music appreciation class? How can you describe the feeling of being part of the Women's Chorus, performing in long flowing gowns on the Chester Fritz Auditorium stage or that of being a participant in the annual talent show?

Although I later changed my major to nursing and did not graduate from UND, I went on to complete my bachelor's degree in California. Still, the memories of the grand beauty of the campus and the fine professors, students and administrators I met, has had a lifelong impact on me. I take as much pride in being called an alumna from the University of North Dakota as any other school I have attended. With the arrival of each UND Alumni Review, I am taken back to fond cherished memories and a time when all that mattered was education, at any cost, any distance and during any season. Although I have never returned to UND and have since lost contact with those I knew, respected and admired, I am constantly amazed at the success and accomplishments of its many alumni throughout the nation and the world and am proud to say I was once there too.

Four successful alumnae spend day on campus

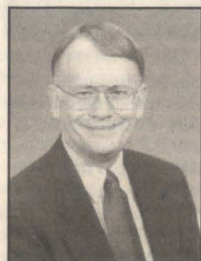

"UND College of Business and Public Administration: 75 years of helping women students prepare for a changing world" was the theme of the 12th annual Hultberg Lectureship held in February. Back on campus for this lectureship were four UND women graduates [PICTURED ABOVE]: Theresa Knutson, '89, Sioux City, Iowa, Darla Romfo, '81, Washington, D.C., Candace Muggerrud, '83, Bismarck, and Sherri Eriksrud, '90, Chaska, Minn.

The Hans and Susanna Hultberg Lectureship was established within the UND Foundation by their daughter, the late Clara E. (Hultberg) Anderson of Bismarck, to bring accomplished women graduates to the UND campus as role models for leadership and career achievements.

A Scranton, N.D., native, Sherri (Freitag) Eriksrud came to UND with the intent of pursuing medicine. After a couple of resigned effective this coming June 30. Vorland said he announced his decision early so presidential candidates could be made aware of the impending vacancy.

A native of Harvey, N.D., and a graduate of UND and Northwestern University, Vorland became a member of then-President Thomas J. Clifford's senior cabinet when he was named director of University Relations in 1974. Later he served as a part-time executive assistant to Clifford, a role he continued when Baker became president in 1992. The following year Baker transferred him full-time to his office.

26th Annual Powwow

More than 650 people attended the 26th annual INMED powwow on the UND campus in February. The powwow featured 95 dancers and 12 drums from Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota.

Indians into Medicine (INMED) provides enrichment activities and support for American Indian students enrolled in the UND School of Medicine and Health Sciences. The organization also supports students entering other health careers. INMED provides summer enrichment sessions in junior high and high schools and coordinates Indian health service scholarships which includes service paybacks at Indian health facilities. There are 29 American Indians enrolled in medical school at UND.

The event was sponsored by INMED, the UND Multicultural Awareness Committee and the University of North Dakota.

Margaret Hawkins

UND alumni shared special friendship with Louis L'Amour Margaret and Reese Hawkins continue efforts to honor, remember their friend

By Larry Stammen

One of North Dakota's most devoted and energetic promoters, Margaret Hawkins recently moved back to the state with a new goal. Together with her husband Reese and others, they are working to convince the U.S. Postal Service to honor Louis L'Amour's lifetime achievements with a commemorative postage stamp.

The Hawkins, who owned and operated a drugstore in Jamestown until 1978, were longtime friends of Louis L'Amour, the famed author who grew up in Jamestown and went on to become one of the best known and most prolific "frontier storytellers" of all time. Their relationship with L'Amour and his family began in 1971 after Margaret wrote a letter to Governor Bill Guy's wife suggesting L'Amour for the North Dakota Roughrider Award.

"I scratched off a letter to Louis L'Amour one day," said Margaret, recalling how it all started. "I put a 'PS, We're proud of you!' at the end of it." L'Amour promptly wrote back and said he was especially touched by the postscript.

"There were more than 30 nominations for the Roughrider Award at that time," said Margaret, "but L'Amour's name was moved to the top of the list." According to Margaret, Gov. Guy was a reader of L'Amour's but didn't know he was from North Dakota. After the announcement in 1972 that L'Amour was to receive the award, Reese flew to California and had lunch with the author. They talked for more than two hours and Reese encouraged L'Amour to bring his wife and children along to Jamestown where the award ceremony was to take place. They all came.

