SPEAKERS AT THE ANNUAL MEETING

Judge Harry Olson, who has been chief justice of the Municipal Court of Chicago since 1906, was born in Cook County, Illinois, studied in Washburn College, Kansas, and graduated from the Union College of Law at Chicago. Prior to his election to the Municipal Court, he served for ten years as assistant state's attorney of Cook County. He has long been a student of Criminal Law and Criminology, and in recent years particularly has been interested in the examination of criminals with a view to eliminating their criminal tendencies by suitable treatment.

Chancellor Melvin A. Brannon of the University of Montana, was born in Indiana, is a graduate of Wabash College, and took his doctor's degree at the University of Chicago. He was professor of Biology in the University of North Dakota from 1894 to 1914, was president of the University of Idaho from 1914 to 1917, president of Beloit College from 1917 to 1923, and since 1923 has served as Chancellor of the University of Montana with offices at the state capitol at Helena. Under his administration Montana is trying the experiment of having this one executive head for a considerable group of its educational institutions which for the purposes of administration are denominated the State University. Chancellor Brannon has been active in a large number of civic and scientific organizations.

Gov. Theo. Christianson of Minnesota, prior to his election as governor, was engaged in the practice of law at Dawson, Minnesota, and was prominent there also as editor of the Dawson Sentinel. As a member of the house of representatives in Minnesota for a number of terms he has an enviable legislative record and has proved himself a most efficient executive.
