DEAN ROGER W. COOLEY

Roger W. Cooley, Dean of the University Law School, died on November 7th, 1931 at the home of his son, John B. Cooley, in the city of Grand Forks.

Funeral services were held for him at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on November 9th, Rev. H. E. Harrington officiating.

Dean Cooley was born in Decorah, Iowa on Christmas Day, 1859. He was educated in the schools of Decorah, and graduated from the University of Michigan in 1882.

He studied law in the office of his father, Judge E. E. Cooley, and was admitted to the Bar in 1884.

In 1887 he was made Secretary of the Commission which revised the laws of Dakota Territory.

In 1896 Mr. Cooley became connected with the West Publishing Co. of St. Paul, as associate editor, and began the series of legal publications for which he became very well known.

In 1905 appeared the first edition of his "Briefs on the Law of Insurance", which was soon recognized as a standard work on that subject. A second edition of this work materially enlarged, was published in 1927.

Among his other legal writings were a "Hand Book on the Law of Municipal Corporations" and "Selection of Cases on Damages". The next book he prepared and published was on "Brief Making", and then his books on "Persons" and "Cases" followed.

Between 1906 and 1911 Mr. Cooley was an instructor at the St. Paul College of Law, and special lecturer at the Universities of Michigan, Minnesota and Chicago.

In 1911 he became Professor of Law at the University of North Dakota.

During the World War he was special counsel for the United States War Risk Ins. Bureau, and the Veterans' Bureau at Washington, D. C., but in 1923 he returned to the University of North Dakota.

In 1927 he was made Acting Dean of the Law School of the University and in 1929 he became the Dean of the Law School of the University.

In 1887 Mr. Cooley was married to Eliza W. Booth of Savannah, Georgia, and one son, John B. Cooley, now of Grand Forks, was born to them.

Dean Cooley was a member of the Masons, Sigma Phi, and Phi Alpha Delta fraternities, the Order of the Coif, an honorary society, and of the North Dakota Bar Association.

Since joining the staff of the University Law faculty Dean Cooley served continuously except for a few years during the war, when he served the country in the capacities mentioned.

Although stricken with blindness in June, 1931, Dean Cooley continued to conduct his classes and to attend to the administrative affairs of the Law School until he was taken ill with influenza about one week before his death.

His condition became critical on Wednesday when pneumonia developed and he was taken to the hospital.

With the same spirit that enabled him to overcome his blindness and continue his work at the University, Dean Cooley expected that his last illness would be brief and that soon he would be able to resume his place and work at the school.

For some time previous to his death he made his home in Grand Forks with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cooley, and they were with him at the time of his death. Mr. John B. Cooley and three granddaughters, Madeline Ethel, Mary Elizabeth, and Dorothy Frances are his only survivors—his wife having died in 1929.

The spirit in which he lived and which actuated him during his blindness, and during his last illness, was of the same type that seemed to possess him at all times during his very active life. He was an accomplished man, having been a student of the law since his early manhood; and aside from this he was well equipped along educational lines.

In fact Dean Cooley was a great man, and one of the finest types of good citizenship who ever resided in this community. He was very common in his everyday life and always of an even temper, and kind and affable with all of his friends, and deeply interested in them, as well as in all of the affairs of life.

To the younger people and especially the students of the law school, he was especially kind and considerate, and ever ready to extend a helping hand, and all of these kindnesses were freely given without the least sign of affectation. In fact, it was his very nature to so act and it was never any apparent effort for him to do the many deeds of kindness which flowed from his heart and hand to those with whom he was more closely associated.

Because of his greatness as a man and as an instructor, and because of all of these attributes of which he was so thoroughly possessed, he endeared himself to the hearts of all with whom he came in contact. He was always a quiet, unassuming man, and never evidenced any thought of himself or of his greatness as a man, a scholar and instructor, but always seemed to look upon these things as just parts of what he thought to be the real life.

In the death of Dean Cooley, Grand Forks and the entire community, as well as the State of North Dakota, has lost a good man—an example of good citizenship, a good friend and neighbor, and an able and just man, and while he is lost to us, yet he will ever be held in fondest memory by his host of friends.