"His wife and two children had never been to North Dakota," said Reese. "We offered to take care of the children and show them around town. We thought they would be interested in seeing where their father grew up." The Hawkins were invited to visit the L'Amours in California because of their entertainment of the L'Amour children. "Whatever you do for their children," Reese said of that first meeting, "you do for the L'Amours." Over the next 15 years, until L'Amour's death in 1988, they maintained a close relationship with the author and his family. "He'd talk and want a report on this and that in North Dakota," Margaret said of their rapport. "We both enjoyed these little visits."

This friendship prompted Margaret and Reese, at 82 years of age to return from their retirement home in South Carolina to promote L'Amour and his birthplace. The Hawkins opened a 'mini-museum' of their Louis L'Amour memorabilia in downtown Jamestown at Meidinger Square. There, Reese is transcribing

The first ladies of law

Builders of the profession — success after graduation from UND School of Law starts with first woman graduate, continues with first woman Minnesota Commissioner of Corrections

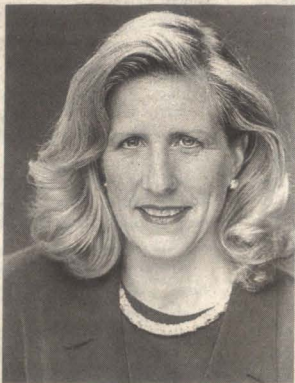

By Angie Lueck

The law school at the University of North Dakota was established in 1899. Six years later, it graduated its first woman, Helen Hamilton.

Hamilton grew up in Grand Forks and enrolled at UND to pursue a career in law. She completed the required classes within two semesters, taking 22 courses totaling more than 70 hours.

Although president of her graduating class in 1905, Hamilton was not able to practice law until 20 years later when women obtained suffrage with the passage of the 19th Amendment. She practiced in Grand Forks until her retirement in 1948.

Since Hamilton's graduation, the UND School of Law has graduated hundreds of outstanding women who have gone on to achieve success in their careers. One of those graduates is Jamestown, N.D., native, Sheryl Ramstad Hvass, '75, Minnesota Commissioner of Corrections.

Sheryl Ramstad Hvass, '75

Since the sixth grade, Ramstad Hvass has known she wanted to pursue a career in law. "I participated in career day and spent the day with a lawyer in Jamestown. Ever since then I knew I wanted to do something in law," recalls Ramstad Hvass. She earned her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Minnesota in 1972 where she majored in psychology. Ramstad Hvass then attended the UND School of Law from which she graduated with honors and as a member of the Order of the Coif in 1975.

As a law student, Ramstad Hvass participated in a Department of Justice prison internship program at the federal reformatory for women in Alderson, W.Va. Following that experience, she participated in an intensive prison seminar at the law school and wrote a law review article on the history of correctional philosophies and rehabilitative programs dealing with the female offender. She credits her former UND law professor Larry Kraft with having influenced her career choices and for her present position. "Professor Kraft took a personal interest in me as a student and played a major role in shaping my future in the criminal justice system," she commented. "Without him, I would not be where I am today. He is my mentor and my friend."

Upon graduating from UND, Ramstad Hvass became an assistant Hennepin County public defender, representing indigents charged with felonies, gross misdemeanors and misdemeanor offenses. She then served as a federal prosecutor for almost four years before Governor Al Quie appointed her to the Hennepin County Bench in 1982. In 1986 she joined the law firm of Rider, Bennett, Egan & Arundel, where she maintained an active civil trial practice and served as an arbitrator and mediator. Ramstad Hvass was elected by her peers to the positions of president of Minnesota Women Lawyers in 1986, president of the Hennepin County Bar Association in 1990, and president of the Minnesota State Bar Association in 1997.

This past February, Governor Jesse Ventura appointed Ramstad Hvass to serve in his cabinet as the first woman to ever head the Minnesota Department of Corrections. "Sheryl has been involved in the criminal justice system from every angle," said Governor Ventura. "I am pleased to have her serve as part of my team."

As commissioner, Ramstad Hvass works with a $300 million budget and more than 3,600 employees and is one of only five women in the country to hold such a position. "I am very excited to serve the people of Minnesota in this challenging position. If it was not for my education at the UND School of Law and the opportunities professor Kraft provided me, I would not be where I am today," said Ramstad Hvass.

