RECOGNITION GIVEN BAR

It is the hope of your executive committee and officers that each one of these committees will function, and that each member of each committee will not only consider it an honor to serve, but also a responsibility to which is attached a duty to be active in the performance of such assignment to the end that some good may be accomplished for our nation, our state, and our profession.

I like the preamble to the Constitution of the New York State Bar Association, and think it might well be adopted by us. it reads:—"The Association is formed to cultivate the science of jurisprudence, to promote reform in the law, to facilitate administration of justice, to elevate the standard of integrity, honor and courtesy in the legal profession, and to cherish a spirit of brotherhood among the members thereof."

While we have an integrated bar in this state such dry fact will not infuse life into a dead association. Its life depends upon the active support of everyone engaged in the practice of the legal profession in the state; and the benefits of membership can easily be made to extend far beyond the five dollars allotted for it.

Too many of us have assumed in the past that this association once put in being by the law, possesses in itself some form of perpetual motion by which it will continue to function to infinity with but our slightest attention.

This is just another way in which to say that this is your association, that we are your officers, and that these are your committees, and that this little magazine is for your use and benefit; but each and all need your help and support.

I am sure that every one of these committees will welcome your views of matters within their purview, and will give them careful consideration.

And for Bar Briefs this is your yearly invitation. We need short articles, carefully and briefly prepared, presenting new points of substantive law and procedure. This publication belongs to the Associa-