HON. CHARLES J. FISK

Judge Charles J. Fisk was born in Morrison, Ill., March 11th, 1862. He attended the common schools there and began the study of law at Fulton, Ill., taking the course and finishing in 1883. Three years later he decided to try his fortunes in the great northwest and was admitted to the Bar of North Dakota in 1886, and began the practice of law at Larimore, N. D.

Soon thereafter he entered into partnership with the Hon. Tracy R. Bangs at Grand Forks, N. D., and he served as city attorney for about two years, and also as Assistant United States Attorney.

Later on and in 1897 he was elected Judge of the District Court of the First Judicial District, with his home and chambers in the city of Grand Forks.

For ten years Judge Fisk served with marked distinction on the district bench, when the people of the State of North Dakota in 1917 raised him to the position of Judge of the Supreme Court, where he served for ten years, and was Chief Justice of our Supreme Court when his term expired in 1917.

He then went to Minot, N. D., where he entered into partnership with Francis Murphy and Dudley Nash under the firm name of Fisk, Murphy & Nash, and this partnership was successfully continued until Mr. Murphy removed to Fargo, N. D., when the remaining members continued the business under the name of Fisk & Nash.

This firm continued in business until in 1923 when Judge Fisk was appointed referee of the State Guaranty Fund Commission, and in such position it was his duty to hear and determine claims against the State Guaranty Fund. He served in that capacity until the position was discontinued by the act of the Legislature.

Judge Fisk was the son of Clark and Adelia Fisk, both of whom were typical New Englanders. After attending the common and high schools at Morrison, Mr. Fisk decided to pursue a course of legal training at Northern Illinois College at Fulton, Ill., and completed his course in 1883.

In 1886 he came to the then Territory of Dakota, and after practicing law here for a time he returned to Sterling, Ill., where he was united in marriage with Miss Ida M. Myers of that city.

To them two daughters were born—Helen, now Mrs. George E. Valker of Minot, and Doris, now Mrs. Earl Draper of Detroit Lakes, Minn.

Mrs. Fisk died in Minot in July, 1919, the victim of an airplane accident.

During the greater part of Judge Fisk's life thereafter, and especially after sustaining a serious accident, he was in failing health, and seemed never able to regain his former physical health and strength to enable him to resume the practice of law.

Three sisters and one brother, in addition to the two daughters, survive him. The sisters are Mrs. Wm. McFarland of Mound, Minn., and Mrs. Geo. Dobb and Ida M. Fisk of Norman, Okla. The brother is Judge Frank E. Fisk, who was District Judge in the Williston District for many years, and is now engaged in the law practice at Williston.

Judge Fisk was reared as a Methodist. Fraternally he was a Mason—a member of the Scottish Rite, a Shriner and also a member of the Elks Lodge of Grand Forks, N. D. He was a charter member and the first exalted ruler of the Grand Forks Elks Lodge.

Funeral services for him were held at Minot, N. D., at the Vincent Methodist Episcopal church with Rev. N. Everett Hanson, pastor, officiating, after which Masonic funeral services were conducted at the grave at Rosehill Cemetery, Minot, where he was buried in the same lot and beside the body of Mrs. Fisk.

It is quite difficult to write of Judge Fisk or to find language sufficiently expressive of his many great and noble qualities. It would seem entirely sufficient to simply say that in everyday life he was a man, and in his work in the law he was a student, a deep thinker, and a profound lawyer, and perhaps we are justified in saying that as a judge he had no superior in this state, and perhaps we could go beyond the bounds of the State of North Dakota, in making this last statement.

It is perhaps unnecessary to say so very much concerning his many years of life and usefulness in this state, because it is our belief that no man who ever lived in this state was better known and more highly respected, and more deeply loved than was Judge Fisk.

As a man he was indeed companionable, and loved more than anything else to associate with his friends and to mingle with them in social intercourse and conclave, and his friends were legion, because he always seemed to be a natural man—devoid of all affectation or pretense—and so he was highly respected and became very popular in his every-day life among the people of this state, so that in his home district in Grand Forks, the people who had mingled with him intimately and who knew him perhaps better than others, chose him for their judge and we do not believe any person ever regretted his act or his aid in placing Judge Fisk upon the district bench where he served so long and faithfully. Then a little later on when his acquaintanceship throughout the state grew to such an extent that he was thoroughly known and liked in all points of the state, the people decided to take him away from Grand Forks and his judgeship at that point, and place him upon the Supreme Court of this state, and they did this in partial recognition of his wonderful ability as a judge, where he served faithfully and in a most satisfactory manner to the Bar of this state, and to the people generally, for a period of about ten years.