"...Sheryl Ramstad Hvass is an energetic achiever with one of the longest legal resumes in the state...Hvass has both abundant talent and common sense..."

years and a great deal of time assessing what she enjoyed and succeeded in. Sherri changed her major and graduated in 1990 with a BBA in marketing and management from UND. She was offered a position with Dayton's as a management trainee after interviewing at a job fair sponsored by UND Career Services. "Take advantage of the opportunities at UND, including practice interviews, Career Services, and leadership positions in government and organizations," Sherri advised students.

In August 1998, Sherri became the general manager at the Southdale Dayton's store in Minneapolis. The Southdale location has the largest sales volume of the Dayton's stores and the second largest sales volume in the Dayton Hudson Corporation.

Sherri credits the University with helping her work with a diverse group of people, which is useful when a person has 1,200 people working under her in a store. "The extensive work in group projects helped me learn to deal with situations where many different personalities are working together," she explained. "UND challenged me to move beyond my comfort zone and provided practical leadership opportunities."

Sherri has visited the UND campus since graduation, but was excited to return for the Hultberg Lectureship. "I attended the Lectureship when I was a student and was honored when asked to participate," Sherri said. She also noted she was impressed with the changes on the UND campus and in the College of Business and Public Administration. "If you're not changing, you're not growing," she said.

Although Sherri's professional life keeps her very busy, she has learned to juggle it with her personal life. "Become a good strategic planner," she advises, "and learn to trust other people and let them help you." Sherri and her husband James live in Chaska, Minn.

Originally from Hannah, N.D., Darla Romfo, '81, earned a BSBA in political science and business administration with a major in accounting and a BA with a major in political science from UND. She went on to receive her juris doctorate from George Washington University School of Law. Since 1996, Darla has been Counsel to the Chief Deputy Whip Senator John Breaux (D-La.) as part of the U.S. Senate in Washington, D.C. Previously, she spent three years serving Senator Kent Conrad (D-N.D.) and worked in the private sector for a total of ten years.

Darla counsels Senator Breaux on issues including tax matters in the Finance Committee, Democratic Leadership issues, the National Commission on Retirement Policy, and the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare. Her education, spanning from political science, accounting and law, has allowed her to combine her expertise and utilize them at their full capacity.

Despite Darla's love for North Dakota, she has always looked forward to seeing the larger world. Since 7th grade, she has known she wanted to pursue a law degree and a career in government. Inspired by her father, she says, "I have always had a fascination with things political." She adds, "I really believe in the principles on which our country was founded, and I think it is invaluable to have people serving in government who are there just because they want to protect those ideals and have an impact on carrying them out."

UND was an important time in Darla's life. She feels everyone should have the opportunity to get an education close to home that gives them the fundamentals they need to be successful anywhere. UND provided her with this opportunity.

At age 20, Darla went out east, and looking back, she appreciates how UND fostered her idealism. During her return to UND for the Hultberg Lectureship, those feelings came back. "The University exposed me to the first things I really learned about culture and all things bigger than North Dakota." Darla lives in Washington, D.C.

Burlington, N.D., native, Theresa (Wickman) Knutson, earned her degree in accounting from UND in 1989, but not before a few twists and turns in the road. "I started out in engineering, but changed majors after I got a D in calculus," she said.

Theresa's philosophy of "work hard, play hard" has brought her far. She earned her CPA in 1989 and began work with KPMG Peat Marwick in Atlanta as an audit practice manager soon after. Seven years later, she was director of practice management and recruiting for their Southeast region. In 1997, Theresa followed her husband to South Dakota and began her current position as global IT finance manager at Gateway 2000. Theresa believes Gateway, a major manufacturer of computing systems, stands out from its competitors because it's an eclectic, Midwest-based company that has incredible growth and people.

In an industry dependent on new technology, there is seldom a dull moment in Theresa's position. She cites "the incredible pace of change" as both the best and most frustrating part of her job. The change isn't the only thing keeping Theresa busy on the job. "Three weeks ago I was in San Diego for a global IT meeting, the week after I was in Washington, D.C., wrapping up a deal with Gateway and this week I'm back in South Dakota," she explained.

Theresa was, however, able to take some time to return to her Alma Mater for the Hultberg Lectureship. "I was honored to be invited to participate in the Lectureship. I had a great time and met great people," she said. Theresa, her husband Jim, '89, and their son live in Sioux City, Iowa.

