AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

The one national spokesman for the lawyers of this country is the American Bar Association. In these days when we are threatened with socialized law practice, when rules of law are being supplanted by rules of administrative expediency, and when marked changes are occurring in our constitutional concepts, it is most important that this spokesman be able to speak for a united Bar.

To do this successfully, its membership should include all lawyers who are eligible to membership. At least 100 additional lawyers in North Dakota should become members.

Yesterday the American Bar Association led the fight for the Supreme Court. Today it is leading the fight against administrative absolutism. Write to the secretary or myself for application blanks.

CLYDE DUFFY,
President.