As a member of the Supreme Court his decisions were acknowledged to be fair, able and sound pronouncements of the law, but it seems to the writer who knew him very intimately for nearly 40 years that his greatest success and accomplishments were brought to him while acting as judge of the District Court, for in such position he was thrown more closely and intimately in contact with the people, not only of his district, but of the state, and thus had opportunity to gain a general acquaintance with the people and to show the kindness of his heart and the greatness of his mind, and the people generally are not slow to recognize such qualities.

On the district bench it mattered not to him who the litigants were, in any case before him, and it did not concern him in the least who the attorneys trying the cases, might be. He knew nothing concerning court-room audiences when engaged in hearing a lawsuit, but his entire attention and his wonderful mind were confined to the "case in hand", and it was his earnest desire to know the facts and to have the jury know the facts, and have them presented to the jury in proper manner, and then for him to tell the jury all about the law of the case, and he always performed these duties without the slightest evidence of passion, bias or prejudice, because it was not in him to act otherwise, and we firmly believe that no such thing ever entered his mind or was permitted to sway him in the trial of any lawsuit. During his many years on the bench I do not believe he was ever known to lose his patience. He was temperamentally a judge, and this element in his makeup, coupled with his great mind and ability of discernment, his wide and general knowledge of the law, and his thought of fairness at all times, enabled him to administer justice, just as fair and as great as it was humanely possible to do, and it seems to the writer that all of these great elements and qualifications are more clearly exemplified in the fact that very rarely were the decisions of Judge Fisk reversed by the higher court.

We have in this state a monthly pamphlet called "Bar Briefs", and this is edited by the Hon. Richard E. Wenzel, the faithful and efficient Secretary of our Association, and in the issue of May, 1932, we find an article on Judge Fisk from the pen of the editor, which I am much pleased to here quote as the final paragraph of this report, to-wit:

"Judge Fisk was one of the most respected and loved members of the profession in this state. He possessed a rare combination of talent and temperament that gave to his every activity the impress of soundness and solidarity. He was keen, discerning, frank. He was happy, rather than cheerful or merely jovial, a friend as soon as he became an acquaintance. He joins the list of departed pioneers, that is lengthening all too rapidly during these trying times, after a reasonably long life well spent. He wrote his own memorial in efficient, honest service to his adopted State. We can not add to it. We can merely pay tribute to his devotion, his faithfulness, his loyalty, and permit that devotion, that faithfulness, that loyalty to become an inspiration to us, inviting and influencing us to attack our problems in the same courageous, capable manner. Thus we bow at the shrine of another patriotic pioneer."

HON. ALBERT T. COLE

On May 12th, 1932, at a Hospital in Fargo, Judge Cole passed away. His death was directly caused by a fall and injuries therefrom some time in January of this year.

Judge Cole was born at Avon, Wisconsin, October 8th, 1858, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carl Cole, who came to the United States from Norway in 1841.

In the fall of 1862 his parents moved to New Lisbon, Wis., where they remained until in the spring of 1863, when they moved to Minnesota where they homesteaded east of what is now Blooming Prairie, where Judge Cole remained with his parents and obtained a grade school education, and later on served as Justice of the Peace and also Town Marshal.

In 1878 Judge Cole married Anna Skarten of Blooming Prairie. Three children were born to them. Two died in infancy, and a son, Cyrus, died at Fargo at the age of 21 years. His wife died in Fargo in 1905.

Judge Cole's life and business activities were varied. In 1884 he moved to Ellendale, N. D., where he engaged in the grain-buying business, and it was there that Judge Cole began the study of law, and in 1891 he was admitted to the Bar in the court of the late Judge Lauder of Wahpeton, and the following year was admitted to the Bar by the Supreme Court of this state.

While at Ellendale Judge Cole acted as City Assessor and in 1890 did special census work for the Federal Department of Farms, Homes and Mortgages.

Judge Cole was a member of the first North Dakota Legislature, elected from Dickey County, and served one term.