According to Candace (Mayer) Mugggerud, "the world is a changing place and in order to survive in the job market, we need to embrace change." This is the advice Candace offered students when she returned to UND.

Originally from Hettinger, N.D., Candace followed her own advice when she resigned from her position as senior vice president for the North Dakota group of US Bank to become co-owner of Kat Video Productions in Bismarck. "I truly believe you should never lose your marketability," she said. "If your skillset is the same in five years, you have failed." Her business partner and husband Todd, '83, handles the creative end of their business while Candace takes care of the finances. She received her BA in economics from UND in 1983.

KAT Video Productions develops marketing, educational, training videos and documentaries. Clientele includes a strong corporate base and the production of documentaries addressing Native American cultural preservation and issues facing tribes in North Dakota.

Candace and Todd live in Bismarck. They have four children.

more than 40 hours of taped conversations with L'Amour and hopes to someday publish a book about him. Bantam Books asked Reese for material and pictures on the author for its celebration as L'Amour's publisher for 30 years. Margaret, meanwhile, is a member of the Louis L'Amour Heritage Committee and is busy lobbying the Citizen's Stamp Advisory Committee in Washington, D.C., as well as promoting Jamestown as L'Amour's hometown.

A native of Bottineau, N.D., with Icelandic roots, Margaret (Benson) Hawkins continued a proud family tradition and enrolled at UND in 1936. After a year she transferred to the University of Washington in Seattle to complete a degree in social work. She returned to North Dakota and worked for Public Welfare and Lutheran Welfare for four years as a social worker before she joined the Red Cross during World War II and moved to California. There she met Reese, who was serving in the Navy, and in 1946 they returned to North Dakota and married.

Reese studied pharmacy after the war and the couple bought a drugstore in North Carolina. The opportunity to purchase a drugstore in Jamestown brought them back to North Dakota in 1957.

The Hawkins helped promote construction of the World's Largest Buffalo, visible from I-94, and bought and donated a rural one-room schoolhouse, which was the start of Jamestown's Pioneer Village. The World's Largest Buffalo and Pioneer Village are the second highest tourist attraction in North Dakota today. Margaret also had local artist J.A. Kirkpatrick paint a 6 by 21-foot mural recording much of North Dakota's heritage on one wall of their store and later began adding pictures of famous North Dakotans. Both the mural and pictures are still on the wall at the store, now Walz Drug. Margaret became somewhat famous herself for the buffalo cookie cutters she designed and other North Dakota specialties made and sold at the store.

The most famous North Dakotan though, says the Hawkins, is indisputably Louis L'Amour. President Ronald Reagan awarded him the Congressional Gold Medal in 1983 and the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1984. There have been only 80 gold medals given out in U.S. history. "President Washington was the first person to receive the medal," Reese said. "Louis was the first novelist to receive it."

L'Amour returned to North Dakota on two other occasions, at the request of Gov. Link, to give the address at the ground breaking ceremony in 1976 for the North Dakota Heritage Center in Bismarck and to receive an honorary doctorate from NDSU. His wife Kathy returned in 1990 as did the Hawkins, to give the address at the dedication ceremony for the new Louis L'Amour Elementary School in Jamestown.

Even after his death, L'Amour's legend continues. More than 260 million copies of his books have been sold, and all 116 titles are still in print. And soon, if Reese and Margaret Hawkins have anything to say about it, Louis L'Amour's likeness (in the form of a commemorative stamp) will be criss-crossing the country affixed to letters and packages. It would be a fitting tribute to the man, they say, who contributed so extensively to the historical knowledge of this country's frontier days.

Society for Energy Alternatives gears up to race Subzero2

UND's Society of Energy Alternatives unveiled its new solar-powered vehicle. Subzero2, an improved design on SEA's award-winning Subzero, is a car that can operate under normal highway conditions while consuming the amount of power used to run a hair dryer. The energy is collected by solar cells and then stored in a battery pack. The car began formal testing in March at the Las Vegas Motor Speedway and goes to a qualifying run in Michigan for Sunrayce '99. Sunrayce '99 begins June 22 in Washington, D.C., and finishes ten days later in Orlando, Fla., covering a distance of 1500 miles. SEA is an official UND student organization to promote energy conservation and environmental awareness through solar vehicle racing. The group consists of 60 members from a variety of academic disciplines.

