BENCH AND BAR

Always a major consideration in the analysis of any class or group is the economic or monetary factor. In any evaluation process, income and its sources provide the means of accurately gauging the economic base of a group. In March of last year the Legal Economics Committee of the North Dakota State Bar Association commenced an economic survey of the attorneys in North Dakota. Due to space consideration, the resulting report could not be printed until this issue. The North Dakota Law Review now offers this economic analysis of the North Dakota lawyer for the benefit of those objective observers who wish to gauge such things and for the benefit of the North Dakota lawyer, that he might better understand himself.

THE 1960 STATE BAR ASSOCIATION OF NORTH DAKOTA ECONOMIC SURVEY

This is a report on the economic status of North Dakota lawyers as compiled by the Legal Economics Committee of the State Bar Association through the efforts of an Economic Survey Sub-Committee.

In March of 1961 the Sub-Committee mailed 458 Questionnaires entitled "Economics of the Bar Questionnaire" to all members of the State Bar Association except Judges and those members known to be nonpracticing at the time of the survey. Seventy (70%) per cent of the lawyers receiving the questionnaire responded. This was an excellent response and the Committee appreciates the fine cooperation extended by the Bar.

The Survey was conceived as a follow-up to the complete revision of the Minimum Fee Schedule in 1960 in an effort to determine the present economic status of the legal profession in North Dakota, and with the ultimate aim of improving the profession's economic status and the efficiency of the service rendered by the profession to the public.

The answers to the questions contained in the Questionnaire were tabulated with the aid of IBM machines, and these tabulated results have been further analyzed by the Sub-Committee for the purpose of making this report.

A summary of the answers to the Questionnaire, and tabular breakdowns of a number of answers are shown in this report. Some comparisons with data from other State Bar Association Surveys are also contained in the report.

Among these are the need for more and better time records, more lawyers covered by malpractice insurance with higher limits, greater efficiency in our office operations, more complete and general adherence to the minimum fee schedule, and our continued efforts to raise the overall economic status of the North Dakota lawyer, both salaried and non-salaried.

Your committee will endeavor to make use of the information gleaned from this survey in future programs of emphasis aimed at improving the economic status and position of the legal profession in North Dakota. The Legal Economics Committee, and the survey sub-committee, want to thank all of the lawyers in North Dakota who responded to the survey questionnaire and so ably helped make this report to the Association.