In 1895 and 1896 he served as State's Attorney of Dickey County, having been appointed to fill a vacancy in said office.

In January, 1897 Judge Cole moved to Fargo, N. D. and engaged in the practice of law.

In 1917 he was elected Judge of the District Court, succeeding the late Judge Charles A. Pollock.

During all the years of his judgeship he was not absent from his chambers or from the court room any weekday, until he met with his accident, on January 22nd, 1932.

Funeral services were conducted for Judge Cole at Fargo, and he was laid to rest in the cemetery of that city.

We believe we can truthfully say that Judge Cole was a self-made man, and strictly one of the old school lawyers in thought, and in the manner in which he conducted his business.

For many years he had been a great student, and being gifted with a memory that was remarkable, he succeeded in his work in a very satisfactory manner.

No one within the knowledge of the writer ever questioned his integrity and in the conduct of his work he was fair and it always seemed uppermost in his mind to do what he thought was strict justice between man and man, whether acting as judge, or as layman.

He was a very strong prohibitionist, and yet in all of the numerous cases brought before him involving that question, he was kind and considerate, and never while on the Bench was he known to exhibit the least sign of prejudice or bias in any sort of a lawsuit, even though he always favored the settlement of cases, and sometimes was known to take an honest part in the adjustment of cases pending before him, and in the enforcement of the prohibition law, notwithstanding his own very strong personal and favorable view of that law, yet he was extremely lenient in the sentences he imposed, and he was often given to the criticism of citizens who were advocates of the enforcement of such law, but who failed to obey its mandate themselves.

Judge Cole was also credited with ameliorating many family differences which otherwise would have resulted in divorces, and as a result the husbands and wives who came into his court embittered against each other, and seeking separation, were kindly advised by Judge Cole, who sometimes spent hours with them, and in many cases these same people left his courtroom happy and resumed their home life, thanking the judge for his efforts in their behalf.

In December, 1917, Judge Cole married Mary Boardman of New Richmond, Wis., and thereafter they adopted two children, all of whom survive him.

Judge Cole possessed many strong, sterling qualities of manhood, and he carried these with him at all times in his services as judge, and we believe that his intentions were all of the very best, and that if he made mistakes, they were of the mind and not of the heart.

Although not showing any demonstrative outward expressions, yet we firmly believe that Judge Cole was a deeply religious man, and that he always endeavored to practice and to carry out the doctrine of the Golden Rule.

There are hundreds of naturalized citizens in this state who will always respect and love Judge Cole and will hold him in remembrance, because he nearly always presided at terms of court when new citizens were being made, and Judge Cole's kindly manner and good advice given to all of them on such occasions, will be cherished and remembered by all of them. It was his custom to have a little program following the legal ceremonies where speeches of encouragement were made, not only by him, but by others, and our National songs were sung, and these new citizens were made to feel that this country was indeed their home, and a good place in which they could live, make their homes, and rear their families, and on many such occasions he had the local American Legion Post members present and at the conclusion a little silk American flag was given to each of the new citizens, and no one seemed happier or more pleased than did the old judge himself, and it is very proper to add here that not one of these kindnesses or thoughtful considerations, was ever done by Judge Cole for aggrandizement or to make votes for himself, because at no time in his life did he ever play politics in or about one of his court rooms, and we believe that all who knew him, either as a man or as a judge, will ever hold him in kindest remembrance.

HON. JOHN W. CARR

Hon. John W. Carr died at his home in Jamestown on Tuesday, June 14th, 1932. Mr. Carr had been ill for a long time previous to his passing, and was not able to carry on the work of his law business or any of the other duties which devolved upon him.

Since 1929 Mr. Carr was Lieutenant Governor of the State of North Dakota, elected to such position by the I. V. A. and Republican parties of the State of North Dakota.

Mr. Carr was born in Fayette County, Iowa, March 26th, 1874. and attended the public schools of his native state, and the Iowa State Normal School for one year.

Mr. Carr was dependent upon himself for his education after leaving the public school, and in 1894 he came to North Dakota and worked as a farm-hand and as a school teacher. Later he attended the Valley City Normal for two years, and then took a two year's law course in the Minnesota University, and thereafter was a member of the first class to graduate from the Law School of the University of North Dakota, where he completed his work in 1901.