21st Century Campaign

As the University of North Dakota prepares to meet the many challenges and exciting opportunities of a new century, loyal alumni and special friends are joining in a historic effort for their Alma Mater — the 21st Century Campaign. The goal is $50 million in new gifts by December 31, 2000. Thank you to all who are helping strengthen UND!

STUDENTS — UND alumni and special friends are investing in STUDENTS: goals include increasing scholarship support for high achieving and deserving students, as well as increasing funds for graduate/professional scholarships and the number of Distinguished Student Awards.

TECHNOLOGY — UND stands poised to meet the opportunities students and faculty will encounter in the new century. The goal in this area is to develop funding to strengthen UND's position on the cutting edge of TECHNOLOGY for teaching, research and learning.

TEACHING — It is vital UND continue to attract and retain a top-quality faculty. Goals are to increase the number of endowed chairs and endowed professorships; increase funds for faculty career development and for awards to recognize outstanding TEACHING at UND.

LIBRARY RESOURCES — The Chester Fritz Library, the research and academic hub of the University, is North Dakota's largest and most comprehensive academic research library. While the printed page holds an esteemed place, the use of multimedia and other LIBRARY RESOURCES is an ever-growing aspect in our rapidly changing world. The goal is to build a strong base of support for this important area, allowing the library to continue as a fundamental learning resource for all students and faculty.

MESSAGE FROM THE CAMPAIGN'S CO-CHAIRS...

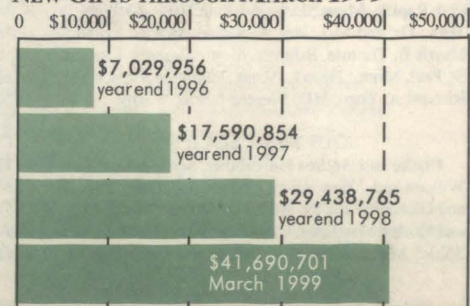

"When we started the campaign four years ago, the goal of $50 million in five years seemed far into the future. Thanks to the loyal support of you, our alumni and special friends, the campaign is in its fourth year, and our goal is in sight. As of the March posting, we are close to $42 million, and we are confident we will reach our goal by December 31, 2000.

Campaign co-chairs Merlin and Barbara Dewing.

"But we need your help! One of the major goals of the 21st Century Campaign is to involve alumni who have not provided financial support in the past. If there is a special department or campus organization you want to support, now is your opportunity. Be a part of our growth, and be a part of the success of YOUR University." - Merlin and Barbara Dewing

Planning the distribution of your IRA is important

By Tennis Tennyson, Development Officer

Individual retirement accounts (IRAs) or other qualified retirement plans are the most rapidly growing asset for many retired individuals. Retirement accounts offer the opportunity of tax-free growth and they are a good personal financial planning tool. Many, however, are shocked when they discover the bequeathing of their IRA to their children will expose these assets to heavy taxation — possibly up to 80%.

When an individual reaches 59 1/2 years of age, they can take withdrawals without a penalty. However, many choose not to withdraw at this time, but to grow these assets until they reach 70 1/2 when mandatory withdrawals are required. In most of these situations, the assets will continue to grow beyond the rate of withdrawal. It is estimated in our nation today, 90% of individuals with IRA assets who live to age 90 still have 90% of the IRA assets when they die. These assets become part of their estate.

If their IRA assets are bequeathed to their children, 80% could go for taxes and as little as 20% to the benefit of their family. IRAs are not designed to be a testamentary planning tool and are a very poor asset for inheritance. There is a solution. It is good planning to bequest IRA assets to a charity and select other assets to go to children. Another very good plan is to have working in a living trust or last will and testament which transfers IRA assets into a charitable remainder unitrust. By doing this, an individual can provide a greater value to family and loved ones. These assets in the unitrust will provide income to the children for a specific term of years. Along with a substantial tax savings, the total amount the children will receive over the term of the trust will most likely equal or even exceed the value of the IRA assets at the time of death, and the individual has the good feeling knowing the unitrust remainder will provide a substantial gift for the benefit of the University of North Dakota. If the donor chooses, the remainder will fund a named endowment which will always honor and remember the donor at this University.

This arrangement will minimize and possibly eliminate the estate tax and eliminate the income tax obligation which will be incurred if the IRA assets are bequeathed directly to the children. The family members will be the direct beneficiaries of this type of good planning and so will the University of North Dakota Foundation.

To receive a personalized illustration or to discuss how a testamentary IRA unitrust can fit into your personal financial and estate plan, contact one of our development team members today at (800) 543-8764. All contacts are confidential and there is no obligation.

Thomas named Athletic Director

Roger Thomas

Roger Thomas is UND's new athletic director. Thomas has been the UND football coach since 1986. After 13 years as the Sioux football coach, Thomas announced he will not return to coaching this fall. "The dual role would be too difficult," he said. Thomas says he is ready for a new challenge and the timing was right. He will replace Terry Wanless, whose resignation is effective June 30.

Thomas has been labeled the 'most successful football coach in UND history.' He has led the Sioux to record status. In the last ten years, the football team has finished their season in either first or second in the North Central Conference.

Thomas says he is going to miss coaching football, but will give full attention to his new position. Thomas and Baker both feel he was the right choice for the job. His 13 seasons as UND's head football coach has prepared him for the post. One of Thomas' first assignments will be to find his own replacement as coach.

A few candidates for the coaching position have already been suggested. Tim Burke, former UND assistant, current assistant at Purdue; Stan Eggen, former UND assistant, current assistant at Texas Christian; Randy Hedberg, UND offensive coordinator; Dale Lennon, former UND assistant, current head coach at University of Mary; Kyle Schweigert, UND defensive coordinator; and Jeff Tesch, former UND assistant, current head coach at Bemidji State.

The men's team finished second, marking just the second time in the past 14 years the Sioux have failed to win the conference title. Ryan Requist, League City, Texas, was named the Male Swimmer of the Year after winning individual titles in the 500 freestyle, 1650 freestyle, 400 IM, and as a member of the record-setting 800 free relay and first place 400 freestyle relay team. Mats Liden, Angelholm, Sweden, was named the NCC's Rookie of the Year. Liden set the conference record in the 100 breaststroke while taking home titles as a member of the 200 medley relay and 400 medley relay teams and second place finishes in the 200 IM and 100 breast. HOCKEY

The Sioux lead the nation in winning percentage (.875), scoring offense and scoring margin and rank third in power play percentage. With their first place finish, the Sioux will host Minnesota State, Mankato in the first round of the WCHA playoffs and have automatically earned a bid to the NCAA regional tournament.

Hobey Baker hopeful Jason Blake, Moorhead, Minn., leads the Sioux in scoring with 58 points, his third straight season with 50-plus points, and ranks first in the WCHA scoring race with 46 points. Blake also ranks first in the league in overall scoring while ranking third in the nation in points per game, second in the nation in assists per game and fifth in goals per game. Jay Panzer, Grand Forks, ranks second on the team in scoring with 49 points and second in the league scoring race behind Blake with 39 points. Jeff Panzer, Grand Forks, is third in scoring with 41 points while Lee Goren, Winnipeg, Man., leads the team with 24 goals scored. Goaltender

Karl Goehring, Apple Valley, Minn., posted his 40th career victory over Wisconsin to rank sixth among UND goaltenders for career wins. Goehring (17-2-2 overall) ranks fourth among WCHA netminders with a 2.78 goals against average and a .901 save percentage and ranks third overall in the league with a 2.53 goals against average and a .909 save percentage. Andy Kollar, Winnipeg, Man., is third in the league with a 2.62 goals against average and .896 save percentage. Goehring also ranks 14th in the nation in save percentage (.909) and 19th in goals against average (2.53).