On July 1st, 1902, he went to Jamestown and established himself in the practice of law, which practice he continued, together with his official work, until his death.

For two years he was Assistant State's Attorney, and for four years he was State's Attorney of Stutsman County.

He served for 17 years as a member of the Jamestown Board of Education, two years as a member of the City Council, and for some years as a member of the Library Board.

In 1922 he was first elected to the Legislature, and served in the sessions of 1923, 1925 and 1927, and the special session of 1928.

He was Speaker of the House in 1927-28, and then was nominated and elected on the Republican ticket as Lieutenant Governor, and was re-elected in 1930.

He married Miss Marie Remmen of Goodhue County, Minn., in 1905. She died in March, 1920, leaving four children, Edwin Remmen Carr, Mary Thora, William John, and Marie.

Mr. Carr was again married in August, 1921 to Martha Ella Bates of Jamestown.

During Mr. Carr's residence in this state he fought many political battles, and prior to March, 1932 was the acknowledged candidate for Governor of this state on the Republican ticket, but in March, 1932, he withdrew entirely from politics to wage the greatest fight of his life-time—a fight against the inroads of the illness which resulted in his death.

The writer knew Mr. Carr as a practicing lawyer of this state, very well, but unfortunately did not possess that acquaintanceship and personal intimacy and knowledge of him which was the pleasure of many residents of this state.

Mr. Carr was a very finely equipped lawyer, and was upright and courageous in all his dealings, not only with his fellow members of the bar, but with all among his many acquaintances, and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him.

For many years Mr. Carr's reputation was confined to his own home county and judicial district, where he was quietly, yet earnestly building up the business and associations of an able lawyer. In late years he became known over the entire state and in every locality he made and retained the friendship of many people.

In his passing, not only his own community, but the state in general lost a good man, an eminent lawyer, and valuable citizen.

JAMES JOHNSON

On July 11th, 1932, Mr. Johnson passed away at his home in Minot, N. D., at the age of 82 years.

Mr. Johnson came to North Dakota and settled in the Mouse River Valley in 1883, and from that time on has been continuously a resident of this state, and during many years last past has maintained his home in Minot, N. D.

Mr. Johnson played a picturesque part in the development of north-west North Dakota and particularly in the Mouse River Valley.

He accompanied his father-in-law over land from Lisbon in the spring of 1883. They followed the prairie trails until coming to the Fork of the DesLacs and Mouse Rivers, west of where Minot is now located. There they camped for a night and in the morning they discovered that the ground was underlaid with lignite coal, and they decided that the territory had a future, and at once squatted on claims. Mr. Colton, Mr. Johnson's father-in-law, became the founder of the little town of Burlington, where he established the first store building, which Mr. Johnson assisted him in erecting, and in 1884 he founded the Burlington Republican.

Mr. Johnson became the first postmaster at Burlington, the post-office being located in his house; he was the first clerk of the Territorial District Court; he served as Probate Judge, and was representing his district in the Senate at the Second State Legislative Session in 1891 when Ward County was created.

In 1892 Mr. Johnson was elected State's Attorney of Ward County and held this office for twelve years.

Mr. Johnson was Vice President and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Minot, and in addition to his banking interests in Minot, he was President of the First State Bank at Burlington.

Burial was held at Burlington, his first real home in this state.

Mr. Johnson married over 54 years ago, and they have lived in Dakota Territory and North Dakota during all of that time. His wife and a son, Rollie Johnson, of Slocan City, B. C., and a daughter, Mrs. Daniel Conan of Hoodsport, Wash., survive him.

Truly Mr. Johnson's life and activities in Dakota Territory and in the state were varied. At different times in his life he was engaged in farming, as postmaster, lawyer, businessman and banker, and in all of these positions he was an earnest, faithful worker, and we do not believe his honesty and integrity were ever brought in question.

He was very much interested in politics and nearly every year until the more recent ones, he was very active.

He was not what might be termed a highly educated lawyer, and yet he made a success in his profession because of his great application, energy, earnestness and devotion to the work.

He conducted the duties of the office of State's Attorney for 12 years with marked credit to himself and to the people of his county, and to the state. He was always fair and just, and of an affable nature, and very considerate of the feelings of others, and was never known to purposely offer an affront, but was always able to defend himself in case of attack.