SOFTBALL

With just two seniors, the Fighting Sioux softball team will rely on a talented group of freshmen to lead them on their climb through the ranks of the North Central Conference. With a roster made up of freshmen and sophomores, Head Coach Paula Sondreal will look to seniors Lisa Zaleschuk, Saskatoon, Sask., and Heidi Staves, Missoula, Mont., to provide both leadership and experience to the young squad. Zaleschuk and Staves are both in their fifth seasons with the Fighting Sioux as they had an extra year of eligibility restored following the 1997 season. Zaleschuk, a pitcher and a utility player, is a four-year starter while Staves will be returning to her natural position in the outfield after starting all 46 games last year at catcher. Zaleschuk posted a 6-19 record last year but had an impressive 2.68 ERA and 106 strikeouts. At the plate, Zaleschuk hit .193. Staves hit .194 a year ago and led the team in stolen bases. Staves also posted a .949 fielding percentage. Sophomore Vicki McKay, Lancaster, Calif., saw substantial playing time last year as a freshman, sharing the pitching duties with Zaleschuk and as the designated player. McKay was 4-17 with a 3.38 ERA. McKay is the team's top returning player at the plate as she hit .248 last season. McKay will also see playing time at third base. Sophomore infielder Tammy Blanford, Bonnors Ferry, Idaho, and outfielder Landy Borg, Brainerd, Minn., saw limited playing time a year ago, but will be looked upon to step in and contribute. Freshman infielder Rachel Braaten, Northwood, N.D., will also challenge for a spot in the lineup after sitting out last season as a redshirt. The incoming freshman class features a number of talented players. Infielder Holly Bonk, Buffalo, Minn., earned a number of honors during her prep career, including being named to the all-conference team four times and was a two-time all-state and all-metro selection. Bonk also holds the school record in a number of categories. Last season, Bonk hit .451 in 25 runs batted in and three home runs. Catcher/infielder Alena Valdez, Lancaster, Calif., was the league's MVP, as well as an all-league and all-section first-team honoree. Pitcher Ashley Weatherhead, Hanford, Calif., will give the Sioux added depth on the mound and will battle for a spot in the starting rotation while also being able to contribute as an infielder. Utility player Stacy Garcea, Vancouver, Wash., a redshirt freshman, also has the ability to earn a place in the lineup and contribute.

A look at the past in Fighting Sioux Athletics...

Names to remember in UND athletics

Compiled by Bob Gilmour

• Former Sioux hockey player Justin Duberman, '92, who came from Highland Park, Ill., works in Chicago as a pro hockey agent for Neil Abbott of Boston.

• Pam Fisher, '80, Sioux women's basketball player from 1977-80, held the UND rebounding record of 906 until current Sioux star Jenny Crouse grabbed nine rebounds in a 98-52 win over Nebraska-Omaha, giving the 6-3 senior from Freeport, Ill., 914 for her career.

• Former UND hockey player Ron Geatz, '57, is promoting the candidacy of former teammate Ken Purpur, '55, for the North Dakota Sports Hall of Fame. Purpur, a member of the 1956 U.S. Olympic hockey team which won the Silver Medal, had 34 points for the Sioux team in 1951-52, 31 points in 1952-53 and 51 points in 1953-54. His brother, Cliff "Fido" Purpur already is in the North Dakota Hall of Fame. He is former National Hockey League star and former Sioux coach.

• Tony Hrkac, '87, of the UND National Championship team of 1987, scored for the Dallas Stars just eight seconds after opening face-off, setting a franchise record in a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Kings.

• Former UND basketball star Phil Jackson, '67, was a finalist for an ESPY Award, outstanding coach-manager of the year. Jackson coached the Chicago Bulls to the NBA title last spring.

• Sioux tight end Jim Kleinsasser, of Carrington, N.D., was the only Division II player invited to the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala.

• Named to the Eastern Conference team for the IHL All-Star game was Curtis Murphy, '98, UND defenseman who graduated in 1998. He plays for Orlando.

• Former UND defenseman Nick Naumenko, '96, who holds the school record for career goals by a defenseman, has been traded from the Utah Grizzlies to the Las Vegas Thunder in the International Hockey League. Naumenko, from Chicago, had 38 career goals in 146 games for the Sioux from 1992-96.

• Bob Peabody, '61, goalie on UND's first National Championship team of 1958-59, was named the 1998 Small Business Person of the Year by the Grand Forks Chamber of Commerce. Peabody, owner of Lumber Mart stores in East Grand Forks and Grand Forks, is Chamber Board chairman.

• Former UND standout Russ Romaniuk, '92, leads the International Hockey League's Las Vegas team in power play goals with six.

• Former UND football line coach Jeff Tesch, '83, posted a 6-4 record as the Bemidji State head coach this season following two 2-8 records his first two seasons. It was the school's best record since 1968. The Beavers also won the school's first Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference road victory since 1986.

• Former Sioux Dixon Ward, '92, had his first hat trick in the NHL with two goals in the first period and another in the second as his Buffalo Sabres beat the New York Rangers, 4-2.

• Former UND forward Landon Wilson, '95, tied a Providence Bruins' franchise record with seven points in a win over Syracuse. Wilson is second in the American Hockey League with eight power play goals.

• Former UND standout Teeder Wynne, '96, and his brother, John Wynne, are playing pro hockey in Sheffield, England. The Wynnes played together in Sweden and Italy the past two years.

• Combined, the Sioux and Minnesota-Duluth had a total of 64 penalties and 257 penalty minutes early in the season, both were WCHA records. But Virg Foss, Grand Forks Herald sportswriter, who has covered the sport for more than 30 years, said the game would not even be close to ranking among the top 100 roughest WCHA games played. Incidentally, the old records were: most penalties, 59, UND vs. Minnesota, 1992; and most penalty minutes, 186, St. Cloud State vs. Minnesota, 1992.

• Eight UND senior hockey players had a 90-37-5 record in three-plus seasons as of mid-December, for .702 winning percentage. The only comparable four-year run is the 117-46-4 record posted by the Sioux from 1978-82, a .713 winning percentage. The eight current Sioux who could set a new mark are Jason Blake, Jesse Bull, Adam Calder, David Hoogsteen, Jay Panzer, Tom Phillion, Jeff Ulmer and Brad Williamson.

• Phillip Moore was the 24th UND player to make the Associated Press' Little All-America team. He was picked as second team running back. Some observers felt it was surprising that Sioux tight end Jim Kleinsasser, known for his astute and deadly blocking, did not make the squad, although he was named to the Daktronics Division II All-America football team.

• Two former Sioux, Mark Callahan, '97, and the late Steve Myhra, '57, were named twice to the Little All-America, nose guard Callahan in 1994 and 1996, and tackle Myhra, 1955 and 1956.

• NHL draft will be held April 15-17.

Bo's Report

By Rob Bollinger
Exec. Director of the Fighting Sioux Club

Greetings from the Fighting Sioux Club! It has been a very exciting year for our winter sports teams, with hockey and women's basketball being rated number one in the nation most of the season. Men's basketball had a successful season, finishing third in a very tough NCC race.

Plans for the 1999 UND Siouxper Swing Golf Tour are well underway. The tour will once again be another great series of events for our alumni and fans. Our complete schedule will be out later this winter in the form of a registration brochure (see page 19 for schedule). Last year's Siouxper Swing had great attendance and we expect to have many people to attend and a lot of fun to be had again in '99. The golf tour gives our coaches an opportunity to get out and visit with fans and alumni and report on the progress and outlook for the different teams.

The FSC membership drive for 1999-2000, "You can make a difference," will kick off in April. The goal for our local volunteer drive and national campaign is $850,000 to support the UND athletic scholarship fund.

Visit the Fighting Sioux Club on the Internet at www.und.edu/org/alumni. You can also access the UND athletic home page for current game results, statistics and to listen live to Sioux sports. Take care and I hope to see you at Siouxper Swing!

FSC shows appreciation with thank you party

The annual Fighting Sioux Club thank you party was held on Saturday, February 20. The party thanked all the current members of the FSC for their hard work over the past year. More than 400 people enjoyed the camaraderie and the cuisine which was sponsored and prepared by noted Sioux fan and restaurant owner Kim Holmes of Sander's 1997. The pre-game affair was held for these special fans and supporters who attended the UND vs. SDSU basketball game and the UND vs. Alaska-Anchorage hockey game. ABOVE: Dick Olson, '74, Grand Forks (far left) and Gay, '69, and David, '70, Williamson, Hudson, Wis., had their photo taken by the Nickel Trophy which remains in the hands of the Fighting Sioux football team.

Sioux athletes enjoy time with their fans

Skate/Shoot with the Sioux proves to be another success

With over 630 children, it is safe to say this was the biggest Skate with the Sioux event yet. Skate with the Sioux is an annual event planned by Telesis, UND's student alumni organization. The event was open to youth ranging from pre-school to grade six. As participants entered UND's Engelstad Arena, they were eager to lace up their skates and hit the ice to get their picture taken with or autograph from their favorite Sioux hockey players.

Telesis also helped organize the annual Shoot with the Sioux. The Hyslop Sports Center was filled with more than 150 kids who came to shoot hoops with the men's and women's Sioux basketball teams. Kids from ages three to twelve broke into the appropriate age groups while members from both teams rotated throughout the gymnasium, giving everyone a chance to shoot with their favorite player. After getting pointers on their shooting, participants could get autographs from the players.