Some years ago he sort of dropped out of the active practice of the law and having acquired a considerable amount of property, he engaged in the banking business and made a success of it.

In his home town and community he was highly respected by all who knew him, and that community and the state has sustained a great loss in his passing.

FRANK I. TEMPLE

Frank I. Temple, Cass county state's attorney, died suddenly Thursday, August 11th, as he finished arraigning a prisoner in district court at Fargo. He was 51 years old. Death was due to heart disease.

Frank I. Temple was born at Owatonna, Minn., April 1st, 1881. His parents were Seth H. and Sarah A. Davis Temple. Aside from the schooling he obtained in his native city, he was educated in Breck school, Wilder, Minn., the University of North Dakota, and the law college there from which he was graduated in 1907.

He opened his first law office at McClusky in Sheridan county where he practiced 13 years. He served as Sheridan county state's attorney two terms. He also served as U. S. Commissioner.

He removed to Fargo and his 12 years' residence in Fargo have been marked by rare services to his profession in which his name was a synonym of integrity; by scrupulous fulfillment of the duties of the office to which he was elected in November, 1930; generous furtherance of civic enterprise; and abounding hospitality and an unrivalled genius for friendship.

Mr. Temple married Esther Pohlman of Fon du Lac, Wis. on Aug. 23, 1918, in Chicago. To them were born five children, William John, 12; Mary, 8; Robert, 5; and Richard, an infant. A son, Frank, died shortly after the Temples moved to Fargo. The only other immediate survivor is Wm. H. Temple, of Fargo.

Both musicians of more than average ability, Mr. and Mrs. Temple were prominent in Fargo musical circles. Mr. Temple was a member of the Elks Purple band and the Fargo Symphony orchestra.

Fraternally he was in addition to his Elks affiliation, a member of the McClusky Masonic blue lodge; El Zagal temple of Fargo; Keystone chapter, No. 5, Fargo; Auvergne commandery, No. 2, Fargo; and Fargo Council No. 1. He was a past commander of the Knights Templar.

Funeral services were held Saturday at 3 p. m. in Gethsemane Episcopal church, Dean Harold S. Brewster reading the service.

He conducted the duties of the office of state's attorney with marked credit to himself and to the people of his county and to the state, but he had been troubled with recurrent heart attacks for a number of years, and in March, 1931, two months after he had assumed his elective office, he was stricken with influenza while arguing an extradition case at Marshall, Minn. Brought home in an ambulance, he was not able to resume work for several months. His heart had not been strong since that time.

In his home town and community he was highly respected by all who knew him, and that community and the state has sustained a great loss in his sudden passing.

"Yet shall their death-hour leave a track
Of Glory, permanent and bright."
"Ne'er shall oblivion's murky cloud
Obscure their deathless praise".

RESOLUTIONS

Now, Therefore, BE IT RESOLVED, That in the passing of these, our brothers and members of this Association, we jointly and severally express our deep appreciation of the services they were permitted to render as they passed in and out among us during the years they spent in this state, and that we deeply mourn their loss, and we here and now express our earnest sympathy for each and all of the members of their families and loved ones from whom they have parted for a time.

As we have above said, our ranks are indeed thinning very fast and our losses are not entirely confined to the older members of the Bar of this state, but younger ones are falling by the wayside from time to time, and we are very frequently reminded of the uncertainty of that condition which we call life here, and also of the fact that we are not here for all time, but that sooner or later our time will come when the curtain will be rent asunder and we shall see, and know, and understand.

We deeply appreciate these losses in our membership, but those who have left us and are leaving us will be held in fondest memory.

Memory is a wonderful attribute which the Creator has given to us. Pictures that hang upon the walls of our homes become dim and with time fade away, but the pictures engraven upon the walls of our memory always remain fresh and we are enabled to recall to actual vision the faces of departed loved ones. This is one of God's greatest gifts to His children, and we should cherish it.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these Memorials and of these Resolutions be sent to the families of the departed members, and that a full copy be filed with the Secretary of the State Bar Association and spread at large upon the records in his office.

Dated at Grand Forks, N. D., this 12th day of July, 1932.

Respectfully submitted,

H. A. LIBBY
Chairman of Memorials Committee.
